Urges Congress to pass antibusing legislation

Nixon to ask $3 billion for aid to schools

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon Saturday urged Congress to pass antibusing legislation this year and said he will ask for $3 billion in supplemental aid for the nation's public schools.

From his Camp David retreat on a sunny and crisp first weekend of spring, Nixon endorsed a bill coming up for debate in the House next week which would extend federal education aid to the nation's schools another three years.

At the same time, he criticized a pending Senate version of the measure, saying it would "create a bureaucratic nightmare hopelessly bound up in miles of red tape."

He urged Congress to make school aid programs faster and less complicated and said he will request $3 billion "to enable us to get federal funds to the schools this spring so that for the first time they will be able to plan ahead knowing the size and extent of the federal contribution."

His contention that education had made great progress in America in the last five years drew immediate response from Dr. Helen D. Wise, president of the National Education Association, who called it "a period of retrogression in many ways unprecedented since World War II."

She criticized Nixon for withhholding "funds by which local communities might have dealt more effectively with desegregation, specifically because he opposes busing ..."

She noted that amendments were pending on the education aid bills in both houses, and said "I do not see how Mr. Nixon can support one and reject the other when neither is in final form."

The NEA president said "while we are delighted with the President's apparent general blessing of education, we eagerly wait for more concrete evidence of his support."

He pledged to veto any legislation that makes it even more difficult for local school officials to obtain federal education aid.

Nixon urged Congress to appropriate $1.3 billion this year to fund a program already enacted—but not financed—providing a maximum $1,400 grants to students to continue education beyond high school.

Nixon said that in 1972 he proposed legislation to limit busing, and "today I urge favorable consideration of an antibusing amendment, such as the amendment now being sponsored by Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Mich.)."

"Bureaucrats in Washington cannot educate your child," he said. "Your children can only be educated by you in your homes, and by their teachers in their schools."

"Parents know that the education of their children can most effectively be carried out in neighborhood schools." he said.

"They are naturally concerned when the courts, acting on the basis of complicated plans drawn up by bureaucreats far away off in Washington, D.C., order children bused out of their neighborhoods."

The President said dual school systems have been abolished across the nation with a minimum of busing, and "excessive forced busing is neither necessary nor desirable."

Nixon said that in recent decades there has been a tendency to concentrate power in Washington, and added, "this does not make good sense."

The aid to education bill awaiting House action does not incorporate all the revisions he had suggested, Nixon said, but he urged its support.

Nixon said school boards in need of federal aid have to check for the program that comes closest to meeting their needs, find out how to apply, then wait months for an answer.

He said he wants, instead, to consolidate funding for local school districts and let them decide how to spend the money.

He said many boards do not know until the middle of a term how much federal money will be available, and urged Congress to provide an aid program which will let them know a year in advance how much they will receive.

Ghetto bar firebombed; 8 die in trap

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Eight persons were trapped and killed and about 12 others injured Saturday when fire started from an incendiary bomb raced through a crowded neighborhood bar with a bolted back door and barred windows.

Fire officials said the victims were trapped against the locked door after flames blocked the front when a firebomb was hurted through a front window of the tiny Caboose Bar.

The dead, including one woman, were found crowded against the bolted door and were pronounced dead on arrival at several city hospitals.

Six of the injured were hospitalized in critical condition.

A suspect was taken into custody but his identity was not immediately released. Authorities had no immediate comment on a motive.

Russell Buckmiller, a resident of an apartment above the bar, said he was starting to make supper when "I opened up the front door and all I saw was smoke. I slammed the door shut, got to the telephone and dialed 911 (the police emergency number) telling them the Caboose was on fire.

"They told me it was all taken care of," Buckmiller said. "They must have had an alarm before I turned it in. Then I went down the back and ran."

The dead and injured were taken to Allentown General, Osteopathic and Sacred Heart Hospitals.

Fire Chief Melvin Kaiser described the scene:

"Everything was in turmoil. Firemen were fighting the fire, trying to rescue people and give everybody oxygen at the same time."

Kaiser said the blaze lasted only about 20 minutes. "But the bad feature here is that people couldn't get out of the building.

"We found everybody at the back door. It was bolted and they couldn't get out," he said. Flames prevented their escape through the front door.

Most of the dead were described as black males.

The bar is located on the ground floor of a three-story brick building. Residents on the upper floors escaped without injury.

Police said the bar is in the center of the Ghetto section of this eastern Pennsylvania community.

Police said two of the victims were women. One of the 11 injured was listed in critical condition at Osteopathic Hospital.

Impeachment warning from GOP

Nixon to give up tapes?

By GRANT DILLMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is believed preparing to surrender some or perhaps all the 42 Watergate tapes the House Judiciary Committee says it must have for its impeachment inquiry, UPI learned Saturday.

The possible change in the President's hard-line stance on the tapes was said to have followed a meeting Tuesday when Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott and several other Republican senators warned his Watergate lawyer, James D. St. Clair, that if Nixon did not soften his stand, the House would impeach him.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said after the UPI dispatch ran that "The reports which say the White House has made a decision to turn over 42 more tapes to the House Judiciary Committee are incorrect. No such decision has been made."

"We have already provided the committee with 19 tape recordings of conversations, more than 700 documents which were provided to the grand jury, and boxloads of additional material," he said, and the White House "is prepared to...look for ways to cooperate, but we continue to feel it is essential that the committee first define the charges and be specific on what additional materials are wanted and why."

The GOP senators also warned St. Clair, sources told UPI, it would cost the Nixon at least 15 Senate votes if the committee cited him for contempt for refusing to turn over the tapes. Sources said there are 35 "sure" Senate votes for conviction now and that would push the total above 50.

They also told St. Clair to expect further defections "if another shoe were dropped"—if there was some new development damaging to Nixon.

It takes a simple majority vote for impeachment—or indictment—in the House, and two-thirds of those senators present and voting must approve an actual conviction on the charge. If all 100 senators were present, it would take 67 votes to convict.

St. Clair was said to be disbelieving when Scott and other senators warned about the probability of impeachment if Nixon persisted in withholding the tapes requested by the Judiciary committee. The senators then warned him he had better "take this directly to the President," sources said.

Mariner sends pictures of Mercury 80 million miles

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Mariner 10 sent back to earth more than 80 million miles away two sets of the first television pictures of the little known planet Mercury Saturday and scientists said the opening sets were better than anything ever seen by telescope.

The first two-planet space explorer was 3.5 million miles from Mercury when the cameras first began clicking and closing the gap at 27,000 miles an hour until it finally gets within 415 miles of the small hot orb.

The first pictures were received Saturday morning and a second series beamed to Cal Tech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory during the afternoon as the five month voyage began its payoff.

After computer and other delicate processing to bring out detail and sharpen light and dark contrast, JPL said it would distribute to the news media this morning the best of the pictures received Saturday.

The men have waited for months for a good look at the planet hidden in the glare of the sun.

"The first test pictures, which are meant only to calibrate the cameras, showed more than you can see with a telescope from the earth," a JPL spokesman said.

Man, 65, falls 150 feet down mountain; condition critical

AZUSA — A 65-year-old man, who fell 150 feet in the mountains north of this city Saturday night, was in critical condition after being rescued by sheriff's mountaineers.

George R. Tallman, a Hunter's Camp resident, was taken to Glendora Community Hospital after members of the San Dimas mountain rescue team pulled him from a canyon floor, off Highway 39 south of the east fork, in the San Gabriel Mountains.

Deputies said Tallman had stopped his pickup truck briefly along the mountain roadway about 5:10 p.m., and got out. He slipped and fell backwards, to the bottom of a cliff.

Mountaineers took more than an hour to rescue the victim. California Highway Patrol officers were on the scene to control the crowd that had gathered, and paramedics administered aid to the victim.

Hospital officials said Tallman suffered scratches and bruises, and internal injuries.

Pair sought for robbing 2 women

POMONA — Police today are searching for two armed men who held up two women outside a thrift shop and escaped with a purse and $6 in cash.

Officers indicated the women, aged 18 and 53, both Pomona residents, were accosted on the street outside the Salvation Army Thrift Store at 708 E. Third St. Friday night.

After ordering the victims to put their hands on a car hood, "and you won't get shot," the suspects, displaying a .12 gauge shotgun, took one of the women's purses and fled on foot.

NEW HOPE FOR INJURED GIRL

Attendants transfer 4-year-old Rachel Gann from ambulance to Air Force plane which flew her to Houston for special treatment. Rachel has been paralyzed since a car crash which killed her mother.

Paralyzed tot flown by Air Force jet

Mercy mission for four-year-old

HOUSTON (UPI) — Dressed in a checked pink pinafore and sandals dotted with red and green flowers, 4-year-old Rachel Gann was flown on a mercy mission from Georgia to Texas Saturday for treatment of an injury that has left her paralyzed from the head down.

"We'll have her at the Astrodome or the zoo within a month," said the doctor who will treat her.

"That's a darling little girl," said the man who rode the motorcycle escort with the ambulance that took Rachel from Ellington AFB to the Texas Institute for Rehabilitation and Research.

"She's very bright and engaging. We fell in love with her because she needs us more than others," said nurse Sherry Sandrock, who has been with Rachel five days a week and more the past six months and who accompanied her to Houston.

The Marietta, Ga., child was injured last Aug. 23 in an auto accident that killed her mother. Since then she had lain helpless in Atlanta's Northside Hospital while doctors, nurses and machines worked around the clock to keep her alive.

But she needed special treatment at the Houston hospital. And it took the help of Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., to cut through the Pentagon red tape and get an Air Force DC9 Air-Evac plane with the necessary equipment aboard to treat her in flight.

Douglas Gann, Rachel's father, had been in Houston for a week and greeted her at the airfield.

"Most of the time she is in good spirits —until you try to make her eat. Then she gets irritated," said the father who had to quit his job to help care for his daughter. Gann's brother is keeping Rachel's older brothers, Steve, 9, and Greg, 11, in Marietta.

Rachel could be in the Houston hospital for six to nine months and the bill will run to $25,000. Expenses soared to $75,000 before the trip and the family and friends appealed for financial help.

A "Rachel Gann Trust Fund" was set up and John W. Henderson of the Internal Revenue Service in Georgia said contributions to the fund at P.O. Box 48035, Atlanta, Ga., 30340, would be tax deductible.

The child has a cervical cord injury that paralyzed her from the skull down.

"There is a long road ahead of her for whatever recovery she makes," said Mrs. Sandrock.

"She has been injured seven months so this might shorten her stay, since her condition already has stabilized," Rucker said.

"Hopefully we will be able to put her on some kind of smaller respirator where she can function over a long period of time. Ideally we want a piece of equipment where her father can take care of her at home."

Letter purportedly from SLA kidnapers claims Patricia Hearst learning her political lessons well

FBI seeking to determine whether missive authentic

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The FBI said Saturday it is seeking to determine the authenticity of a letter purportedly from the terrorist kidnapers of Patricia Hearst, claiming she has learned "political consciousness" during her 47 days of captivity.

The letter, asserted to be from the Symbionese Liberation Army, was received by an underground bi-weekly newspaper, The Phoenix.

The newspaper said it was impossible to be "absolutely sure" the communication came from the SLA but said the style and content were similar to other SLA communications.

The Phoenix had sent a list of 20 questions to the SLA, one of which asked if the group had been able to win Patricia "over to your philosophy."

The purported letter from the SLA received several days ago said:

"You ask if Patricia Hearst has learned political consciousness while she has been with us and the answer is yes; she has grown a great deal and we are hoping that it will not be necessary to execute her."

A spokesman for the FBI said he had "no idea" whether the letter was authentic but said the agency was trying to find out. The last known communication, by taped recording, was received from the SLA two weeks ago.

In answer to another question, the letter printed in the Phoenix said:

"You ask how the Symbionese Federation and the Symbionese Liberation Army first came about and how we drafted the Declaration of Revolutionary War. Since we are now under siege from a small army of FBI and Political Police agents, we cannot give you too many personal details, but it is enough to say that the original organizing conference was called together in June of 1973..."

Randolph A. Hearst, father of the kidnaped girl sought to meet SLA demands. The "People in Need" food program rushed preparations for another giveaway of food in the San Francisco area.

Hearst had said he hoped the suspended food program could be resumed Monday, but a spokesman for PIN said Saturday "when we are ready, we will go." He could not confirm the food would be given away Monday, but he said it would be early next week.

"As of now, a decision has not been made, but we will make it as soon as possible," he said.

He added that the total amount of food given to each recipient would come as close "as possible" to $70 worth. That was the amount originally demanded by the SLA to be given to all needy Californians, and the cost of that project has been estimated as high as $400 million. People In Need, however, has "only about $1 million" available to purchase food for the next distribution.

SNOWBIRD, Utah (UPI) — A Denver police lieutenant flew 700 miles and talked one of his officers into surrendering Saturday after the policeman held his estranged wife at gunpoint in a Utah ski resort for nearly 12 hours.

Sgt. James Sipos, 44, who has been in and out of a Denver hospital as a psychiatric outpatient for six months, put down two pistols and freed his wife unharmed following a brief talk with Lt. James Shoemaker.

The lieutenant flew from Denver to Salt Lake City and then rushed 20 miles up Little Cottonwood Canyon to the Snowbird ski resort early Saturday to end a stalemate between Sipos and heavily-armed Salt Lake County sheriff's deputies.

His wife, Kay, 30, who worked as a teller at a bank in the resort, was freed unhurt but was "emotionsally distraught," according to officers.

More than two dozen deputies, including sharpshooters with rifles, converged on the area, escorting skiers coming down the slopes out of the main lodge area.

After talking to Sipos by telephone, Sheriff's Capt. Pete Hayward contacted Lt. Shoemaker in Denver. Shoemaker was described as Sipos' best friend on the force as well as his commanding officer.

Following Sipos' surrender, he was taken to University of Utah Medical Center for psychiatric observation. He was released at mid-morning Saturday and flown back to Denver.

Denver Police Chief Art Dill said Sgt. Sipos had been an outpatient at Denver's Bethesda Hospital for six months. He was deemed "capable for duty" in January, but on Feb. 26 he reentered the hospital.

Extends lives in untreatable cases

New drug treatment used on cancer

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI) — A researcher reported Saturday that a tricky new form of drug treatment appears to extend the lives of patients with otherwise untreatable cancers of the lung and pancreas, two of the most common killer cancers.

Another scientist reported promising results so far in using the same type of drug system in treating a very serious type of bone tumor, called osteogenic sarcoma, which most often occurs in boys aged 7 to 15.

The treatment involves the use of the drug methotrexate in doses so large they normally would be fatal. An antidote known as Citrovorum Factor is then given the patient within hours to counteract the poison of methotrexate.

The methotrexate, which basically is a chemically spoiled vitamin, kills growing cells including cancer cells. The antidote, another modification of the same vitamin, revives normal cells after the cancer has been damaged.

Dr. Issac Djerassi, of Mercy Catholic Medical Center at Darby, Pa., said at a science writers seminar sponsored by the American Cancer Society that this unconventional treatment has been used experimentally to treat persons with lung cancer which could not be treated surgically. Radiation therapy also was used.

"Ten patients with lung cancer were alive one year after diagnosis when nine out of 10 were othwerwise expected to be dead by this time," he reported. He said similar results have been seen in patients with cancer of the pancreas.

"It appears so far that the survival of patients with inoperable lung cancer and cancer of the pancreas may thus be prolonged," Djerassi said.

Fourteen bone cancer patients have been treated with methotrexate and its antidote immediately following amputation during the past 21 months and in only one case has the cancer spread to the lung. In contrast, half those patients without this treatment would be expected to have evidence of cancer spreading by four months and 80 per cent by 12 months.

Nation's big airlines expected to ask for increase in fares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most of the nation's major airlines are expected to petition the government to increase passenger fares up to 6 per cent, following approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board of a fare boost by United Air Lines.

In a unanimous vote, the CAB approved Friday an application by United for a 4 per cent increase in domestic fares, beginning April 1. At the same time, the board said other airlines were free to apply for similar fare increases ranging up to 6 per cent.

The CAB said the fare increases were a surcharge to compensate for a "precipitous rise in jet fuel price per gallon."

CAB said it was rejecting on technical grounds the applications for fare increases by nine other airlines, but it said new requests would be acceptable for increases to take effect on April 16, in time for the spring and summer vacation periods.

In addition to approving United's increased fares, the CAB also authorized Trans World Airlines (TWA) to reinstitute reduced transcontinental fares on flights between major East and West Coast cities during off-day and off-hour periods after July 8.

To qualify for the reduced transcontinental fares, passengers must make reservations with TWA three months in advance and purchase tickets 45 days prior to their flights.

In approving the increased fares, the CAB rejected complaints by various consumer groups and individual members of Congress that the airlines were making more money because of reduced scheduled flights and cutbacks in operating personnel.

Japanese recovery amazes Doolittle

TOKYO (UPI) — The American general who opened the way for the U.S. destruction of Tokyo during World War II said that he was "amazed" at the Japanese success in recovering from the war.

Doolittle led a squadron of B25 bombers in the first American air raid on Tokyo on April 18, 1942.

Jealous husband

LONDON (UPI) — A judge has granted a divorce to Mrs. Susan Russell, 23, who complained that her husband, Paul, 24, was so jealous of people looking at her that he refused to let her wear mini-skirts and brief panties.

Mrs. Russll said her husband made her wear only oldfashioned elastic bloomers and baggy slacks.

3 in high-speed chase jailed on robbery charge

GLENDORA — Three persons were jailed by sheriff's deputies Saturday on robbery charges after a high-speed chase along portions of the Foothill Freeway.

Those arrested were Freddie Parker, 41, of Pasadena, Vance Carroll, 36, of 2366 Chanslor Ave., Pomona, and Diane Lindsey, 20,of Pasadena.

Deputies said the suspects' car was traveling eastbound on the freeway, near the Sunflower offramp at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour about 4:30 a.m.

During the chase the car hit a center divider, spun out of control, and stopped on the freeway shoulder.

The trio was arrested on robbery charges because they fit the description of thieves operating in the area, officers indicated. A .44 magnum revolver, six live rounds and $911 in cash was found in the suspects' car.

North Koreans first to eliminate taxes

TOKYO (UPI) — North Korea has claimed to be the first country in the world to abolish direct taxation of its people.

The official KCNA news agency said that abolition of the last existing taxes was announced by Vice Premier Li Gun-mo at a meeting of the Supreme Peoples Assembly.

The latest round of tax abolitions affected mostly urban people. Taxes were abolished for North Korean farmers several years ago.

Li did not disclose how North Korea's government would be financed in the future. However, the government operates the country's major industries and conducts its retail and foreign trade.

She files $400,000 suit

Judge dresses down woman for wearing pants in court

McMINNVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — "I put my pants on that day just like I do every day," said Mrs. Linda Lusk.

But when she appeared in General Sessions Court wearing slacks last month it touched off a local furor, contempt citations and a $400,000 federal court suit.

Mrs. Lusk, 28, a teacher aide, was fined $10 last week for wearing the slacks into the courtroom of Judge W.G. McDonough for the second time. "He treats everybody like a criminal," Mrs. Lusk told UPI.

Last Feb. 18, Mrs Lusk appeared in court on a speeding violation charge.

"I went in there to pay the fine and he called my name and I went forward. He asked where I lived and he said to come back Wednesday in a dress,' Mrs. Lusk said.

"You see she's got on pants—dressed like a man,' Mrs. Lusk quoted McDonough as saying.

Mrs. Lusk said when her husband, Robert, 32, a Vietnam veteran, objected, the judge called him a "smart aleck.' McDonough fined Lusk $10 for contempt of court at the first hearing.

Mrs. Lusk also said the judge accused the NAACP of sending her there in slacks. She said the charge was untrue.

Since that incident the Lusks have filed a $400,00 damage suit against McDonough charging that he violated their constitutional rights with his rule banning women from wearing slacks in his courtroom.

Federal Judge Charles Neese of Greeneville refused to enjoin McDonough from enforcing his rule but he observed that it appeared that Mrs. Lusk's constitutional rights were violated.

McDonough's contempt fine of Mrs. Lusk has been appealed to the Warren County Circuit Court. McDonough excused himself from the traffic case which will be heard April 17.

Man purposely run over with car; 2 sought

Eindobole apparenty was watching a fight involving two of his friends and the suspects, at 17523 E. Arow Highway. Suddenly, the suspects got into their car, gunned it and ran over the victim twice.

Deputies said the suspects are wanted on charges of assualt with a deadly weapon and hit and run. They were described as tall,and well-built.

Husband won over kidnaper in tug-of-war for Princess Anne

LONDON (UPI) — As Princess Anne's royal parents flew home Saturday under the strictest royal security measures ever seen, the hair-raising story emerged of how her husband saved the princess in a grim tug of war with the gunman trying to kidnap her.

The gunman got close enough in his kidnap attempt outside Buckingham Palace Wednesday night to seize her arm while her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, hauled her back by the other. Phillips won.

In the shocked aftermath of the attempt, Anne's parents, Queen Elizbeth and Prince Phillip, arrived from an official visit to Indonesoia at an airport sealed off by soldiers and security police who guarded every foot of their drive home to nearby Windsor castle. Police in charge of royal security said it was the heaviest mounted in Britain for the Queen or any member of the royal family.

Similar strict security measures surrounded Priceess Anne and Phillips as they particpated in a country horse show where Anne took a fall.

It was Phillips, who married Anne last November, won the grim tug-of-war Wednesday and managed to lock the door of the maroon royal limousine in which they were riding.

The struggle helped stall the gunman's plan to abduct the princess long enough for police reinforcements to arrive and one to bring down the fleeing gunman with a footbball tackle.

Four persons were wounded in the gunbattle for possesion of Anne, including her personal boydguard. Police have charged Ian Ball, a 26-year-old Londoner, with his attempted murder.

The next day Anne told a friend, veterinarian Peter ScottDunn, at her Sandhurst home that after the gunman stopped her car in the Mall, a broad, busy Avenue leading to the front gates of Buckingham Palace, he ran to the back and started shooting.

Anne's personal bodyguard police Detective Inspector James Beaton, 30, fired back, aiming between Anne and Phillips on the back seat, she said. But Beaton's gun, a Walther PP380 automatic, jammed.

Anne told Scott-Dunn the gunman ran to the front of the car and shot and wounded Beaton and chauffeur Alex Callender.

Then, she said, he grabbed her by the arm and tried to pull her out of the car. Phillips held her by the other arm. The gunman told Phillips to let go or "he would be next," she said.

Phillips managed to pull her back in and slam and lock the door. The gunman raced to the other side and was tearing at the door handle when police reinforcements arrived, Anne said.

"I thought we were dead," Scott-Dunn quoted Anne.

Phillips told his story Friday to neighbors at his home village of Great Somerford where he and Anne were guests at a village party in their honor.

"It was very very frightening. I had one of Princess Anne's arms. I just kept talking to the man. All I could think of was to keep him talking, talking, talking," he said.

"I couldn't believe it was happening to me," Anne told village council chairman Tom Kent.

"I did not have time to get frightened, so I just got angry with the man."

Anne and Phillips competed today at horse trials at Cirencester, 100 miles west of London. Armed police plainclothesmen mingled with the hundreds of spectators and patrols moved through heavy woods surrounding the arena in continued stepped up security.

Flushed and splattered with mud, she told a spectator, "He slipped, silly goose."

Odd-even distribution to end in some areas

Gas shortage a short time ago now a 'glut'

By United Press International

The gasoline situation has eased so much in some parts of the country where motorists were waiting in mile-long lines only a few weeks ago that some state authorities are reporting a ..possible "glut."

The District of Columbia's voluntary odd-even gasoline distribution system set up to ease the lines at service stations will be discontinued next Friday in time for the annual Cherry Blossom Festival.

In Maryland, a state where the gasoline shortage was so severe the state sued the federal government for more allocations, Gov. Marvin Mandel said he was considering lifting a mandatory odd-even system but would wait for the April allocations before making a final decision.

In Delaware, some state officials said there was a "glut" of gasoline in some areas. At a service station complex on the Delaware Turnpike prices were dropped to less than 45 cents a gallon for regular, compared to 57 cents at stations elsewhere in the state.

"We have more gas than we need in some places. There is almost a glut of it," said one state official.

A survey by the American Automobile Association reported that 75 per cent of stations in the Washington area were open Saturday compared to 63 per cent last Saturday. Most were allowing motorists to fill their tanks and lines were no longer in most cases than two or three cars.

The same was true in Maryland where during February some station lines were nine miles long.

In New York, another hard-hit state in February, the AAA said gasoline supplies were the most plentiful in five months. Ninety-six per cent of service stations surveyed said they had enough to sell on Saturday and more than half had enough to open on Sunday.

In Texas, a state which was somewhat less hard-hit during the height of the gasoline shortage, the shortage ironically worsened slightly over the past week, according to an AAA report issued in Houston.

But the AAA said prices in Texas are still the lowest in the nation, averaging 48.9 for regular and 51.9 for premium.

The association said 14 per cent of the service stations in Texas reported they were out of fuel, a 1 per cent increase over last week. This was a far cry from February, however, when 60 per cent reported they had no gasoline for sale.

2 U.S. shrimp boats seized by Mexicans

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The U.S. Coast Guard said Saturday a Mexican gunboat guarding Mexico's 12-mile seaward fishing boundary against 25 American shrimp boats had seized two and forced them into harbor at Isla Mujares off the Yucatan Peninsula.

A third American shrimp boat, "Mr. Tom," equipped with a powerful radio able to transmit 500 miles back to Mobile, Ala., was trailing the gunboat and shrimpers on the 55-mile voyage from where the interception took place to Isla Mujares.

Lt. (j.g.) David Jacobson, duty officer at the Coast Guard search and rescue center in New Orleans, said that "Mr. Tom" was following them "in order to testify on their behalf as to the position and activity of the vessels."

Jacobson identified the two seized shrimp boats as the "Frank and Louise" and "Vilco," both from Ft. Myers, Fla. He said the "Frank and Louise" was owned by St. George Packing Co., while the "Vilco" belonged to Villers Seafood Co.

Asked if the seizure of the shrimpers was accompanied by violence or force of any kind, Jacobson said, "We don't have any report of that type of force used whatever."

He said the Mexican government claims a 12-mile seaward boundary and the "Mr. Tom" earlier had radioed that the fleet had been laying at anchor 12 to 15 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico from the Yucatan shore.

Ontario fatal shooting probed

ONTARIO — Police are continuing their investigation into the Friday night shooting death of Marvin Don Hermesch, 24, of 434 S. Cypress St.

Hermesch was shot 10 times with two different weapons following an argument with his roommate, Thomas Keith Stinson, 24.

Stinson, an unemployed carpenter. was arrested on suspicion of murder and booked without bail into West End Jail after Ontario police found Hermesch's body sprawled on the front lawn of the home at about 11:45 p.m.

According to San Bernardino County Deputy Coroner Harvey Castro, Hermesdh was shot at least six times in the upper portion of his body as he sat in an arm chair in the den of the house during the altercation in which both the victim and the suspect suffered bruises and scrapes.

Hermesch was able to make his way out of the house, but collapsed about 40 feet away on the front lawn. A preliminary coroner's examination revealed that he had been shot four times in the back, possibly as he ran out of the house.

Police reported both men were members of the Righteous Ones Motorcycle Club and may have shared the house with four other club members.

Claremont campership drive begins

CLAREMONT — The Claremont Coordinating Council is conducting its annual drive for campership funds from service clubs, parent-faculty associations and individuals.

"Some people find it difficult to believe there are children in Claremont schools who cannot afford the cost of a summer camp experience," commented Helen B. Frankel, campership committee chairman.

Mrs. Frankel reported that in 1973 the council was able to send 67 children to summer camp. Several had a chance to attend a resident camp, such as Girl Scout, Boy Scout, or Camp Fire Girls, while the majority participated in city or YMCA day camps, and one was enrolled in the Tiny Tot program.

Mrs. Frankel said that it has long been the responsibility of the council to seek contributions to send children to camp.

The campership committee this year is composed of Pat Lotz, Claremont school psychologist; Dennis Mann, Mountain View School principal; Dave Paul, vice principal at El Roble Intermediate School; Ron Hagan, city recreation superintendent; and Mrs. Frankel.

The committee sets up criteria to establish need of a child and selection of those going to camp. The council approves the committee's recommendations.

"Summer camp is a way to make it possible for needy youngsters to have something more than a summer of boredom and perhaps mischief," Mrs. Frankel said.

The council never has set a campership fund goal. Some members would like to set a goal; others would not.

A campership costs from $3 for day camp to $80 a week for resident camp.

Names of children who would like to attend camp but may not be able because of financial needs are referred to the campership committee by school principals, Claremont Family Service, the human resources department of the city, and the Tri-City Mental Health Authority.

The committee screens the children and may assign them to a camp according to their social, economic, and family needs.

Hagan said that the council hasn't received enough funds to meet the demands of referrals.

Council camperships are limited to Claremont residents.

Contributions to the campership fund may be mailed to Nancy Laird, council treasurer, 4113 Las Casas Ave., Claremont, 91711.

Death penalty

Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, 52-year-old former combat soldier, three-term governor, retiring from the Senate to devote his life to religion: Against.

In a frequently emotional debate last week, McClellan and Hughes outlined positions for and against capital punishment.

Then the Senate voted to restore the death sentence for treason, espionage, and other specified crimes when death occurs.

The Senate's action still needs House approval and will undoubtedly be tested before the Supreme Court. It could lead to the first executions in the United States since 1967.

Here are excerpts from their speeches:

McClellan:

"We are faced with a basic question—whether or not this country should have a death penalty at all.

"The answer to that question becomes clearer and clearer with every new kidnaping, with every new hijacking of a plane filled wtih innocent people, with every new murder by the Symbionese Liberation Army, with every murder committed for hire.

"The death penalty must be restored if our criminal justice system is to combat effectively the ever-increasing tide of violent crimes —crimes of terror —that threaten to engulf our nation and if the confidence of the American people in our system of justice is to be restored.

"...those who argue against the death penalty claim that it serves no useful purpose and should therefore be eliminated. Perhaps more importantly, they say that there is nc proof that it deters crime. I simply do not agree with that.

"Life is our most precious possession. So long as the premeditated murderer has his life there is the chance for parole, for freedom, for escape.

"Where the criminal —the murderer —knows that he is going to pay a price for his crimes and that price is death, he will be deterred. The criminal must be made to realize he is going to die himself if he chooses to murderously deprive someone else of his life."

Hughes:

"... The question before us today is symbolic and overriding —whether it is morally right and socially defensible for the state, under our system of criminal justice, to destroy a human life for any crime.

"How is it that a nation that has not suffered the brutality of a public execution for eight years is now deliberately considering going back to the hangman's noose, the electric chair, and the gas chamber

"Is the morbid trip back to the death penalty the right way to protect society from violence and to keep faith with our moral purpose as a people? Is ultimate voilence the antidote for violence. For me the answer must be no.

"I oppose the death penalty because it demeans human society without protecting it. The weight of evidence is that capital punishment does not deter crime.

"I oppose the death penalty because, as the Supreme Court has ruled, it is cruel and unusual punishment.

"It is capricious and unjust in its application. It discriminates against the luckless, the poor, and the racial minorities.

"I oppose the death penalty because it cannot undo or rectify any crime that was committed, however brutal, and because there is no road back if the convicted man is later proven innocent.

"I deeply believe that violence solves nothing, but only breeds more violence. I believe our reverence for human life — even that of the lowliest and most depraved —must transcend our atavistic passions for revenge if the human family is not going to go back to the caves.

"I ask my colleagues to join me in rejecting death, in affirming life; in rejecting vengeance, in affirming redemption."

U.S.-financed Thai troops to withdraw

BANGKOK (UPI) — All U.S. financed Thai irregular troops will be withdrawn from Laos before June 30 because of American budget cutbacks, police Gen. Vitoon Yasawas said recently.

Vitoon, a former commander of the Thai irregulars, told newsmen there are now about 10 battalions of Thai volunteers in Laos, comprising about 4,000 men.

The Thai volunteers operate in Laos under the Laotian government's "volunteer project" and have no official connection with the Thai government. The United States pays for their expenses, about $26 million a year, Vitoon said.

In the past decade, as many as 40,000 Thais fought in Laos. Vitoon placed casualties as between 700 and 800 killed and 2,300 men missing. He said the United States will not only compensate relatives of the dead and injured, but also pay each volunteer 100,000 baht ($5,000).

Vitoon said that since the Laotian peace agreement, the number of Thai irregulars has been steadily reduced, under terms of the peace agreement.

Golda Meir's popularity up

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The newspaper Haaretz said recently that a public opinion poll taken after the formation of Israel's new government shows an increase in Premier Golda Meir's popularity.

An estimated 30.7 per cent of the electorate now supports the 75-year-old grandmother as compared to 21.5 per cent last month, the poll reported. Her popularity rating, however, was normally much higher before the 1973 Middle East war.

The new labor minister, Yitzhak Rabin, a former chief of staff and ambassador to Washington, has doubled his popularity in the past month.

China painting exhibit planned

POMONA — Helen Tron Thompson of Upland will demonstrate china painting in the conference room of the Pomona Public Library at 10 a.m. March 28. Admission is free.

Mrs. Thompson, a former legal secretary, says she starts out with plain white china, usually German or Japanese, and then applies special paints made from minerals to create representative art pieces in the traditional area of flowers.

"China painting takes lots of time and a lot of practice," she said, but if you can draw, you can paint and express your feelings. Everyone loves roses, so I will demonstrate how to paint roses during my library talk."

Formerly of Pomona, Mrs. Thompson has been painting on china for many years.

How alcohol attacks cells in a hangover

By Lawrence E. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I think it would be of interest to many of us if you would explain just what happens to a person when he has a hangover.

What causes those awful eye pains and headache? Is it the alcohol's reaction on veins or muscles or both? Some people's hands shake so bad they can't hold a cup of coffee? Why? How about being thirsty all the time? What organs are affected to cause both vomiting and diarrhea? Are all organs of the body affected by alcohol?

DEAR READER—Alcohol is a cellular toxin. It seeps directly into any cell it comes in contact with. It coagulates protein, and you know that our cells contain lots of protein vital to their function. Our food and many other substances are transported into the cells through complex chemical processes, but alcohol goes right through.

In the bloodstream it causes the red blood cells to tend to stick together. In this way they can clump and plug up small arteries. This in turn interferes with getting oxygen to vital cells.

The headache and the eyeache, which can be a part of a hangover, are caused by the overdilatation of the arteries in the brain region and around the skull. These arteries have small nerve fibers in their walls. Tne overstretched arteries stimulate the tiny nerves too much and set up the pain pattern. Coffee contains caffeine, and this drug causes the arteries to constrict. By this action coffee sometimes helps to relieve the hangover headache.

The problem with using coffee is that the caffeine also stimulates the stomach to pour out a lot of acid pepsin juice. This is hard on a stomach already irritated by alcohol. The alcohol tends to dissolve away the protective mucus coating over the lining of the stomach, and the cells are exposed directly to the action of alcohol. This leads to inflammation of the stomach, pain, sometimes nausea and vomiting. A similar action is irritating to the intestines that disturbs their function which can lead to diarrhea.

Alcohol also causes the kidneys to eliminate a lot of water. This is brought about by a complex endocrine reflex mechanism. The end result is that the body loses a lot of water that it needs. That causes the thirst after the drinking episode. The thirst stimulates you to replace the needed body water.

With each alcoholic episode some brain cells are damaged, possibly from the alcohol action and possibly indirectly because of plugging up the small arteries with clumped red blood cells, decreasing oxygen delivery. In any case the person who drinks a lot loses the normal ability to learn, and after death the damaged areas of the brain can be observed.

The alcohol's bad effects on the nerve cells affect coordination, and the changes in body chemistry affect the muscle-nerve smooth coordination. As a result, shakes occur.

In general, alcohol does affect the whole body. I can't think of anything good it does except act as a social lubricant and a sedative—even the later is not always the case.

Tiny rock singer has clothing woes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rock superstar Rick Derringer likes to wear blue jeans or corduroys around his Versailles-like Greenwich Village duplex but said that when he picks up his guitar and starts singing "Rock and Roll Hoochie Koo" or some of his other hits he likes to feel flashy.

One of his favorite stage costumes is a stretchy and shiny pink lame jumpsuit with zippers everywhere, somewhere between a space suit and a fireman's asbestos costume for walking through the flames, worn with silver platform shoes and four-inch heels.

"If they see you in it they know you are ready for action," he said.

Derringer, 26, a native of Union City, Ind., has been associated with at least 10 gold records, which means that each sold in excess of 1 million records, and has amassed enough money to furnish his duplex with French antiques and Persian rugs for the apartment. His trouble is buying clothes —he is 5-feet-4½.

"When I walk into a store they take one look at me and say 'sorry, we haven't got anything that will fit you.' I'm so small I don't even know what size shirt I wear —I just go in and say 'give me the smallest thing you have.' Then I have it cut down to size.

Wife is tiny, too

"I gave up trying to buy business suits. They start at size 36 and I wear a 34. Sometimes I go into the boys' department and try out a size 18. So I've ended up with only one suit —a two-tone gray flannel cut in western style, made in London by Julian Craker. You know if you're a rock guy you got to keep up the image."

He and his wife Liz spend much of their spare time shopping for clothes when they travel to London and other far away places and she has some of the same troubles he has since she is only 4 feet-11. So a lot of their clothes have to be custom made.

Derringer was wearing a pair of Lee bluejeans when we talked with him the other day, but Liz had bleached them through some secret method of her own into a soft blue that was almost white. "They aren't scratchy any more," Derringer said.

Unusual shoes

With them he was wearing a pencil thin red leather belt, a flowered shirt from a shop called the "Uptight Village" — black silk printed in enormous flowers in every conceivable pastel shade, a red bandanna neckerchief, hair the color of wheat and down to his shoulders and a pair of enormous blue sunglasses with a black frame.

The shoes require a whole paragraph of their own. They were zippered calf-high boots in silver kidskin atop a two-inch thick black rubber platform sole and four inch black rubber heels. "I got them in Toronto," he said. "They were some sort of prototype and I guess they were the only ones ever made. The heels are like the rubber on a pencil and when you step down too hard they bend —and there goes your feeling of confidence."

"One of my problems is that I have to wear suits for special occasions. I was going to the Grammy awards so I went to a shop called Granny Takes a Trip and told them to fix me up. They made a black velvet suit size 34 and it fit fine. I wore it with a pink and silver shirt and black bow tie and a pair of black and silver shoes. But I didn't win a Grammy." He was nominated for his record "Frankenstein."

Rarely wears hats

A lot of his stage clothes are made in California by Bill Whitten of Workroom 26 who outfits such stage people as Doc Severensen, Elton John, The Temptations and Neil Diamond. "Unfortunately I can't afford to have him make all my clothes," he said.

One of his favorite non-stage garments is a winter coat made by Lorissa, the Russian-born designer who holds forth in Greenwich Village. It is a rough fur coat, tan, made with the fur inside. "She never cuts furs —just sews them together along their natural lines," he said. "Yes, it is sort of a rough looking coat."

He doesn't really wear hats except when the mood strikes him. If he feels like a cowboy he has a cowboy hat from Colorado. If he feels gangsterish he has a black velour with a brown band, and wears it with the wide brim snapped down over his eyes like in an early James Cagney movie. And if he feels artistic he wears a beret. "Let's face it," he said. "I have clown days and I have somber days."

Editor's Note: Many manufacturers make size 34 suits but stores do not stock them ordinarily and they must be ordered special by the store. Some suits also come as big as a 58 but they also have to be ordered.

In Sweden they also evade draft

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden, long a haven for American military objectors, has its own dodgers of military service. About 4,600 young men evaded the draft in the last seven years.

Draft Board figures show another 15,000 draftees requested not to carry guns during training but only half of them were successful in getting approval for non-combat status.

A Swedish draft dodger can be sentenced to a total six months in prison where he is generally put to the task of chopping wood to contribute to the national paper production.

Defense Minister Erik Holmquist does not regard the draft dodger figures as serious, saying "the number of draftees entering service is satisfactory." On average, about 60,000 Swedish young men are drafted each year for basic military training.

Holmquist, in discussing draft dodging, said that leftwing groups are trying to infiltrate army bases and indoctrinate the draftees.

Some militant organizations have begun working inside the army," the Defense Minister said. "They are systematically trying to use natural feelings of dissatisfaction among the draftees for their own purposes."

One Communist source told UPI that leftwing newspapers circulate in almost every army base in the country. "We encourage our own members to accept the draft because it is good to know how to use a rifle," the informant said.

The government is aware that it could be training potential agitators along with patriotic young Swedes and, Holmquist said, it "must try to find ways of stopping militants from entering basic military training."

A recent Psychological Defense Board opinion poll indicated that 50 per cent of Swedish males aged 15 to 29 think military expenditures should be cut or abolished completely. The latest proposed Swedish general budget, announced in January, allocates 8 billion kronor ($1.7 billion) for the military.

The same poll that showed half Sweden's young men opposed to military spending also showed that 86 per cent of the population as a whole favored continuation of compulsory military training for youth.

A leading appliance manufacturer has just come out with a refrigerator that can play music, record recipes, teach you a foreign language or talk back to your kids.

If it could cry, it could be a mother.

I don't know. I suppose a portable AM-FM radio, cassette tape player and recorder in your refrigerator door is harmless enough, but if you ask me appliances already are too pushy, too vocal and just plain spooky.

I've got a dancing washer that glides across the floor like a tourist in Mexico doing the Green Apple two-step . . . a dryer that summons me from wherever I am with a buzzer like a long belch . . . a garbage disposer that grinds its teeth like a snoring husband . . .and a Christmas tree that plays jingle bells and snows on itself.

Technology is just getting out of hand. Why, it wouldn't be two days until that refrigerator would be nagging, "Clean me . . . clean me."

Then the next thing you know it would be talking to the other appliances behind my back and the sweeper attachment for the blinds would be whispering, "Who won the '63 election? I never see HER anymore."

To gain the favor of the children, the refrigerator would play rock music and everytime I would discipline them, they would say hotly, "If what you say is true, then how come we didn't hear it on the refrigerator? I mean, why would a refrigerator lie?"

Then the refrigerator would set about to alienate my husband's affections by playing soft music, singing Spanish ballads and spitting out fresh ice cubes. He would eventually note that the refrigerator was good with the children, was always there when he got home, and never lost its car keys.

My best friend would come under the refrigerator's spell when it offered a large roomy freezing compartment for her extras, and told her she didn't look old enough to turn on the stove by herself.

Then to really squelch my status in the kitchen, it would wait until my mother-in-law was there and when she turned to the refrigerator and asked, "Did you say something?" the refrigerator would reply, "No, it must have been Erma's leftovers. They talk a lot among themselves."

Now that I think about it, that lousy refrigerator would tear our family apart!

Just the thought was enough to make me go over to my old refrigerator and warn, "One word from you, Buster, and you're out!"

Her mother understood

By JEAN ADAMS

THANKS: (Comment) I want to thank my mother for understanding me.

I lost my boy friend just before the Christmas holidays. He doesn't like me any more but I still care for him. My mother understood why my Christmas and New Year were spoiled. It was so good for me to know that she understood how I felt.

She didn't say anything. She just had a little touch for my hand, or a little kiss for my cheek, or she just held me a second.

My Christmas holidays were sad, but I'll never forget what my mother did for me. — Grateful in Michigan.

SHOOT-OUT — "When Horse Flesh Comes High," a painting depicting a shoot-out between horse thieves and a posse of ranchers, is among the 28 selections from the works of Charles Russell and Frederic Remington now being displayed at the Pomona Valley Center. It is a People's Gallery exhibit.

Old West lives again in exhibit

Originals of the current 28 fine art works were made available through the courtesy of the Amon Carter Museum, the Thomas Gilrease Institute of Tulsa, Okla. and the Montana Historical Society of Helena.

East, West Germany battle over 'queen'

BERLIN (UPI) — One of the first acts of the victorious powers at the end of World War II was to dissolve the state of Prussia, the largest state in the German Reich and the symbol of German power and militarism.

Prussia itself was fragmented. Forty per cent of its old territory now is part of West Germany. Twenty-one per cent is part of East Germany. The remaining 39 per cent was placed under Polish and Russian administration in the Potsdam agreement.

But 29 years after the war a quarrel over Prussia's cultural heritage is straining East-West German relations and blocking conclusion of a cultural agreement between the two German states.

The dispute centers around possession of such priceless treasures as the bust of the Egyptian Queen Nefertiti, 26 Rembrandt paintings, three Manets, four Monets, a Gutenberg Bible, Beethoven's last musical notes and countless books, letters, autographs and works of art.

They belonged to Prussia and were kept on the "museum island" off Unter den Linden in Berlin.

During the war many of the works were moved to the West for safekeeping. They were brought back to the western part of the city after the war and kept in museums there as property of the new Foundation of Prussian Cultural Possessions.

Now East Germany is demanding them on the grounds that the museum island where they originally were kept is located in East Berlin.

"Whoever wants Nefertiti is just wasting his breath trying to negotiate about it," West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz said in rejecting the demand. "They aren't going to get it."

The committee for East-West German relations of the West German Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, described the East German demand as both politically and legally wrong.

The West German claim is based on a four-power Allied Control Council decision of 1947 that gave the property of the dissolved state of Prussia to the new post-war states in which it was then located.

At that time the works of art were in the West and therefore belonged to West Germany, in the western view.

The Control Council that made the decision was the supreme governing body in Germany. It was composed of the military governors of the American, British, French and Russian zones.

Lou Antonio doesn't fret over series stars

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lou Antonio probably has the most difficult acting assignment in television. All his scenes are played with award-winning actresses Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick in "The Snoop Sisters."

He appeared in two plays with Mildred Natwick in New York, including his first Broadway Show, "The Good Soup."

As Barney, the chauffeur, on the new NBC series Lou works sporadically because only four episodes of the show are filmed each season. His schedule allows plenty of free time for his avocation —directing.

Takes notes

Since moving to Hollywood from New York five years ago, Lou has directed a number of television episodes, including "McCloud," "Griff" and "Owen Marshall" in 1973.

During his 10 years in New York (he's a native of Oklahoma City), Lou kept a log of all his theatrical appearances, taking notes of everything that happened during performances and rehearsals.

In addition to preparing him for directing, the logs enabled him to familiarize himself with the structure of plays and screen riting.

He wrote a movie for Dennis Weaver, "Mission Batangas," and a play for the Actors Studio which starred Weaver, Barbara Bain and Leslie Warren.

Cripple Creek cook

Lou is more than a triple threat man with his writing, directing, acting. He claims to be one of the finest chefs west of the Pecos or maybe even the Poconos.

At the age of 19 he was a professional cook in Cripple Creek, Colo. Not that his experience was comparable to heading the culinary staff at the Waldorf, but he did learn how to prepare gourmet meals.

His dexterity in the kitchen is a blessing to his wife, actress Lane Bradbury, who doesn't lift a finger in the kitchen when Lou isn't working in the series. When the show is in production he has fairly decent hours, 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. At those times Lane prepares dinner.

Otherwise she and frequent dinner guests can expect gustatory delights from a variety of cuisines —Greek, French, Italian and American.

For whatever reason, Lou dislikes seeing Lane in the kitchen. This attitude makes for a happy marriage, as do the couple's two young daughters.

Own fine horses

The family is rounded out by a pair of Afghan hounds, Tu and Afancy, and a cat, named Beans, who was palmed off on them by a false friend.

Home for the Antonios is a horseshoe-shaped country English house in Burbank hard by the entrance to Griffith Park.

They chose the location purposely —and probably the shape of the house —because Lou and Lane own a pair of championship saddle-bred riding horses.

Their lot is large enough for a couple of stables and they have virtually scores of miles of riding trails in sprawling Griffith Park.

Lane rides almost every day, Lou frequently accompanies her. But he rides a former grand champion pinto, Dalliance. Lane rides the fiery young Hootsudie, a jumper which she also rides in horse shows.

Never conforms

Cups and Ribbons, won at shows, adorn several rooms in the house. Lane has been riding since she was five years old. Lou is of the Oklahoma riding academy where he was taught to jump on and hang on.

The house is decorated with fine antiques. Lou's favorite is a rolltop desk he bought for $35 in Grandview, N.Y. It is now worth $600. He uses it as a working desk when he's writing in his office, a converted den.

During his decade in New York Lou was never one to conform. When other actors wore suits he settled for blue jeans and sweaters. He still does. Even his wardrobe on the show is not that of the typical chauffeur. He wears denims.

Fake friar burns a jewelry store

ROME (UPI) — A robber dressed as a Franciscan friar pulled a pistol from his robes recently and took about $170,000 worth of jewelry from a shop near Via Veneto, police said.

The "friar" escaped in a waiting car.

L.V. woman to appear on TV 24

A La Verne woman, who has her own music studio, Harmony House, in Pomona, will appear on Channel 24, San Bernardino, on Monday at 9:30 p.m. and again March 30 at 10 p.m.

She is Hildegard Zentarra, a native of Germany, who received her music education at the Conservatory of Music in Leipzig and at the Staatliche Hochschule of Music in Trossingen, Germany.

Mrs. Zentarra taped the two programs earlier this week. The format includes a

Noise pollution potential killer

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (UPI) — In the city these days you put your hands to your ears and scream —"The noise is killing me."

You may be on the right track.

Dr. John E. Watson, chief of audiology-speech pathology at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Palo Alto, Calif., says researchers have killed mice in one minute with 175 decibels of noise.

Writing on noise for Medical Times, a medical journal, Dr. Watson quotes the former chancellor of the University of California at Los Angeles, Dr. Vern O. Knudsen.

The schoolman has cautioned that noise levels in large cities could, if unchecked, become lethal in 30 years.

Noise pollution is one undersirable waste product of our mechanized society. Cars, trucks, trains, planes, factories and many appliances combine to rob us of our tranquility.

They may also steal from us our hearing —and more. Noise can raise blood pressure, impede convalescence, and hinder concentrated mental effort.

Chances are that everyone is threatened by noise pollution. Dr. Watson says an estimated 16 million workers have suffered varying degrees of hearing loss.

Children in schools have their learning process interrupted by jet noise. Persons living near airports are adversely affected by it.

Patients in hospitals are subjected to noise which may aggravate their conditions. Hi-fi enthusiasts, rock music fans, professional pilots, gun fanciers, and even housewives all face potential physical and emotional problems stemming from noise.

Something can be done to reverse this dangerous trend toward a noisier environment. In a special statement for Medical Times, Russell E. Train, the administrator of the United States Environmental Protection Agency, stated that the technology to reduce noise exists.

What is required is a concentrated effort to see that it is used. The federal, state and local governments must work with industry and the scientific community to cut down noise pollution.

Congress has passed the Federal Noise Control Act, which gives the Environmental Protection Agency power to set emission standards for all noise sources which may be a threat to public health and welfare.

It will also coordinate existing government noise programs to ensure a quieter environment. Recommendations also will be made regarding airplane noise and flight procedures.

Industry will be required to provide noise-reduction programs for workers. The World Health Organization estimates that noise costs $4 billion a year in inefficiency, accidents, absenteeism.

To reduce the damage, companies will be asked to make changes ranging from providing ear plugs to workers, all the way to rebuilding plants.

Venomous octopus bites are possible

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: I watched an underwater TV movie in which the divers petted and played with an octopus. In fact it became their pet. I had always assumed before than an octopus could bite. Does this mean I am wrong? — A.A.

Dear A.A.: No, it doesn't. Other pets, i.e. dogs and cats, can bite but that doesn't mean they do, necessarily. Octopi are interesting (often surprisingly friendly) pets. But they, too, CAN bite. All come equipped with a pair of sharp horny jaws similar in shape to a parrot's beak. In addition, the salivary glands of some octopi are known to contain venoms. So venomous bites are a possibility.

DEAR DR. MILLER: This parakeet of mine has been listless and has had his feathers always puffed. He sleeps most of the day. I have been giving him some medicine in his water for two weeks now, but it hasn't helped. He doesn't get any worse but he doesn't get any better. What can I do to get him well again? — S.J.

Dear S.J.: Whether anyone (the doctor, specifically) can do anything to get him well again would depend upon whether or not you get him in for diagnosis and treatment in time.

Parakeets are plucky little birds and put up as good a front as possible. Frequently a bird who acts "no worse" from day to day is really going down hill rapidly. Yet, because it tries so hard to respond to its owner regardless of how sick it is, the owner fails to realize in time how critical the situation really is.

A bird, obviously sick, should be immediately checked by the doctor. A bird not acting quite right should be watched closely for two or three days and it it is eating less than normal and continues to act strangely, it, too, should be examined.

Fishing, boating, swimming

S.B. County opening regional park in June

CUCAMONGA — Residents can fish, paddle or swim when the Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park opens here next June. Or if they don't like the water, they can have a picnic, hike or ride their bikes.

All these activities will be allowed in the first half of the county park, which is located on the east side of Archibald Avenue north of the San Bernardino Freeway.

County officials plan to dedicate the first 54 acres on May 18. The park, however, won't be open to the public until June. The second segment, consisting of 51 acres, is proposed to be developed next year on the west side of Archibald Avenue. This will include several lakes for fishing.

The first phase, costing $700,000, includes two lakes—one for boating and fishing and one for fishing—and a one-acre swimming pool. The park will also have 100 picnic units, hiking and biking trails, concession stands and a floating boat dock.

Both the eight-acre and two-acre lakes will be filled with water from the Colorado River. The lakes have been dug and water is expected to be turned on by April 15.

"We expect to use Colorado River water imported here for the first two years," said Andrew Easterbrook, park superintendent. "Then we anticipate receiving Feather River water."

Both lakes will be stocked with trout, catfish and crappies. Visitors will be able to rent fishing gear, row boats, paddle boats or kuyaks.

While the parents are fishing, youngsters may swim in a sand-bottom swimming area nearby. The pool, containing 1.48 million gallons of water, will accommodate up to 900 swimmers at a time.

Three large filters will constantly strain and cleanse the water.

"We plan to hire six lifeguards, with at least two on duty at all times," said Easterbrook.

"This is primarily a day use park and is expected to attract 86,000 persons its first year. We anticipate a heavy use of the swimming area by youngsters from nearby residential areas."

The park also has seven buildings. These include two restroom structures; gatehouse with offices and maintenance facilities; boathouse with vending machine and restrooms; concession building with snack bar, restrooms and dressing areas; guard building with first aid station; and a storage building.

It will have a full time staff of seven park rangers, plus seasonal lifeguards.

Two entry fee schedules will be observed. For the summer—from May until September—the cost will be 50 cents per car and driver and 10 cents for each passenger and also 10 cents for pedestrians or bike riders.

For the winter, the cost will be 50 cents for each car and all the occupants and 10 cents for pedestrians and bike riders.

The winter months will be geared primarily for fishing, he reported.

The park development is a joint project involving San Bernardino County's park department, flood control district and the Chino Basin Water Conservation District. It will serve a dual role of water conservation and recreation.

Funding has been received from federal, state and county sources.

"The project, due to its size and nature, will be most attractive to people of the area and will go a long way toward serving their regional recreation needs," said County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell, who promoted the park's development.

"Population within a 45-mile radius of the park will grow to over six million people by 1980. The one-hour travel time, however, could extend to 60 miles by then and would include a population of nearly 10 million."

At present, only small community and neighborhood parks serve the recreational needs for residents in the Etiwanda, Cucamonga, Guasti, Ontario, Upland and Montclair areas, he added.

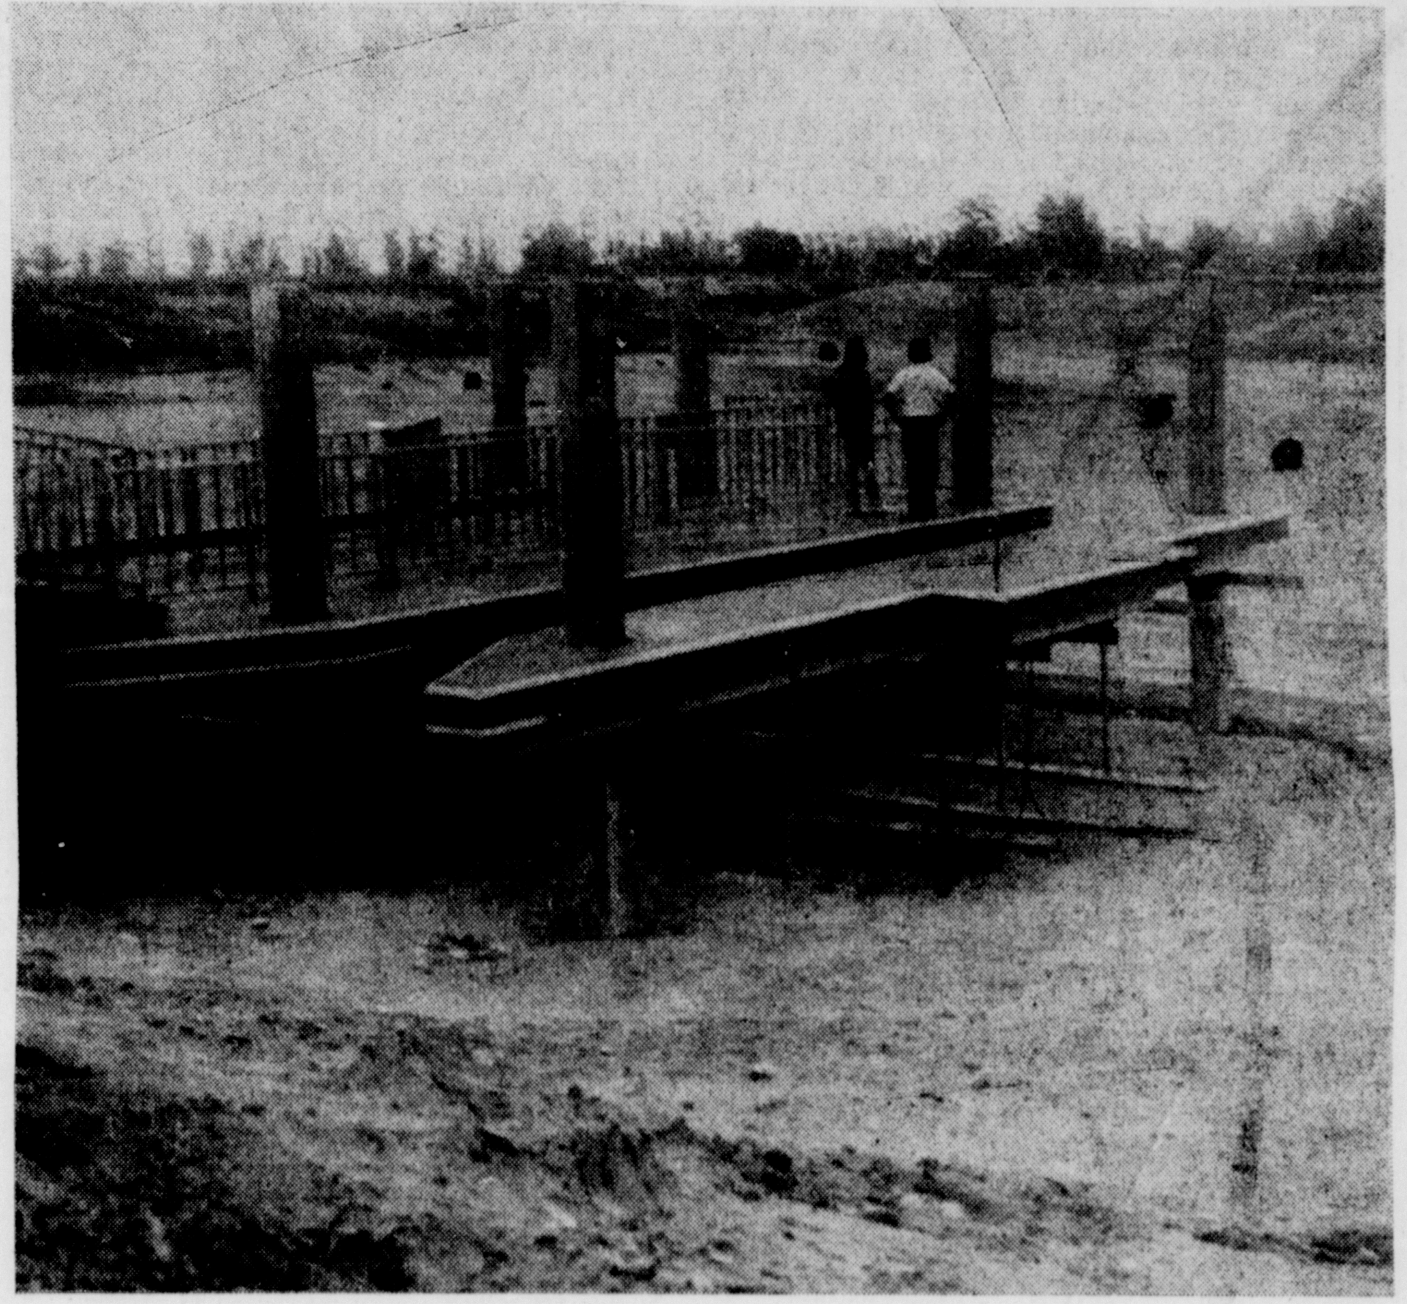
GETTING READY FOR OPENING

Picnic tables being assembled for future use at the Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park line one side of the park's main lake. A boathouse and dock are seen in the background. The lake's bed will be filled next month with water imported from the Colorado River. Old tires in the bed are for fish.



WAITING FOR A BOAT

Two men stand on a boat dock at the Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park which will soon be surrounded by an eight-acre fishing and boating lake. The park opening is set for next June.

Claim paid for missing items in Cheyenne move

When I moved from Cheyenne to Pomona in September 1973, I shipped my personal belongings.

Some were in parcels and some were in suitcases. One parcel and one suitcase were lost.

In that suitcase and parcel were a new chest of silverware, including service for eight, and some articles of clothing.

I reported the loss at the time to the local agent. I have signed a tracer and baggage claim.

Although I have hounded the local agent time and time again to produce the missing articles or a settlement, there have been no results.—M.C., Pomona.

We contacted the agent. Expressing regret for the delay, he said he had asked you to send in sales slips, invoices or canceled checks to substantiate your claim.

This procedure was required, he told us, by tariff regulations. He said you have ignored this request but have insisted upon prompt settlement of the claim.

You said you couldn't come up with those papers, particularly for your clothes.

The agent then asked that you send a list of articles and an estimate of their value, allowing for depreciation.

You did so and received a check for $102.56.

Because of my wife's disability, Social Security payments have been granted for her and also for our children.

She has received her payments regularly but none have come for the three children. They have been due since October.

We need the money. I have missed work to go to the Social Security office and have also written but have received neither answer nor payments.

I'm tired of begging for something that belongs to us.—M.K.C., Pomona

Two weeks after we contacted the Social Security office, we received a reply to the effect that the retroactive payments had been ordered by teletype and should have arrived.

We checked back with you and learned that you had received checks totaling $471, representing retroactive pay and an additional one month payment.

You said it was considerably less than you expected but you were grateful for our help.

I need help. About two months ago I took my stereo back to the place where I bought it because it needed repairs.

The clerk said it would be repaired within three weeks. It wasn't. I was told it would be a few more weeks.

The manager said he had sent a letter to the company which manufactures the unit and he hoped the unit would come with the return letter.

I really can't believe this because when I was waiting for the first three weeks I was told that the trucking strike was causing a delay. I seem to get some excuse whenever I talk with people at the store.—R.W., San Dimas.

When we wrote to the store, we got no answer let alone excuses. But your stereo was repaired and back in your possession within a few days and we think it was due partly to Action Line's high fidelity.

Mini-warehouse project to get council hearing

POMONA — The City Council will hold a hearing Monday night on an appeal filed against the Planning Commission's denial of a conditional use permit for the construction of a mini-warehouse development at 2735 N. Towne Ave.

The appellant is T. D. Caswell of the Saf-T-Storage company. He is being represented by attorney James S. Baker.

At its meeting Feb. 13, the commission approved Caswell's requests for an exemption declaration from an environmental impact report and for a variance, subject to approval of the permit by the council.

A motion to approve the application for the permit failed because of a 3-3 tie vote.

Other matters scheduled for the council's 8 p.m. meeting include:

—Hearing on the notice to owner to abate the nuisance of substandard buildings at 1376 S. San Antonio Ave.

—First reading of an ordinance requiring a conditional use permit for the conversion of a service station and-or car wash to some other use.

—Notice of application for on-sale beer and wine license for the Razzmatazz, 2180 Valley Blvd.

—Resolutions declaring the public necessity for acquisition of certain easements for street purposes in connection with the construction of Valley Boulevard, from Grand Avenue to Pomona Boulevard, and authorizing execution of a right-of-way certificate for the project.

—Resolution, held over from March 18, setting local guidelines for the Governmental Conflict of Interest Act.

—Four resolutions of intention to vacate Thomas Street, from Mission Boulevard to Fourth Street; to vacate a north-south alley from Mission to Fourth Street between Thomas and Garey Avenue; to vacate a portion of Pomona Boulevard within the Southern Pacific right-of-way; and to vacate a narrow strip on Fourth between Garey and Thomas Street.

—Recommendation by the city staff that the council and Cal Poly jointly request participation by Los Angeles County in paying for a proposed traffic signal on Temple Avenue at a new entrance to the university campus.

—Recommendation for the adoption of the California Relocation Guidelines.

—Request from Schaefer Ambulance Service Inc. for council reconsideration of a present agreement under which the firm provides, without reimbursement, services to indigent legal residents of the city.

MSAC's do-it-yourself experiment

Learning business skills by machines

WALNUT — An experiment in business education that will allow students to take "skill subjects" for credit in their spare time at their own pace will be offered next year at Mt. San Antonio College.

A proposal to buy $33,753 worth of equipment from the J. F. Northcutt Co. of Riverside to establish 46 carrels—stations—was approved recently by the board of trustees.

The project, as submitted by Robert Meirding, dean of business education, would start off with instructions in typing, shorthand, spelling and vocabulary building, and a course in business math.

Meirding said the stations will be equipped with slides, slide projectors and cassette tapes synchronized with the projectors.

The student will learn through instructions from the tapes and demonstrations from the slides. His work will be monitored by an instructor.

The project, to be known as the Individual Self-Pacing Program, (ISP) would be open day and night as well as on Saturdays, and students would spend time at their stations at their convenience, going from lesson to lesson.

Meirding said similar projects are being used succesfully at several other colleges in Southern California.

He said the program would be worked up next fall and would be offered next spring. It will be flexible enough to allow students to register for the ISP courses any time during the first four weeks of operation.

"The student will be competing only with himself," according to Meirding. "So there won't be any classroom or peer pressure."

He said if the program is successful it will be extended to include many additional subjects.

EDITORIAL Opinion

Supervisors' vote par for the course

Mountain Meadows Golf Course located on the eastern extremity of Frank Bonelli Regional Park used to be an 18-hole championship course and the pride of Pomona Valley.

Today it is in a state of partial neglect, a sad shadow of its former self, having been carved in two parts by a road that could easily have circumvented the course had the park planners and engineers used a little judgment and foresight.

A spectacular plan for a modern 18-hole course with an appropriate clubhouse to meet multi-purpose public needs of the cities of Pomona Valley was planned. However, these have been scrapped or scaled down so that they no longer could be called adequate, much less dramatic.

A year ago Supervisor Peter Schabarum, in talks before local groups, promised that the retrenchment of Mt. Meadows to a nine-hole course was only temporary and that an 18-hole course would be constructed by private interests.

Since then the county has been negotiating with a golf development firm headed by golf pro Billy Casper and until about a week ago it appeared that a new course was in the offing. Last week the project was all but scuttled when two supervisors would not side with Schabarum and two other supervisors in approving a long-term lease with Casper and Associates for rebuilding the course and putting up a new clubhouse.

It seems incredible that a county project of this scope could have progressed to the lease signing stage without board consensus. It is just as incredible that the supervisors would allow petty politics that have marked board proceedings in recent months to surface continually to the detriment of the people they are supposed to serve.

Bonelli Park and the golf course should not be made a political football to be kicked around by the board of supervisors.

They, of all people, should never lose sight of the fact that it is the people who bought and paid for the golf course and it should be operated in their best interest. The evidence to date would indicate that it is just the contrary.

Women dig in

As the Women's Lib movement strides onward, the gals are digging deeper and deeper into areas previously fenced off to them.

Literally.

According to a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor two young women employes of a Bethlehem Steel mining subsidiary in Kentucky have broken old barriers of superstition and work rules and now are regularly laboring as deep as a mile underground. They are the first women to work inside U.S. coal mines under United Mine Workers contracts. Fifty dollars a day.

The girls admit to being terrified the first day, as who wouldn't? And despite the fact that for as long as old timers can remember it has been considered the worst sort of omen for a woman to go down a mine shaft, today their fellow workers seem to be getting accustomed to it. Some even enjoy it.

So far as is known, the most logical complaints come from wives of the men employed at the mine. Several have pointed out that miners often work in pairs in isolated areas.

Love and romance, of course, know no barriers; but a mile deep in a black mine shaft?

A new sports low

When the women's magazine struck back at the chauvinism of men's publications which featured nude female centerfolds, by printing its own with a male as the star in the buff, it started something.

You might simply call it centerfolding. Not to be confused with streaking, although both involve nudity.

Centerfolding was the announced raison d'etre of that mass venture in indecent exposure by San Diego State University's rugby team, in which the 35 players posed nude on the Aztec Bowl bleachers for a photographer. Their explanation: They had been offered $600 for use of the photo as a women's magazine centerfold. They did it for old alma mater, "to promote the noble game of rugby football."

Streaking is prankish indecent exposure on the run. If the Aztec photo deal doesn't pan out, the boys might consider melding centerfolding and streaking by playing their games nude. Should hypo attendance.

Pres. Nixon's secret cache of tapes

WASHINGTON — President Nixon maintains a mysterious "private, personal file" of intimate conversations on dictabelts which he has cached in a top security filing cabinet in the White House basement.

This is the secret testimony of the President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, given during a two-hour session on February 20 to Senate Watergate lawyers.

The President, she swore, "from time to time, for his own, private, personal files does do some tapes. I have been in the Lincoln Sitting Room at times when he will remember something from a conversation and put on a dictabelt . . ."

At that point, apparently realizing she had let a White House cat out of the bag, Miss Woods paused and hastily added, "such as 'Julie said this or that to me.' "

She said "those personal, private dictabelts . . . are put in an envelope — maybe we get two or three at a time — they may be three weeks apart.

"We have no idea of what is on them — they are his own personal, private things which are not transcribed. They are put in an envelope, sealed up and the date we received them is put on the envelope."

As far as we can determine, this is the first mention of this hidden stash of tapes. None, according to Watergate investigators, have ever been turned over to the Special Prosecutor, the Senate Watergate Committee or the House impeachment panel.

Pressed during her secret testimony by assistant Watergate counsel Terry Lenzner, Miss Woods said the tapes are "kept in his filing cabinets" in a secure area "on the basement floor in the West Wing" of the White House.

Although not under oath for her testimony, Miss Woods after reading an 80-page transcript of it, swore to it on Thursday. She made these other points:

—She has made a detailed statement to the Internal Revenue Service on the $100,000 donation given by Howard Hughes to Bebe Rebozo for President Nixon. The statement, prepared by White House lawyer Fred Buzhardt, was requested in connection with an IRS investigation of Rebozo. Assisting Rebozo with his IRS problems, she said, is the crack Philadelphia lawyer now also helping President Nixon on his tax problems, Kenneth Gemmill.

—Miss Woods' brother, Joe Woods, an ex-FBI agent and now a sheriff in Illinois, was considered for a security job by White House Watergate gumshoe Jack Caulfield. Miss Woods told her brother "not to join with them unless he was in charge because I think my brother is a lot brighter than any group Jack Caulfield would have gotten together." Miss Woods was right: Caulfield got caught in a pailful of unsavory Watergate activities.

—Unlike President Nixon who always seemed to make a profit in his dealings with Rebozo, Miss Woods said she "took a capital gains loss" when she sold her shares in Rebozo's Fishers Island real estate project. She disposed of them, she thought, through former White House lawyer Edward Morgan.

While often biting and even sarcastic, Miss Woods' testimony is full of insights into the White House and the President. At one point, she illustrated poignantly his mania for saving every scrap of Nixoniana — a squirreling away that finally created a tape-and-paper rope which is now hanging him.

"He saves everything," she said, her tone softening. "He saves place cards, menus even. One Halloween, we were at Camp David and he and Mrs. Nixon invited me to dinner . . . The steward put a colored mask on each of the three plates — I know Mrs. Nixon put hers in the wastebasket and I did mine," she said.

But Nixon sent his mask to her to be "sealed in an envelope and put away." He also saved "little notes from Julie — from Tricia," all with the same pack rat diligence that presumed the Watergate tapes currently being used to indict his closest associates.

During the testimony, committee counsel Sam Dash promised Miss Woods' lawyer, Charles Rhyne, "I can assure you as much as humanly possible, not a word of this interview will be out . . . We will have just one copy and I will put it in my safe and seal it."

Actually, it was Rhyne who duplicated the transcript and sent it to the committee staff and members, thus leading indirectly to our obtaining it.

In a moment of rare levity, Miss Woods said she herself had come to call the list of contributors she kept "Rose Mary's baby." But she said she had never heard of the "Alpha 4" list we described in a recent column because "I never read Jack Anderson." The list, actually, was not made up at the White House, but, as we reported, at the Nixon campaign committee.

At another point, she was asked about a Howard Hughes contribution for the 1972 campaign of $16,000, but she said "I could not tell you" if it were on her own list which, she added, is often used for deciding on who gets invited to "White House entertaining."

As to other files, she said she was "sure there must be a file on F. Donald Nixon," the President's brother, at the White House. "I have never seen it because I have never gone through the file room," she went on. Despite her earlier disclaimer about reading our column, she said she thought she had first learned that the White House was bugging Don Nixon "in Mr. Anderson's column."

The committee lawyers pushed the peppery Miss Woods hardest on how Rebozo came to tell her of the $100,000 Hughes contribution.

"Why was he telling you?" asked counsel Lenzner.

"I would not know," she replied. "I gather in case anything happened to him, he would want someone to be aware of it — that is my guess." She said Rebozo also told his lawyer the $100,000 was being kept in a safe deposit box.

"He told his lawyer, why would he have to tell you?" inquired Dash.

"I think he trusted his lawyer but I don't know how much you trust anyone with that much cash — would certainly tell two people," she replied. She said she assumed Rebozo held on to the money, given as early in 1969, because the Hughes business deals "were in such turmoil."

She said Rebozo eventually returned exactly the same bills he had gotten from Hughes.

Her sympathies were all with her "good friend" Rebozo on the IRS investigation, she indicated in describing how she learned of the probe.

"It is a big problem for a man trying to run a bank to have an investigation," she explained. "He called and we were talking and he said, "Well, the IRS has even moved in here' . . . I am sure he was upset as you would be."

Gossip for today

I never cease to marvel at the amazing discoveries today's scientists and medical experts are making. Would you believe, for instance, that we are born with 14 billion brain nerve cells? It's a fact! Unfortunately however, by age 80 we begin losing them at the rate of about 100,000 cells a day. Yet the more I think about those startling statistics the more convinced I become that they are over generous, actually giving human beings far more credit than they deserve. Most of us, I feel sure, start losing our brain cells long before we reach 80 years of age, and I have the case histories to prove it.

How about that Eastern tourist who came to California to see the old Spanish missions and complained bitterly because he couldn't find Mission Impossible? Or the dub golfer, intent on improving his game, who went to the library and asked for a copy of "The Happy Hooker"? And let's not forget the young bride who thought that twin beds were for twins.

Which reminds me. Speaking of beds, whether they be twin, king size or queen, they're in for a lot of trouble if another report from our medical experts is true. They claim there are now 16 million bed wetters in the United States.

And I might even have been able to analyze for you the announcement that human beings are seven-tenths water had it not been that I got the news while I was adding a third vodka and tonic to my water content. Apparently I have just lost my 100,000 quota of brain cells for the day.

Death penalty bill overrules high court

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Senate oratory acquired unaccustomed style last week, when members debated and passed a bill restoring capital punishment for certain specific crimes.

Passage of the measure was virtually assured, but opponents did not quit easily. Emotions erupted quickly, as first one side then the other made its point.

Proponents resented charges that they were legislating a return to the dark ages. Opponents expressed anger that they were being made part of the mechanics that could eventually circumvent the 1972 Supreme Court decision that said capital punishment is "cruel and inhuman."

The final version of the bill, which passed by a substantial margin, is not Draconian by nature. In fact, it might be exceedingly lenient in certain areas. But it is a direct attempt to overrule the high court ruling that has virtually eliminated the death penalty.

A major argument against restoration of capital punishment has always been that it is not the deterrent it's supposed to be. However, testimony before Sen. John McClellan's crime committee suggests capital punishment plays a strong role in stopping violent crimes.

The district attorney of Philadelphia told McClellan's panel that years of contact with hardened criminals had convinced him the death penalty does a job no other form of judicial punishment can.

Arlen Specter, no hard-liner on law and order—in fact, he is a longtime liberal Republican—said: "Too many times hardened criminals have openly admitted to me or to members of my staff that they don't carry weapons because of their fear of the death penalty."

A guard was being held hostage by an inmate who threatened the man's life by throwing him from a fourth story ledge.

When Mandel tried to reason with the prisoner, and talk him into releasing the guard, the inmate replied, "Look, I'd just as soon push him out. I'm here under life sentence, and all they can do is give me another life sentence, so what difference does it make?"

Mandel told him a state mandate could result in the death penalty being imposed if the guard were murdered. A hasty consultation between inmates ensued and the guard was released, unharmed.

Of course, as it was often pointed out during Senate debate, there is no way to determine the percentage of murders which are not committed for fear of death.

Sen. James Buckley (Conn.-N.Y.) said, "What bothers me, in short is the haunting fear that by proscribing the death penalty more or less absolutely, for fear that we may be doing moral damage to our respect for life, we may in fact be doing a graver injustice by endangering the lives of many innocent people."

The scare of executing an innocent man still exists. But in today's extra-sensitive judicial approach towards individual rights, and with the guaranteed system of appeals, there is a locked-in certainty everything possible will be done to insure against that eventuality.

And, as Sen. Buckley points out, surely more people are in danger of being victimized by violent crime than could ever be harmed by our method of justice.

Highway 'Patrol Person'? It may be just down road

By L. T. ROGERS
Assistant City Editor

CLAREMONT — Don't get shook if some day that traffic officer who stops you on the freeway has a ponytail.

And be careful not to say "sir" when asked for your driver's license. The officer may prefer to be called "ma'am."

The state's freeways and highways, now patrolled by highway patrolmen, may soon be patrolled by patrol persons.

State Sen. Lawrence E. Walsh has proposed legislation whereby women can become regular members of the California Highway Patrol.

He has worked with CHP Commissioner Walter Pudinski in developing a two-year pilot program to determine the feasibility of using women in patrol work.

They have been used on a limited basis in patrol cars for police and sheriff's departments but this experience doesn't cover women patrolling isolated areas or in severe weather conditions, said Walsh.

"In most instances, women on patrol are in populated areas where additional help is available. The person patrolling our highways may be many miles from assistance.

"I'm sure there are many women qualified and ready to join the ranks of our police force. I'm not sure that our current police practices are geared for them. This is the reason I am suggesting a pilot program."

Meanwhile, Commissioner Pudinski stated he is reluctant to include women in future recruiting activities until sufficient research has been accomplished to prove the feasibility of such employment.

If it were proved, then he would consider such appointments only after the proper formats for recruitment, training and utilization in the field were made available to him.

This hasn't been completed, no such research is under way, nor is it contemplated elsewhere, he added.

Pudinski is willing to undertake the program provided these conditions are met: the courts and other elements of government wouldn't force by decree the employment of women until after the research program was completed and the results evaluated; and a source outside state government, such as the Ford Foundation or the federal government, would provide $1 million to fund the research program.

"In return, the CHP would within two years of receipt of the funds identify, recruit, train and complete a one year probation period with a class of 30 women," he said.

Pudinski stipulated the entire project would be in the nature of research and no time did he agree that any successful candidates would automatically become permanent CHP members.

Capt. W. C. Jones, commander of the Claremont office, said he had mixed feelings about women joining the CHP ranks.

"There are some areas where they can do just as good a job as men, such as driving a patrol car, investigating traffic accidents, or assisting disabled motorists.

"But women are not normally as strong as men and there are times this strength is needed, such as when wrestling drunk drivers or pulling open the door of a wrecked car," he added.

"I still have a tendency to put women on a pedestal and would be hesitant to put a female officer in a patrol car and assign her to a desolate area."

There is always a chance they would have to face a weapon, said Jones. "It is tragic for a male officer to be wounded or killed. But for a woman, this would be doubly tragic."

The commander said he believed that persons capable of doing certain jobs should receive comparable pay. "And women are often relegated to second class status in their pay."

Jones said she has long believed there is a place for women in police departments. They can work in such jobs as the juvenile bureau. "In certain crimes, women and children victims may be more at ease in discussing these with women officers."

There is some question on the recruitment of women officers.

No such applications have been received at the Claremont office, declared Jones. And an informal poll of the seven women on the office staff showed none would be interested in applying for such a job.

"I would like the salary but not the hours," said one clerk. "I might enjoy the work but my husband may object to me riding with a male officer," said another.

Several clerical workers indicated there are jobs within the patrol that could be handled by women. These include inspecting cars on vehicle inspection lanes, serving as court officers, and investigating accidents.

"But I don't believe women are capable of handling the patrol duties and making arrests," one offered.

In response to these special jobs, Jones said it is difficult to separate these assigned tasks since all sworn personnel have the basic responsibility of providing traffic enforcement.

"As an example, women officers could have handled the escort duties of taking vehicles through heavy fog on the Pomona Freeway this week," he said.

"But what would happen if that woman officer came upon a drunk driver while going to or from the freeway?" he asked.

What is the response of male officers to a possible coed patrol force?

"How would I explain my partner to my wife?" offered one.

School clubs get deal: cash for clearing litter

CLAREMONT — Students at Claremont High School have accepted the opportunity of keeping their campus clean of litter and at the same time making money for the club of their choice.

Principal Alex Hughes announced that an amount equal to half the salary of a groundsman has been set aside for any students' group to contract to keep a specified area of the campus clean on a daily basis for a nine-week period.

He said that the high school campus and neighboring Cahuilla Park have been divided into 15 areas, with bonafide campus clubs eligible to take care of one or more areas.

Hughes said that the activities committee of the Associated Student Body is coordinating the effort.

The high school maintenance crew will evaluate the efforts of the clubs.

Hughes explained tht money paid to clubs must be used for school-related projects.

Hafif wants government to quit snooping

PALOS VERDES — Government should get out of the business of monitoring and policing morals as individuals in a modern society have a right to make their own decisions on how they live, Democratic candidate for governor Herb Hafif says.

Addressing a dinner meeting of the South Bay Bar Association Thursday, Hafif said people with dissenting viewpoints and lifestyles have a right to live without government snooping.

"Right now, while women are being attacked near their homes, people are being killed and businesses are being robbed, we require police to dedicate a huge chunk of their resources to policing morals," the Claremont attorney said.

"Police resources are being spent to keep tabs on the private lives of individuals while the rest of us live in fear of violence. We don't have the resources or the moral right to collect massive amounts of data on people. Government should concern itself with protecting the public from violence instead of from dissenting viewpoints and lifestyles.

Squeezing to stay within budget

Claremont school dilemma: fuel use reduced, costs up

CLAREMONT — The school district must maintain at least a 20 per cent reduction in electricity and gas consumption for the balance of the school year to stay within the budget for utilities, warns business manager Charles Abbott.

Last November the state Public Utilities Commission asked everyone to cut fuel use by 15 per cent. During the ensuing three months, Claremont schools achieved reductions of 23.9 per cent in electricity and 25 per cent in natural gas.

Abbott explained the school board Monday that the staff is seeking still further savings through the use of time clocks and further cooperation from the staff.

Electricity, Gas cutbacks.

Cuts in electricity use ranged from 10.6 per cent at Claremont High to 41.1 per cent at San Antonio High and 43.8 per cent at El Roble Intermediate School. Reductions in use of natural gas ranged from 8.8 per cent at the district education center to 36.4 per cenh at Sumner School.

"Unfortunately," Abbott reported, "the utility rates have risen to such an extend that we are barely holding our own as far as the budget is concerned."

The increased cost of labor and fuel has caused the school board to review its fee schedule for groups using district facilities, and the board is expected at its next meeting to approve a new fee schedule.

The schedule was last revised in the summer of 1972. Three neighboring school districts were consulted, and the district's proposed schedule has been found to be "generally comparable."

Use of the auditoriums at Claremont High or El Roble schools will cost $40 for the first hour, a 25 per cent increase from the present $30 charge.

Use of a multipurpose room will go from $15 to $20 for the first hour, and from $5 to $7.50 for each subsequent hour.

The charge for air conditioning if requested during the summer or a school vacation will rise sharply from $4 for the first hour to $10.50.

Use of a gymnasium including shower and locker rooms will cost $100 for three hours, instead of the present $75.

The charge for setting up and taking down chairs and tables will be hiked from $6 to $7 per man-hour.

Other actions

In other actions, the school board:

—Singed a contract with a boy and his parents in which the boy will pay the district $230.53 for damage to a district barrier and warning lights at Sycamore School. The parents paid the first $30.53, and the boy has agreed to pay the district $10 a month from profits from his paper route.

—Presented to Mrs. Lynda Veatch, Claremont High vocational coordinator, a certificate of appreciation from the state Department of Education for her work on the task force of the Bureau of Business Education.

—Scheduled a joint meeting with the City Council April 15. The board will meet from 7 to 7:30 in executive session, will hold a joint meeting with the council from 7:30 to 9 and then go into the regular school board meeting.

—Reviewed a draft of a proposed calendar for 1974-75 which would give classified employes 13 paid holidays each school year.

—Accepted a gift of an IBM 1620 computer with a reader card punch from Claremont Men's College for use in the match and science departments at Claremont High School.

—Accepted $10 from GIRL Scout Troop 93 for purchase of books for the Condit School library.

—Supported the Claremont Coordinating Council's stand concerning proposed legislation which would affect the existence of the Tri-City Mental Health Authority. Supt. R. S. Kirkendall said that the district derives a significant amount of support from the services of the authority.

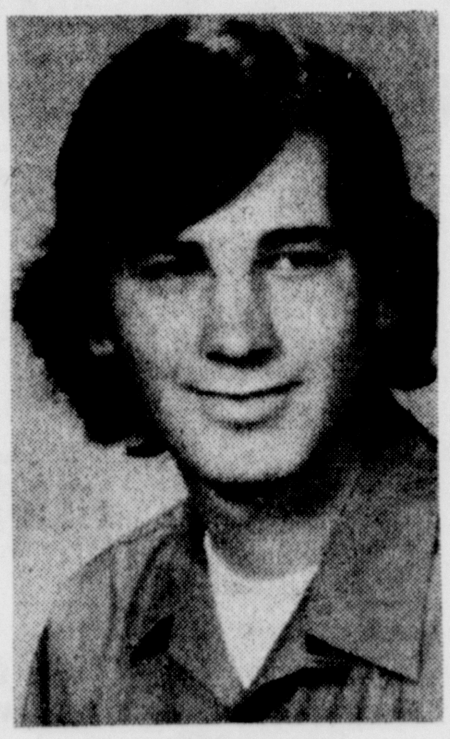
ROBERT T. WOODBURN of La Canada has been appointed vice president in charge of Forest Lawn Covina Hills. He had formerly served as assistant vice president at Forest Lawn Hollywood Hills. Woodburn succeeds Thomas McMahon, who returns to Forest Lawn Glendale as vice president in charge of the service division.

$31,573 federal funds okayed for Bonita district

SAN DIMAS — Federal impact aid funds totaling $31,573 have been authorized for the Bonita Unified School District, according to Congressman Victor V. Veysey.

School districts where government employment is concentrated are permitted to apply for federal aid to partially reimburse the district for the cost of education to the children of federal employes since government property does not provide tax support for public schools.

The funds have been approved for immediate payment. An additional sum of $10,525 has been earmarked for the Bonita District with payment contingent upon verification of enrollment data and the availibility of funds.



DOUG WILKINSON

His Eagle Scout project was the organization of a group of scouts that assisted with the yard care of La Casa de Primera, the first adobe built in the Pomona Valley and now an historical landmark being restored by the Pomona Valley Historical Society.

Longhairs of sort invade boot camp

Even the military's most staunch advocates of the whitewall haircut at the home of the Air Force's only boot camp have to grin and bear the sight of trainees flipping hair from their eyes to sight down the barrel of an M-16 rifle at Lackland.

Although the Air Force has held steadfastly to its grooming requirements for men, its efforts to take the forefront in equal opportunity for women is spreading longhairs across the base in identical training as males and in the same green fatigue uniforms.

Airman 1C Elizabeth A. Taylor, 19, epitomizes the Air Force's determination to increase the Women's Air Force (WAF) complement to approximately 50,000 by 1976. The number of WAF's already has reached 19,000, up more than 100 per cent in the last five years.

The Airman (it could become Airperson in the future) from Meredosia, Ill., trained as a law enforcement specialist under an Air Force program guaranteeing her the job she wants for a six-year enlistment. The police category is among 237 of the Air Force's 242 Airman career fields now open to women.

No combat duties

The other five categories are closed by law to females because they involve combat duties.

Although denying she goes in for women's liberation, Mrs. Taylor sees no reason why she should not be able to help patrol Lackland with a .38 caliber pistol, a night stick, helmet, combat boots and riot baton just like her male counterparts—and at equal pay.

"There isn't any difference," she said. "I work right along with them (men)."

Her pay totals $482 a month just three months after she entered the Air Force. "Just fantastic," she said.

Mrs. Taylor said she was inspired to become a law enforcement specialist by her husband, who held the same job for two years until an operation forced him into medical retirement.

Got Involved

"I got involved," she said. "I really liked it. I feel it's challenging. I don't think it'll be that unusual in the future for a woman."

Her training was exactly the same as men are put through. She had to qualify with a .38 caliber pistol, M-16 rifle, and shotgun. She studied riot control, self defense and use of a gas mask.

The "low crawl" obstacles gave her the most trouble. "I got bruises and scratches all over."

Lackland has the second largest police force in Bexar County (San Antonio). Because of the base's size it has armed robberies, rapes, narcotics offenses and other crimes similar to any community of 25,000 population. Last year, a carload of armed robberts pursued by police ran a gate at the base and engaged in a shootout with lawmen.

Mrs. Taylor said she had no qualms about shooting a criminal. "Not if my life was at stake, or one of my fellow officers," she said.

Friendlier Now

The slender blonde also feels confident she could physically handle a belligerent male if necessary. "I don't think it would be in the same manner (as a man), but just as effective," she said.

Some men give Mrs. Taylor a "hard time" when she checks their identification, others "just drive by and look" when they spot her womanning a security post, and her fellow male officers were a little cool when she joined the force in February.

"I think it's a feeling of competition," she said. "They joke now. They're a little friendlier than at first."

But eventually, she believes, she will have to prove herself in a critical situation before the male lawmen accept her on an equal basis.

Total Dedication

"This wouldn't be a good job for a woman with children," she said. "You need total dedication."

Aid workers cutoff in Saigon aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese people would be better off without any American aid — even humanitarian funds — says American relief worker Diane Jones.

Mrs. Jones, 28, and her husband Michael, 29, both of Caldwell, Idaho, spent nearly three years in Vietnam. In January she was captured and held for 11 days by National Liberation Force (NLF) guerrillas.

"The message of our Vietnamese friends is that for their own good, America should totally stop funding the Saigon government," the couple said, quoting a Vietnamese who told her: "What Americans could do best for Vietnam is to forget— totally forget—Vietnam."

The couple worked for the American Friends Service Committee's rehabilitation center at Quang Ngai. The center makes artificial limbs and braces for war-injured civilians.

While traveling from Quang Ngai to My Lai in January, Mrs. Jones and two other Quaker relief workers were captured by the Viet Cong.

Displaced Persons Camps

"We had to pass through an area I knew was relatively insecure," she said, adding that although the highways are controlled by forces of the Saigon government, "most of the countryside is controlled by the NLF."

Mrs. Jones said all three were treated well. "They immediately wanted to know whether we were working for the American government. The first question, wherever we went (during the 11 days of captivity) was, 'what are you doing here a year after the cease-fire?'"

Mrs. Jones expressed distress over conditions as she found them in Saigon-controlled displaced persons camps.

"For instance," she said, "the My Lai survivors camp— these 'return to village' camps are a Saigon program, initiated by Americans and funded over 80 per cent by American money —the conditions in these camps are just terrible."

She said because the Saigon government cannot control the nearby territory, the camps "are surrounded by barbed wire and guards and many of the people in them are close to starving."

Well fed in captivity

"When we talked to the people in the camps, they expressed the desire to go back to their original land...but they know they could be shot," she said.

In NLF-controlled territory, Mrs. Jones said, the people seemed to have plenty of food. "While we were captured we always had plenty of food, too," she said.

Mrs. Jones said that near the end of her captivity, villagers crowded into a hut to "see the strange Americans."

The villagers, she said, asked her about Watergate.

"They had heard about Watergate over the NLF radio and wondered," she said. "My answer was always that Watergate was very complicated."

'Death Squad' is shrouded in mystery

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Last November, during the burial of Rio de Janeiro detective Gilberto Ubirajara Ferreira, some of his fellow detectives promised, "From now on, for every policeman killed or wounded, three hoodlums will be executed."

Since then, 35 bodies of petty criminals have been found in Rio, although a spokesman for the police department, commenting on the threat made by Ubirajara's companions, said it was nothing more than an "emotional reaction" which had no connection with a so-called Death Squad reported to have been established to "take care of" suspected criminals. Ubirajara had been gunned down by three bank robbers.

The Death Squad (Esquadrao da Morte) is reportedly a clandestine group of off-duty policemen who take the law into their own hands by executing petty criminals they believe were dealt with too lightly by the traditional methods of Brazilian justice. Street legend says it has existed for many years—long before Ubirajara's death.

With nylon ropes looped around their necks, the 35 bodies found since November all have had the same telltale signs that have become synonymous with Death Squad killings: torture, beatings, cigarette burns and handcuff marks on their wrists.

Next to each bullet-riddled corpse were crude drawings of the shadowy Squad's emblem, the skull and crossbones, on which were written, "I was a car thief" or "I was a dope peddler".

Popular Support

The Death Squad in many instances appears to have had the support of the populace and the police department. It is almost impossible to determine exactly how many deaths can be directly attributed to the Death Squad, but authorities have placed the number up in the thousands.

The exact nature and makeup of the Death Squad are shrouded in mystery and secrecy, despite all the publicity it has received throughout the years. Anonymous voices that claim to serve as the Squad's public relations officers describe themselves grandly as defenders of society against evil.

The forerunner of the Death Squad is believed to have been a special anti-crime squadron formed in 1958 by the then police director of Rio de Janeiro, Army General Amauri Kruel.

The special squadron, Kruel said at the time, was to be made up of "brave men highly qualified to hunt down dangerous criminals in the favelas (shantytowns) and other places where criminals gather. This group of policemen do not in any manner have orders to kill, but they can do it the moment there is armed resistance."

When police authorities in Sao Paulo protested that the fleeing criminals were swelling the ranks of that city's underworld, Kruel advised the Sao Paulo authorities to form a similar squad of their own. They did.

In 1964, one of Kruel's best and most flamboyant detectives, Milton LeCocq, was killed by a bandit known as "Horseface."

To revenge LeCocq's death, his colleagues banded together into the Escuderie Le Cocq (the Le Cocq Order). The newly formed organization soon located Horseface at a beach resort and riddled his body with more than 100 bullets.

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Soldados en ropas civiles salieron del la Secretaria de Asistencia Publica hacia la Plaza de Mayo, el pasado mes de octubre y maltrataron a los periodistas reportando una demonstracion de los choferes de autobuses en huelga.

Esto sucedio dos dias antes de que el Presidente Juan D. Peron tomo posesion de la presidencia en Argentina.

Los reporteros se preguntaban si las maniobras de los guarda-espaldas Peronistas significan el regreso a la censura de la prensa como durante los anos de 1940 y 1950.

El gobierno ha tomado cuando menos posesion temporal del control de cinco estaciones de television que preparan y distribuyen noticieros pra casi los canales privados de este pais. Administradores en el gobierno no han intervenido directamente en estos noticieros.

La senal de Radio Colonia, una radiodifusora pro-argentina en el vecino pais Uruguay, ha sido ahogada tres veces en los ultimos ocho meses—el 13 de julio cuando el entonces Presidente Hector J. Campora renuncio para forzar nuevas elecciones que podrian retornar a Peron al poder; el 22 de noviembre cuando Peron estuvo enfermo, y el 24 de enero cuando el congreso deliberaba la ley controversial, anti-guerrilla.

La agencia oficial de noticias, Telam, recientemente disciplino a dos de sus empleados quienes citaron reportes de la policia de que un hombre murio cuando la bomba que llevaba exploto.

La policia mas tarde indentifico al muerto como un derechista muy conocido quien estuvo con el presidente Peron una semana antes y dijo que la bomba bien pudo ser tirada desde un carro que pasaba en esos momentos.

Peron, en publico, reprendio al reportero del periodico izquierdista El Mundo durante una conferencia televisada en todo el pais, por alegar que la presente ola de asaltos contra los lideres izquierdistas es obra de la "para-police."

Peron dijo que el reportero tendria que probarlo y ordeno a sus ayudantes a principiar el proceso. Ella mas tarde fue citada a la corte criminal.

Un periodista de un periodico comunista fue muerto a balazos en su oficina el dia 3 de octubre pasado, y el 5 de enero, el cuerpo de un joven fotografo fue encontrado acribillado con 32 balazos y sus manos atadas detras de la espalda.

Mexico recibira $170 milliones en prestamos

MEXICO, D.F. — El Banco de Fomento Internacional (BID) y el Banco Internacional para Reconstruccion y Fomento (IBRD) han autorizado prestamos de 170 millones de dolares (2.1 billones de pesos) a este pais para proyectos agricolas y de irrigacion.

Los fondos seran usados en proyectos en el valle del Rio Sinaloa en la parte occidental del pais y en el valle del Rio Panuco al oriente del pais.

Leandro Rovirosa Wade, secretario del Departamento de Recursos Hidraulicos, dice que los dos proyectos probablemente requieran una invercion de 384 millones de dolares (4.6 billones de pesos). Los fondos restantes estaran disponibles del presupuesto federal.

Los nuevos creditos aprobados por los ancos internacionales se usaran para llevar a cabo la tercera etapa del Plan Nacional para Fomento Agricola y de Irrigacion.

Todo esto complementara los programas financiados por el gobierno que consisten de 700 proyectos de irrigacion en los estados de Tamaulipas, Durango, Chihuahua, Nuevo Leon, Coahuila y San Luis Potosi.

Continuidad del programa bilingual se discutira aqui

POMONA — Se urge a los padres de familia a atender una junta del consejo de education el dia 26 de este mes, cuando la continuidad del programa bilingual sera puesto a discusion.

La junta tendra lugar en el centro educativo de Pomona Unified School District, 800 S. Garey, Ave., principiando a las 7:30 p.m.

La Asociaciion de Maestros de Pomona (APT), que representa el 88 por ciento de los empleados certificados en el distrito, pedira al consejo que haga lo posible para continuar con este programa.

La propuesta del APT es la siguiente:

"La Asociacion de Maestros de Pomona (APT) urge que el distrito asuma su responsabilidad legal y moral para el programa bilingual-bicultural cuando y si los fondos suplementarios especiales no estan disponibles y ademas, que el distrito, en su responsabilidad para todos los ninos, proporciona la expansion continua da y justificada de dicho programa.

La asistencia economica federal para la educacion bilingual-bicultural en el distrio se terminara el 30 de junio pero el distrito ha solicitado asistencia adicional.

Mas de 4,000 estudiantes en el distrito llevan apellidos espanoles. De estos, mas de 3,000 de estos estudiantes han sido identificados por el Language Dominance Survey ordenado por el estado el dia 1 de junior de 1973, que vienen de hogares donde el idioma espanol se habla regularmente y de los cuales 1,000 estudiantes actualmente son ayudados por este programa.

Estudiantes de habla espanola que procuran hacer el cambio de su idioma principal a otro idioma sin tener asistencia especializada en la escuela sufren cierta perdida del conocimiento basico y conceptos en materias academicas mientras aprenden el idioma ingles, dice la Asociacion de Maestros.

Engineers have pollution cure

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — Two Navy engineers think they have a partial solution to current fuel and pollution problems.

Herb Johnson and Bill Rose have taken a leave of absence from the Naval Ship Weapon Systems Egineering Station at Port Hueneme, Calif., to develop a prototype of their device, the Vaparator, which they believe will replace the standard carburetor and smog equipment.

"We have two immediate goals," said Johnson, an electrical engineer. "We hope to be able to meet the 1975 smog requirements without using any of the current smog devices, and we expect a substantial improvement in gas mileage."

The Vaparator was tested on a 1965 Dodge Coronet with a 361 cubic inch, 8-cylinder engine. The mileage improved by six miles per gallon —from 14 to 20 —after the Vaparator was added, Johnson said.

"We predict that in a new car we could double the mileage by taking the smog device off and replacing the standard carburetor with the Vaparator," he said.

Johnson and Rose, a mechanical engineer, say they have "more or less" completed a feasibility model of the Vaparator and have set up a laboratory in a former machine shop here to further evaluate their data and begin work on a prototype.

"What we want is something that can be placed on any model car, that is, you can tear off all the smog equipment and carburetor and replace it with the Vaparator," Johnson said.

"The idea is not new. The Vaparator will merely convert gasoline into vapor and it will burn as a vapor, thus having the advantages of a liquid petroleum gas system.

"There are some patents on gasoline vaporizers and atomizers which accomplish essentially the same effect; however, to our knowledge, none has proven practical or cost effective lhus far."

He said they have no test data yet on the Vaparator with regard to pollution because until now they didn't have the instruments. But Johnson and Rose feel their vaparator is practical.

"Basically," Johnson said, "the device we have now is very crude. We built it under less than ideal conditions and it worked very well. It was a backyard project.

"It comes out to be very competitive with the standard carburetor, cost wise. We predict it will cost somewhere around $150 for installation after everybody's made their markup."

He said they've approached state and federal agencies for aid in financing their work and though encouraged by the interest expressed by them they received no aid.

"We've been to the ARB (the state Air Resources Board)," said Johnson. "But they have no program able to sponsor us."

The ARB was, however, "very cooperative and helpful," he said. "I think they'll do everything they can to help us out."

Johnson said he and Rose also approached the Department of Transportation, Caltech and several large companies but got basically the same response.

"The companies are interested when the development is completed and the Vaparator is ready to be manufactured and marketed," he said.

He said the Department of Transportation told them they were set up to help the small inventor and could be helpful later while Caltech was only interested in projects set for 10 years from now rather than current work.

"We did have good response from technicians at the large companies," Johnson said. "They said the Vaparator was feasible and referred us to their marketing division."

He said their program calls for construction of a prototype as close as possible in design to the production prototype, test it with the Air Resources Board and then take it to a major manufacturer.

"Our best guess is that it will take six months to a year," Johnson said.

He and Rose better be right because their leave of absence from the Navy is for one year and is without pay.

French wine makers declare war on the problem drinker

PARIS (UPI) — Asserting that "alcoholism destroys the image of alcohol," France's makers of aperitifs and liqueurs are throwing hundreds of thousands of dollars into a study of problem drinkers.

Their organization's literature says "alcoholism will not help our companies because it turns the normal drinker into a sick man who will drink anything at all."

And the 12 participating firms —including Remy Martin, Martini and Rossi, Cointreau and Dubonnet-Cinzano-Byrrh — do not consider their products as just "anything at all."

A survey by the newspaper Le Monde found that 70 per cent of French alcoholics are wine-drinkers, not connoisseurs of vermouth, cognac or liqueur.

Jean Hemard, chairman of Pernod Company, said the 12 will put $300,000 this year into their own Institute of Scientific, Economic and Social Research on Beverages (IREB).

"Alcoholism is a cancer of our profession," Hemard told a news conference. He said that far from increasing sales it inhibits "normal drinking."

"We are going to fight alcoholism because it hurts our image. But we also want to help combat alcoholism as a social evil," Hemard said.

The IREB companies say they will continue to promote their sales, that their spirits market represents only 10 per cent of the sale of alcohol in France.

The Le Monde survey said alcoholism afflicts one of every four adult Frenchmen and one of every 12 French women. Le Monde found that excessive consumption of alcohol kills 30,000 Frenchmen every year— more than all other causes of death except heart disease and cancer.

Hemard said his group felt that moderate consumption of alcohol was not only pleasant as a means of eliminating social tensions but also harmless to health.

The 12 liquor firms created the IREB in 1971, but its officials say the organization is just now getting into full operation.

The Institute has chosen as specific problems for study in 1974 and 1975 early detection of alcoholism, the phenomena of dependence on drink, and of dissuasion from alcohol.

Watergate launched streaking?

LONDON (UPI) — A British sociological magazine said that the Watergate affair may have helped to prompt streaking. A medical journal said the fad could be therapuetic.

Streaking developed within "a new generation of American students probably wishing to dissociate itself from the violence which characterized the college generation immediately ahead," the New Society said.

The article, written by social anthropologist Shirley Ardener, added that "perhaps disillusionment resulting from the Watergate affair played a part."

"It is probably best for the present to accept the streakers' own assessment of their motives—a lark, a bet, to liven things up," the journal said.

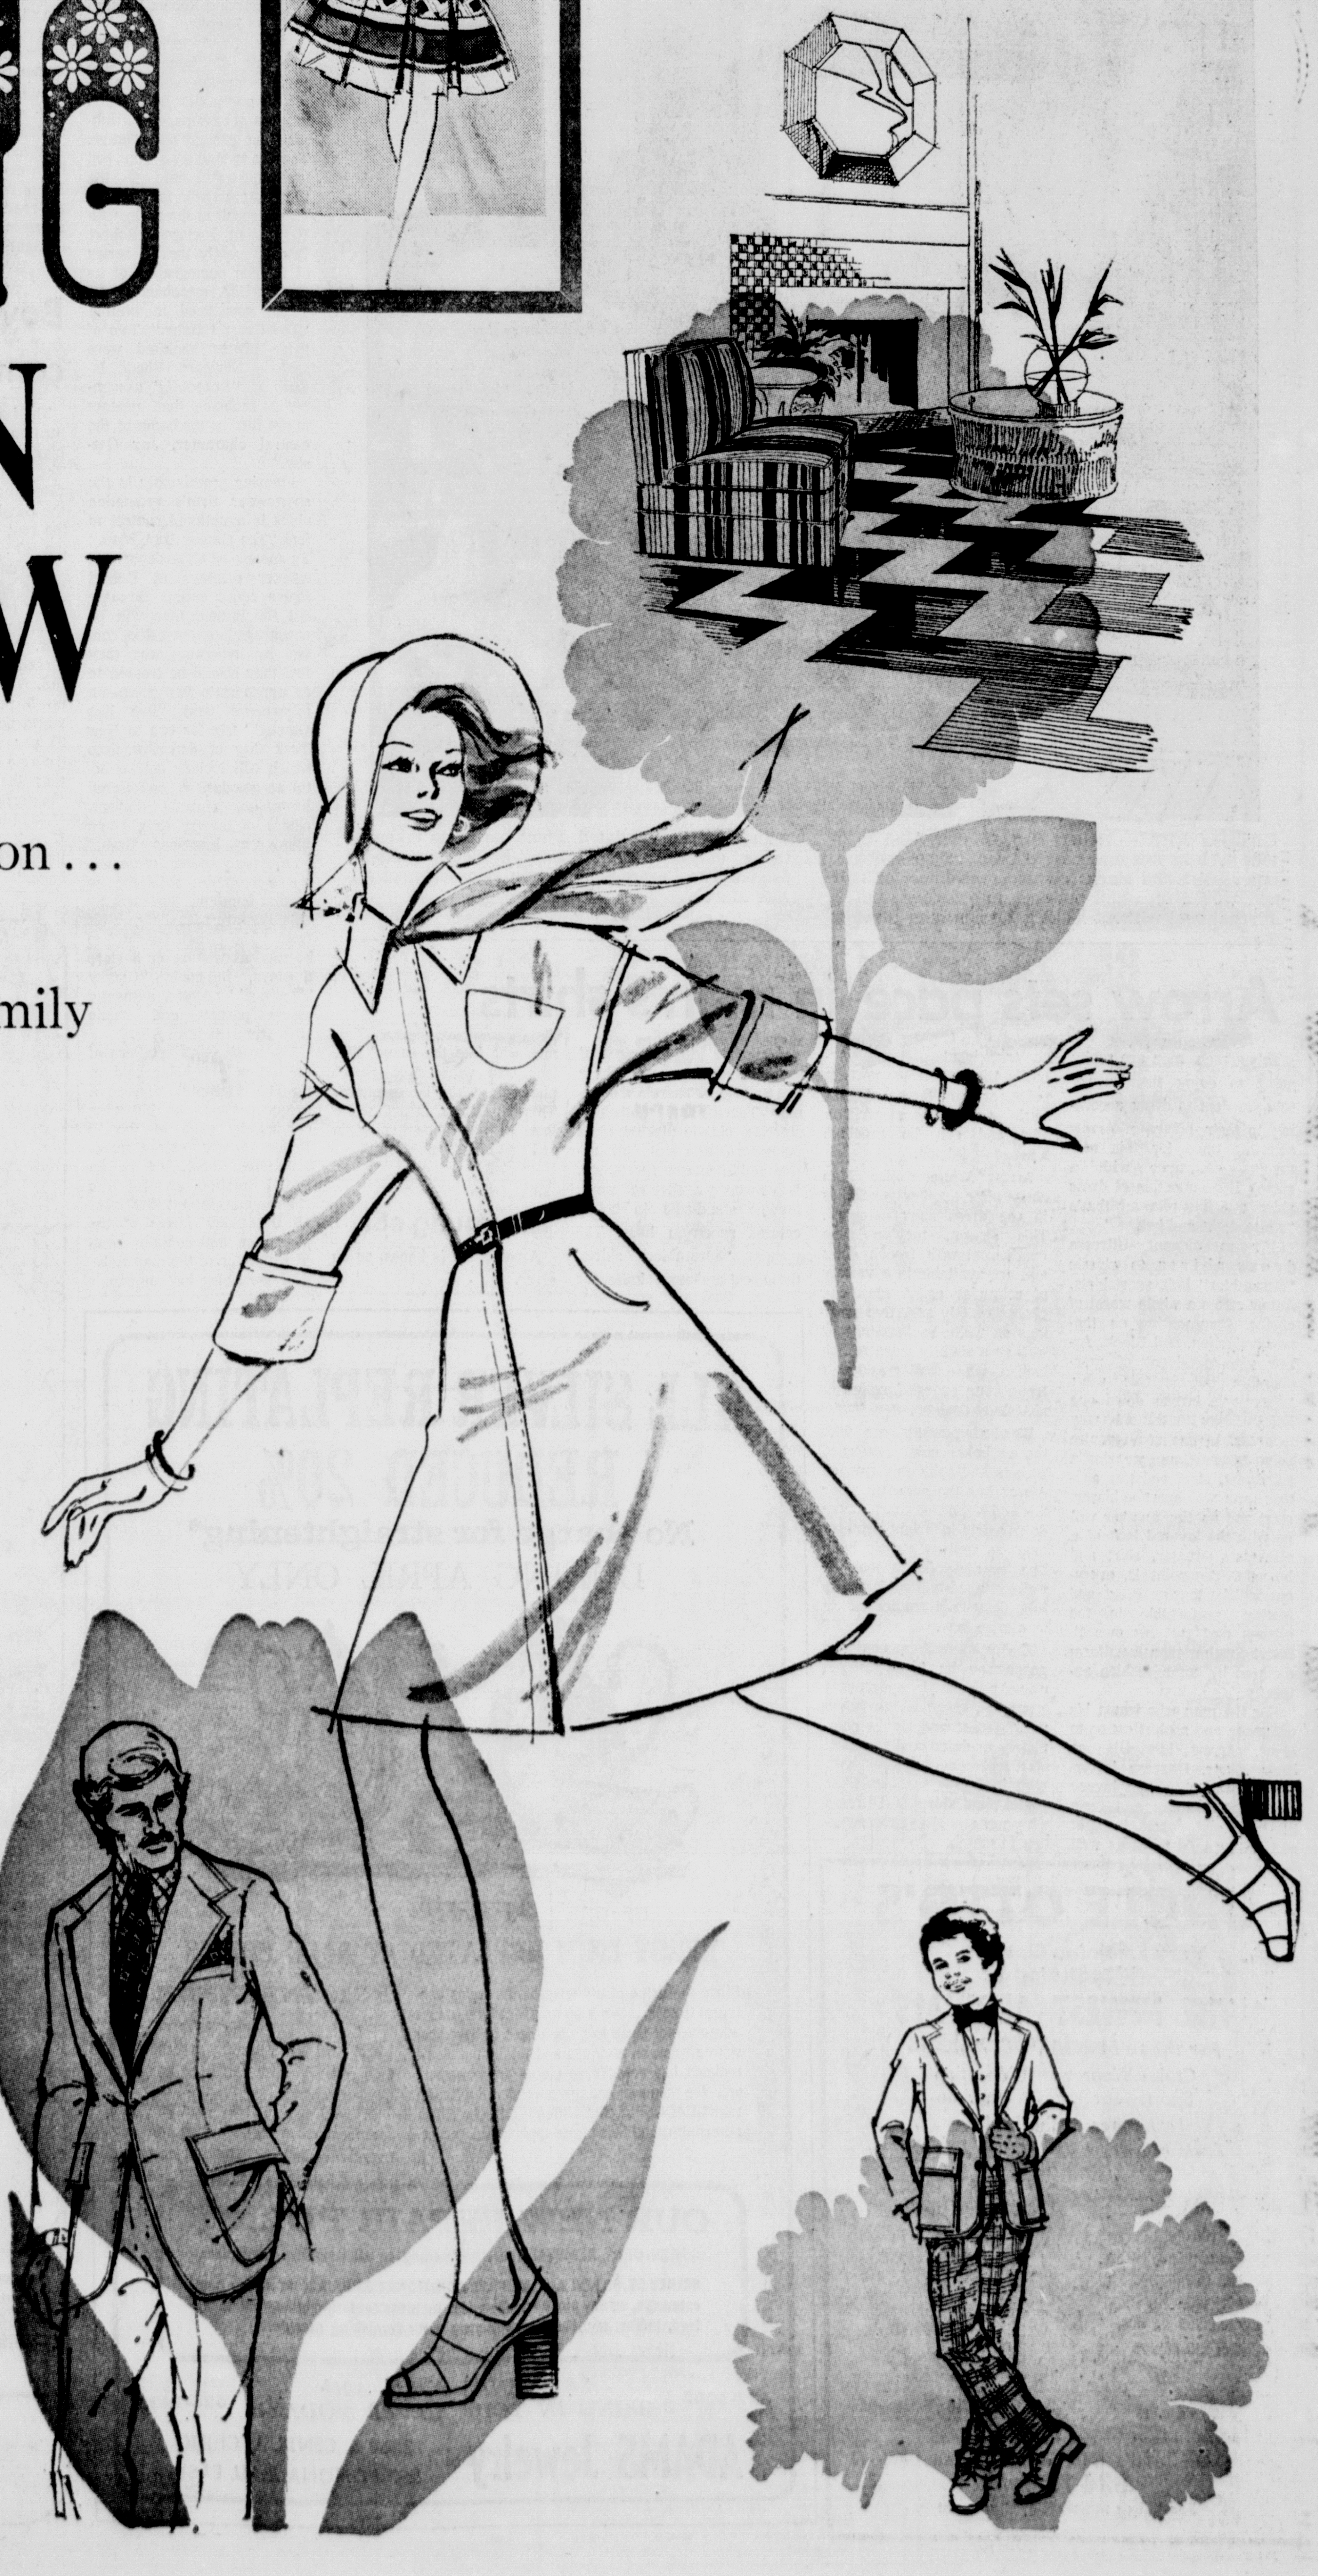
SPRING FASHION PREVIEW

Here comes the new season . . . with a crisp look in fashions for the whole family and the home. It offers more for your money, in adaptability, in chic that knows no season. See the news blooming on every page.



Fashion experts cash in on 'Gatsby'

In what is described as the biggest and most comprehensive fashion promotion ever launched for a line of merchandise, Robert Bruce has joined forces with Paramount Pictures to promote its Gatsby USA sportswear line for Spring, 1974.

One of America's largest producers of sportswear for men and boys, Robert Bruce is timing its efforts to coincide with the projected March 27 release date for Paramount's "The Great Gatsby", starring Robert Redford and Mia Farrow.

Plans already include provision for an intensive spot radio campaign and a series of full-page ads in fashion sections of newspapers in major cities around the country. These are slated to run just preceding the date of the film's premiere in that area.

As a result of the tie-in with Paramount Pictures, Robert Bruce recently took a series of fashion photographs of its Gatsby USA merchandise on actual sets used in filming "The Great Gatsby." Two of these photos enclosed were shot in Newport, Rhode Island, at "Rosecliff," a sumptuous mansion that appears in the film as the home of the central character, Jay Gatsby.

Figuring prominently in the sportswear firm's promotion plans is a national contest to find "The Gatsby USA Man." By means of advertising and counter displays at Robert Bruce retail outlets throughout the nation, men will be encouraged to enter the contest by indicating why they feel they should be treated to an appropriate first prize—an all-expense paid "live like Gatsby"' trip for two to New York City of San Francisco which will include deluxe hotel accomodations, chauffered limousine, gourmet dinners, choice of theatre tickets and many other luxurious extras.

Among other materials being made available to stores handling the Gatsby USA line are actual film clips from "The Great Gatsby" to be used as window or in-store displays, full-color "Gatsby Times'' posters, authentic movie posters and studio stills from the film.

The mens wear retailers of the nation are being told of the joint promotion through a unique presentation kit being carried by each of the 70 Robert Bruce sales representatives. Packaged in an actuall motion picture film storage can, the kit illustrates all the many facets of the promotion and contains samples of some of the materials

In describing his company's plans, Robert Bruce advertising Vice President Binder noted that "the Gatsby look is one of the important fashion trends to come along in years. Since Robert Bruce owns the Gatsby name for sportswear a tie-in with Paramount's film version of the outstanding novel of that period is made to order for us."

Noting that "Gatsby USA" sportswear has been heavily advertised to the mens wear trade for several seasons, Mr. Binder pointed out that this spring's tie-in with Paramount Pictures will mark the most extensive consumer push for the line.

In fashions terms, the Gatsby man is a man in the middle. He's grown out of the long hair and funky clothes of his younger days, but certainly not ready for the middle-of-the-road outlook that comes along in later years.

Right now he wants an updated classic look, an elegant look that harks back to an earlier, simpler time, yet gives him the comfort and convenieence he expects of today's clothes.

In short, he wants the essence of the 20's in sportswear of the 70's—precisely the look Robert Bruce has captured in its Gatsby USA collection.

Subtly related, Gatsby USA combines the finest of knit and woven tops and bottoms. The look is international without looking foreign, timeless without looking dated.

Designed to be sold in men's sportswear departments and contemporary shops, the line is being introduced at the best of all possible times, when public interest in the era, as typified by Paramount's soon-to-be released motion picture, "The Great Gatsby, is at a peak.

Colors are soft and subtly shaded, ranging from the important vanilla cream to pastel tones like daisy yellow, St. Louis blue, Irish green and pink.

GATSBY ERA — Robert Bruce-Gatsby USA fashions such as this matching dacron, rayon and flax outer shirt and slacks combine the finest of knit and woven tops and bottoms into a look that is international without looking foreign, and timeless without appearing dated. Photo here was taken on the set of "The Great Gatsby" in Newport, Rhode Island. The Paramount Picture release is set for late March.

Bow tie in comeback

The bow tie, back for a return engagement, is certainly bigger and better than ever. The bows are more exaggerated than the styles worn in the Gatsby era, but they have the real haberdashery look at the '40s.

Clip-ons and self-ties are wider and brighter, and are being featured in prints, paisleys, textured strips and solids. Most buyers are convinced that they are not a fad. While bows usually make up 5 per cent of total tie stock, now they are getting a 20 per cent share. One accessory buyer commented that the resurgence of the "butterfly" was inevitable. ''With sweaters featuring U-neck and V-neck styling, the bow tie just had to come back."

Arrow sets pace in men's shirts

This season, men are really going to enjoy their newly won freedom to dress according to their lifestyles. Arrow sets the pace for this new fashion assurance with a spring 1974 collection of dress shirts and leisure wear that's "white, light and bright."

From elegant Ultressa dress shirts to classic "Scrambler" knit sportshirts, Arrow offers a whole world of choice. Commenting on the new collection, phil Black, Arrow vice president of merchandise put it this way: "You can't button down one look and say it's the only way to dress. In one room you're going to see a man wearing a suit, vest, shirt and tie; another man will sport a blazer, shirt and no tie; another will go with the layered look of a sleeveless sweater, shirt and bow tie. The point is, everyone will be looking great and feeling comfortable in the clothes that suit his own lifestyle, rather than a uniform dictated by some fashion authority."

For the man who wants his affluence and sophistication to show, Arrow has Ultressa dress shirts. Ultressa is Arrow's new lightweight luxury shirting that looks and feels like silk and comes in light and bright solid tones as well as traditional patterns. Actually Ultressa is 100 percent polyester so these elegant shirts will remain wrinkle free and can be machine washed and dried.

Arrow White Collar Man shirts offer another possibility in the dress shirt category. This season, they've gone continental with french cuffs and are available in a variety of collar styles. A man can choose quietly assertive stripings on white backgrounds as well as a slightly more raffish look of white collar and cuff treatments on solid colors or neat body designs.

Wondering what goes with those bold new patterned jackets and suits this spring? Arrow has the solution: their Kent collection of short sleeve dress shirts in bright primary tones as well as classic blue. They're designed to look as well-groomed without a tie as they do with a traditional tie or a crisp bow.

The ultimate in relaxed elegance can be found in Arrow's related sportswear group. Featured is the suave white jacket and slacks completely up-dated and practical in 100 percent polyester knit. With it, Arrow suggests their pastel plaid shirts of Ultressa with bow and sleeveless sweaters to match.

Meanwhile, in the area of sportshirts things are looking just as bright. There's the Arrow Tournament Collection starring classic placket front polyester-cotton knits for active and spectator sportsmen. Wherever they're worn, they're stand-outs in boldly colored spectrum hues. The popular "Scrambler" shirts, those cut-and-sewn knits for men who like the casual life, look like winners in pastel plaids on white backgrounds. There's also a smart white look with outline-stitching in red and blue.

Classic style for young set

The classic and traditional moods set in the fall will continue to influence young boys' fashions in accessories. Skinny belts are no longer considered a major fashion contender as widths expand to one and one-half inches. Less "hardware," thinner buckles, and saddle-stitched styles will take on added emphasis as smooth textures and simple designs give a tailored look to young boys' wardrobes.

In ties, pastels and solid brights with lots of surface interest will get much of the fashion play. Slub effects and seersuckers will make the spring scene in both bow ties and conventional ties. Linen will be a significant fabric; cotton and a silk-like synthetic are described as "running large."

Modern-day goddess needs special talents

Fashion is great, fashion is wonderful and exciting. But like beauty, it is only skin-deep. You need more.

A glowing complexion, an aura of subtle fragrance, an alert, lively mind—you don't have to wear only the very latest fashions if you possess these attributes:

1. A lovely voice. The island-dwelling Sirens of Greek legend were not terribly attractive—they were depicted as half woman, half bird—but with their sweet voices they lured many a mariner aground.

2. A regal walk. Helen of Troy wasn't a goddess—but you'd never have known it from the way the men adored her. She received the ultimate tribute from the poet Homer, who said of her that "She moves a goddess, and she looks a queen."

3. Development of your special talents. You don't have to go so far as Athena, the Greek goddess credited with the invention of numbers, the rake, the plough, the flute, the chariot, shipbuilding, shoemaking, goldsmithing, and the olive tree! But spare-time classes, creative hobbies, volunteer work for local charitable or political organizations can provide the range of interests that make a modern love goddess fascinating.

4. Flower-freshness. It's no accident that the names of many ancient goddesses are linked with legends of flowers. You don't have to leave white flowers in your tracks like Olwen the Welsh love goddess, or like Venus, weep tears that turn into roses. But you should make full use of flower-like fragrances that supply the goddess touch.

5. That "goddess" glow. Mythical goddesses were supposed to give off a glowing white light that revealed their divinity. Real-life love goddesses are also radiant. Their glow, however, comes not through supernatural means, but from a down-to-earth beauty care program that includes a weekly or twice-weekly hair shampoo, natural-looking make-up freshly applied over a thoroughly clean skin, adequate rest and sleep and a nouishing diet. Nectar and ambrosia might have been a fit diet for Grecian goddesses, but you need your vitamins and minerals!

FASHION FUN—It's going to be a ball this spring with short shorts, knee-highs flecked with glitter and a close-fitting T-shirt variation. This is a dynamic look, topped off with sunglasses in nifty round shape.

Gals slipping into elegance

Although it's a proven fact that American women prefer pants to dresses, when they do dress up, they want quality hosiery that gives a smooth, sheer look to the leg, and almost totally avoid anything that sparkles or is too bright.

With this in mind, French hosiery manufacturerers are coming out with classic, refined pantyhose to accent the return to feminine dress styles. Colors are traditional and subtle.

A spokesman for one company said that current emphasis is definitely on sheer, neutral hosiery colors. Natural skin tones in sheer or small-ribbed styles are best sellers. The trend is toward lighter weight styles. Hosiery that was 20 denier nylon last year, is now 10 to 15 dinier. Seamed stockings and pantyhose made a brief appearance last year, but didn't catch on.

Peacock or peajacket male? express yourself this spring

Typecasting a man — with style! — is what Spring fashions are all about. Now there's leeway for every personality type to express himself through his apparel. Whether he's continental-conservative or the classic rebel (or both!), there's a handsome range of ready-to-wear that will convey his chosen self-image at a glance.

One thing you'll note, whatever the look it's best accomplished with fabrics of natural fiber and it's always carefully pulled together. Even those males who choose to go against the fashion establishment have learned to do so with taste.

For the man who chooses not to go the suit-and-tie route, there are a number of new coordinates that will result in a casual look that's good anywhere. A loose shirtjacket and matching paints of light, unlined wool tweed could be worn over a shirt floral-patterned in the same tweedy tones. For evening, a bush jacket and pants of black denim over a natural shantung shirt would be both casual and spectacular.

The man who likes to dress with European flair will find plenty of imports to challenge his imagination. Handknitted sweaters often come in sets with a coat-sweater plus sleeveless sweater vest. With this, a white shirt and solid tie add cosomopolitan dash. Two tone oxfords in shades of brown and tan can be worn with grey checked trousers and grey plaid socks. Camel cashmere that reverses to plaid raises the sportcoat to new heights of luxury. For after-five, the traiditional smoking jacket comes in new woven patterns of dark silk.

The arch-conservative in dress is not forgotten by menswear designers this Spring. Here, too, the natural fibre is the thing—and assembling your own outfit is the fling. With a dark silk shirt printed in foulard pattern, try a white printed ascot. Don't top this with the usual dark blazer. Wear a natural cablestitch cardigan for day instead. Save the blazer for evening, and then wear one in black velvet for a change, with a silk shirt in 'brilliant Byzantine golds, and browns, and a black bowtie. Trousers with a stitched front pleat and fuller legs combine comfort with a pleasing leanness of line.

Self-expression in clothes demands, of course, that a man be in shape to wear any style he chooses. As more and more all-American males discover the pleasures of feeling fit and looking good, they are paying more attention to exercise and nutrition. Skipping rope is in. Skipping breakfast is out. Even the busiest businessman has time to get a bacon-and-eggs kind of energy in the morning. It helps him feel as fit as he looks, whether he's the peacock or the peajacket type.

Men's ties are varied

"A little bit of everything" is the way manufacturers are describiing neckwear fashion for spring '74.

While all the favorites will still be around, solids, stripes, prints, plaids and checks will be updated by using bright colors and new surface textures. Linens, jacquards, raised stitching and denims are being used to achieve the textured look.

To contrast with plaid suitings, prints in neat paisleys, mosaics and art deco motifs are expected to attract a lot of attention. Stripes and checks are being shown with lots of white giving them a fresh new look.

Cream, probably the most important color on the horizon, balances a slate of mid-bright tones, such as blue, mango and jade green.

Color specialists of the major fiber companies selected the colors they thought most significant for spring.

"Everybody's talking about cream," says one color coordinator. "It's a progression of the pales of '73 neutralized and acting as ground color. The brights are very clean, clear and light rather than heavy.

"The purple family is back in a red-lilac version and the spectator darks have a clean, crisp look in neat patterns lightened with cream."

Hairstyle liberation reported

As observers over the thousands of years have noted, fashion can be a rich field for sociological enquiry, and the fashions governing the way we wear our hair are no less pertinent than the fashions governing the clothes we dress in.

The history of hair repeats itself. In 1636, for example, an angry professor in Cambridge University in England seized a student and while holding him down on a "buttery hatch" sheared off his hair with a bread knife. At the same time Oxford threatened to expel students who wore hair "indecently long." By 1655 Harvard became worried and issued a rule that it should not "bee lawfull for any to weare Long haire, Locks or foretops," or "to use Curling, Crisping, Parting or Powedering." Harvard President Charles Chauncy even devoted most of his commencement sermon to the subject, quoting the Bible to prove that "the Lord hath forbidden unto men long hair."

In the 19th-century the hair om men's faces caused more trouble than the hair on their heads. The outstanding American champion of the beard was Joseph Palmer, a New England butcher and farm-produce merchant. In the 1830's he was persecuted and called a "fiend incarnate" for wearing a beard. He was jailed, beaten and straved. But when he died at 84 in 1875, he had the last laugh; most of the solid men of America were wearing beards.

Gals' quest is for curls

Women's quest for curls in their hairstyles is truly a matter of history. Through the years, they have tied up their crowning glory in rags, ironed it or covered it with harsh chemicals — all in the name of "curl".

Since curly hair-do's are staging a fashion comeback this Spring, it's interesting to compare what was done in the past to help curl with what's going on today in beauty salons across the country.

In the 1920s, women bobbed their hair and marcelled it with a hot iron to sizzle in the waves. A few years later, they sat under a complicated electrical contraption, an early permanent wave machine, which gave more frizz than curl.

The Depression years produced a machineless wave, utilizing chemical heat-producing pads, but its cost was prohibitive. Then, the cold wave came along in the late '30s and women took to having their hair curled with a chemical process.

Today, women can have their curls with a lot less time and effort along with softer results. There are new advanced techniques and products, to help her do the job.

PARIS FASHIONS — Cerutti features his-and-hers styles in golfing outfits. He combines ecru and brown blousons with matching skirt for her and tweedy jersey pants for him. These designs are from the Paris spring/summer couture showings.

Paris plans accent on feminine appeal

Paris — (NEA) — The leading designers have gone all out for this coming spring and summer to promote feminine appeal, sadly compromised in this era of blue jeans and unisex styles. Their showings were reminiscent, retrospective and nostalgic, with a backward look to the '30s when life seemed so much easier and very far removed from the structured clothes of a decade ago.

It all somehow adds up to evolution rather than revolution. And the replaying of the '30s acquires a definite 1974 look. This happens in the choice of fabrics and in the application of modern techniques. It is the beginning of an era where the soft look prevails and sex appeal is disguised, but rampant.

The new styles are the kind which will be comfortable to wear. Ladylike, at times, but with a dash of exoticism and always soft, soft.

The full skirt is no myth. Anything up to 15 yards or more goes into the pleated, swirling, gored or draped models shown by some designers. But the tailored woman also will find the chic, slick, shirtdress topped by an equally slender coat.

For daytime the suit has ousted the pants outfit which is relegated strictly to sports and informal wear. The new vintage follows the soft approach, with easy-fitted, longer jackets, belted or not-often with cropped sleeves-teamed to a circular or pleated skirt and a striped silk blouse.

As the day wears on, dresses are highlighted. And the ensemble—dress and matching coat or jacket—has returned, often in printed silk. Pleated skirts and soft tops, short sleeved or sleeveless, are details which are bound to appeal to women.

For the hemline, you canbut you needn't-go to the lenghts some of the stylists have shown. But never should a skirt stop short of the knees. From there, length varies three to four inches below the knees, midcalf or just above the ankle for the cocktail hour.

Girls who are willing to take the plunge will go all out for the 16-inch cleavage which ran riot through the Jean Patou and the Louis Ferraud collections.

Yves Saint Laurent, whose showing is about the most ladylike happening in town, showed evening dresses in the sheerest chiffon or organza with see-through tops revealing unfettered bosoms, guaranteed to warm a man's heart as much as they cool a woman's chest. After all, says Courreges: "A woman get out of Paris fashions just what she puts into them."

There is also the bare midriff school with the award going to the Patou "bras" embriodered in navy and silver paillettes worn with a sweeping, many-layered skirt of navy organza.

Pants suits? They take second place, although Saint Laurent featured more than any other designer.

The Dior story this season is in the dress-up clothes, the return of the afternoon ensemble—printed or plain silk dress and jacket or long coat. Designer Marc Bohan made great use of handdrawn embroidery to outline hems.

Colors here are subdued-lots of ivory, combinations of gray and white, beige and white, navy and white along with scarlet, apricot and pink.

Lanvin's stylist, Crahay, let his imagination run riot and created a dazzling number of formal evening dresses ranging from Grecian togas, wrap-over and draped numbers inspired by the '30s, often completed by a floating, cape or shawl, to long tartan-silk skilted skirts worn with a white organdy see-through skirt and topped by a short shawl.

Givenchy laughched the loose, almost batwing-sleeved top to pants suits and dresses. Skirts are very fitted through the hips where they break out into tight pleats—a style which calls for the slenderest figures. For the afternoon, which he promotes like the rest of Paris, there are a number of what was once known as garden-party dresses in floral organzas, ankle-length, which are very impressionistic in mood.

Cardin's collection offered a number of good-looking suits with easy jackets, bloused and belted, afternoon dresses in printed silks and, as a finale, a line of evening dresses with tunic or handkerchief-pointed skirts, trimmed with ostrich feather tufts or pompoms which were a kind of fashback to the current Paul Poiret exhibition in Paris. He opened his show with a group of short, many-tiered flounced skirts with T-shirt tops or halter bodices beamed at the younger set, obviously.

There is also much nostalgia in the black chiffon evening and cocktail dresses with their transparency effects in the high-heeled ($4\frac{1}{2}$ to 5 inches) slingback sandals, in the ostrich feather boas and the long, dangling pearl ropes.

Madame Gres would up the spring fashion week with a collection which offered the subtlest, sexiest evening dresses of all. They were mostly sheaths with tricky cut-outs, bare midriffs, veiled by fluttering, gossamer capes, panels or scarves. One model, in black chiffon, with full circular skirt had the bare midriff girded with a narrow jeweled belt completed by a floating, longsleeved coat.

New men's fashions unveiled in Dallas

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

DALLAS (NEA) — If you have to look at fashions from 8:00 a.m. until late at night—with some good food and good conversation in between—you're in fine shape if the fashions are men's wear and the location Big D.

There's a lot of news in men's fashion these days and it's fun to see what's happening. And when Texas say "Y'all come back now, y'hear?" they mean it. You do feel welcome.

The Men's Fashion Association, the consumer arm of the men's wear business, showed all that is new in what in the old days was called sartorial splendor. And fine fare it is.

Louis Jourdan was there to show how Marc Bohan's Christian Dior line for HSM can look on a gorgeous guy. Media brought Mark Spitz along to tell about his easy-to-wear-to-care-for shirt that has a pocket crest of red, white and blue and seven gold discs to commemorate his achievements in the 1972 Olympics.

The MFA predicts that the new spring-summer fashions will bring a man confidentally and comfortably through any day's crisis or shortage.

To meet the demands of a changing economy and changing lifestyles, the men's wear industry has gone all out in producing fashionable clothing that is within the reach of any man. And it meets the reality of his needs and his budget.

"Relatable fashion that is avalialbe to men," said Chip Tolbert, fashion director of the MFA, "is all champagne fashion whether he wants to pay champagne or beer prices. No matter what a man wants to spend he's going to be satisifed whether it's a suit for the office or the latest tennis outfit."

In business wear, a light, cool feeling is conveyed by the predominance of natural fabrics—linens and blends, silk and polyester blends.

There is also a variety of patterns—window-pane plaids, puckered stripes, diagonals, waffle weaves and checks. Many of the silk and silk-look suits will be in light solids and striped shantungs. There will also be cotton cords, plaids, seersuckers and worsted-look plaids in polyester and natural blends and patterned knits.

Fashion at every price level is even more evident in leisurewear. Plaid jackets with coordinated slacks and vests are making their world.

As of this season, the sweater is no longer a stranger to warm weather. The sweater gives a wonderful fashion flare to casual jacket and slacks outfits. It also stands very well on its own when worn with coordinating trousers. Patterns go from argyles and stripes to novelties in every design imaginable.

Formal wear has met the demands of increasingly fashion-conscious men with a dazzling display of colors and fabrics that has stretched the bounds to include anything from an afternoon wedding to an at-home evening. There are new concepts in fabrics, colors and patterns including white waffle-weaves, solid-color silk shantungs and wide track herringbone and polyester knits.

Spring shoes in solids and two-tones will feature classic lace-ups and slip-ons in a somewhat lower heel from last year. They will be worn over patterned and solid over-the-calf socks that blend with the rest of the new patterns and colors.

There is great beach wear, wonderful-looking caftans and a wide world of fashion plumage that puts the male right back on top of the best-dressed list.

Chaperone

In the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries women frequently wore small hoods called chaperones. In time the older woman who accompanied a young woman in society came to be known as a chaperone since, metaphorically, the experienced married woman sheltered the youthful debutante as a hood sheltered the face.

Romantics

Romance is one of the most influential trends of the spring-summer '74 season. The romantic look is more than a silhouette, a detail, or a fabric. It's a mood, a feeling, a new concept of dressing, a giant step away from strict classic lines towards softness and, inevitably, the dress. The romantic mood is a conglomerate—pulling its influences from Victoriana, the Gibson Girl, the frontier, the peasant, a child's christening dress. And although it is primarily a young look now, its influence will be felt among all age-groups.

Casualwear

For the leisure-sports life, there are sweatshirts, shorts and jumpsuits of pliable stretch terry . . . for entertaining, there are hostess dresses and pajamas.

For traditional use, there are slinky sleep-dresses with lace insets of the classic wrap robe-up-dated with the glitter of metallic window pane plaid on semi-sheer wool piped in glitter thread.

Back to basics in men's shoes

Fashion is dead. Long live fashion.

This statement best sums up men's footwear styles which are now coming under a new fashion reign.

The way out, funky and obvious footwear styles that were the fashion mainstays during the past few years are now giving way to some new trend-setting looks in the form of classical, elegant and versatile footwear.

This trend, according to Thom McAn Shoe Co., the Worcester, Mass., nationwide retail shoe chain, is toward a return of styles reminiscent of the "good old days" of the 50's and 60's.

Richard Robinson, the firm's men's footwear stylist and buyer, describes the trend as a move toward "utilitarian fashion."

He explains that "while there is still some interest in some modified versions of high-fashion shoes, more and more men of all ages are getting back to basics.

"In dress shoes, they're looking for conservative, tasteful and elegant styles that will go with as many outfits as possible. And, as men get ready to do a lot more walking, the trend in casual footwear is toward out-doorsy, comfortable and long-wearing styles."

Robinson says that currently, nearly 60 percent of his firm's men's shoe sales are in what can be described as basic type footwear.

Many of the spring styles, he says, are actually updates of styles prevalent over a decade ago. He feels this move is actually "a reflection of our changing life-styles. People are concerned about everything from the energy crisis and the economy, to the shortages of so many things they once found in abundance.

"As a result, people are looking to the past and are returning to things they are familiar with. We are seeing this trend in everything from foot-wear and apparel styles, to music, movies, theater and television shows."

This spring, Thom McAn will be featuring both slipon and tie dress shoes that incorporate such traditional concepts as modified broad toe shapes, tasteful strap and buckles or vamp brace patterns, and moccasin-toe, plain-toe or wing-tip upfront detailing. On top, rich grainy leathers or shiny patents will be widely used, and black and browns will be the dominant colors.

Country casual and dressed-up casual styles will feature a variety of familiar demi-boot or lace-up oxfords done up in soft suedes or natural waxy leathers, along with some new rugged, earthy styles made for plenty of out-door walking.

Dietrich shows are rescheduled

LOS ANGELES — Marlene Dietrich has rescheduled her canceled January concert at the Music Center Pavilion to April 15 and 16.

The entertainer suffered a fall in London about six months ago and a skin graft operation was necessary, canceling the January concert. Ticket holders of the Jan. 28 tickets may attend the April 15 concert and Jan. 29 tabs will be honored for the one-woman show on April 16.

Performances are at 8:30 p.m.

U.S. official: shortages to keep plaguing nation

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — The chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee says from all indication shortages of one kind or another will plague this country for the foreseeable future.

For that reason, Sen. Jennings Randolphn D-W. Va., said recently, "It is essential that we resist the temptation to drive our cars more and faster, turn thermostats up, abandon car pools, replace the missing lightbulbs and go on our annual summer air conditioning binge."

Speaking to the annual Kansas Highway Engineering Conference at Kansas State University, Randolph said full utilization must be made of streets and roads to transport people on buses which he called "the most readily available form of mass transit."

Producer of 'Reef' does stunts herself

Virginia's derring do came about because she couldn't afford a stunt girl. She made the entire picture for less than Elizabeth Taylor's usual salary.

Moreover, she convinced her star, Steve Boyd, to dive 65 feet beneath the surface of that same sea in SCUBA gear despite the fact that he can't swim a stroke.

"I dove to depths of 220 feet in waters filled with sharks and barracuda," Virginia said, shuddering at the memory. "I doubled for the leading lady wearing a long blonde wig.

"One day in the middle of an underwater scene I felt something tugging at the wig. I looked back to see three or four barracuda pulling at it with their teeth. I got out of the water in a hurry."

Virginia Stone is truly a liberated woman. She was coproducer with her ex-husband of a score of movies. Now she is on her own, having raised the financing for the new picture as well as casting it.

"I saved as much money as I could," she said. "Independent producers like myself aren't too popular with the major studios or the distributors.

"Once an independent produces a film he also has to sell it. So I'm releasing the movie myself in a few states at a time. That way I save the cost of extra prints. Our first openings are in 135 theaters in North and South Carolina."

"The Treasure of Jamaica Reef" cost a piddling $756,000. There are television films that cost more.

"A major studio couldn't have made the picture for less than $1.3 million and not added a single scene," Virginia said. "But the extra money would have gone to pay for studio overhead that had nothing to do with the movie."

Virginia is a blonde in her 40s. She is knowledgable about motion pictures and what it takes to make them. She spent more than 18 months on her picture, using a sunken ship as her major set.

"This picture is a rarity," she went on. "They gave it a 'G' rating. It's been proved that 'G' rated pictures don't do well at the boxoffice in New York and Los Angeles. But I wanted to make a film for the whole family.

"What surprised me more than anything else was the reaction of film distributors. They don't like 'G' ratings either, although theater owners clamor for them.

"The critics, I've learned, are even rougher on 'G' films than the New York boxoffice. If a film isn't an 'R' or an 'X,' they don't like them.

"Some executives wanted me to put some dirty words in the dialogue so it would get a 'GP' rating. I looked at the film again, but I really couldn't find a place to add profanity or vulgarity. It just doesn't belong in the picture. There's no need for it."

New intimate apparel makes spring scene

Spring '74 intimate apparel is for the liberated woman.

She wears what she wants . . . she can be as seductive as she likes . . . expresses herself in lingerie and loungewear that's romantic, elegant or sexy.

She takes her choice this season in long gowns with the romantic innocence of the country-peasant look . . . or entertains at home in sleek, sensuous things that capture the glamour of the '30's and '40's revisited. She can even go out partying in the sensational new sleepwear that's meant to be seen in . . . long, clinging gowns with the newest high-fashion touches, many of them created by leading ready-to-wear designers.

Today's freedom starts with daywear—what goes on underneath the new clothes. And since this is the year of the super-soft body-conscious dress, women will welcome the new lingerie made of a new Anti-Cling Crepeset nylon yarn by American Enka, because it assures smooth lines all the time. Developed after three years of research, the yarn has permanent anti-cling, static-free properties that eliminate bunching, twisting or riding up. These static-free properties have been built into the well-known Crepeset fiber—the soft, pebbly, crepey, nylon—so that the pebble is there for the life of the fabric, no matter how many times it's washed.

All Crepeset yarn produced by American Enka is now 100 per cent anti-cling nylon. The company no longer manufactures Crepeset without the anti-static additive. Leading designers and manufacturers have been working with the new Anti-Cling Crepeset, and anti-cling bras, bikinis, and slips, nightgowns, and loungewear will all be in the stores for Spring.

Top designers, many of them Coty award winners and outstanding names in ready-to-wear, add their special touch and fashion savvy to this season's new Anti-Cling Crepeset intimate apparel. They include such well known names as Donald Brooks for Maidenform, Pucci, Stan Herman for Youthcraft Chamfit, Clovis Ruffin, Vera for Formit Rogers, Stephen Burrows and John Kloss for Cira.

Each creates his own fashion look, but all agree that it's a season of femininity, enhanced by soft, sensuous crepey fabrics in new yarns such as Anti-Cling Crepeset. These are some of the major trends:

The country-peasant look sets a romantic mood. It can be in a print, featuring fresh-looking daisies scattered on a field of blue . . . in a gown of dreamy innocence, trimmed with eyelet . . . or in a supple, floaty gown that falls softly from a scoop neck edged with ruffles.

For pure allure, there are short, sexy gowns in soft, sexy Anti-Cling Crepeset . . . little side-slit togas with lunging necklines, or abbreviated slip styles with fitted bodices that hug the bosom. Many are in the new soft powder tones of the season, in delicate pinks or apricots. Pale yellows, minty greens or aquas are also important.

The hostess pajama takes on new glamour at a time when more people than ever are entertaining at home. Sleek and sensuous, many of the new pajama sets bare the midriff or swoop dramatically low at back. There are '40's touches in peplum details or in ruffled, off-the-shoulder Carmen Miranda tops.

Nightgowns that go out at night offer a whole new era of slinky dressing for the uninhibited woman. With the right accessories, these long fluid nightgowns step out after dark. There are dramatic new slip-gowns . . some edged with lace . . . others with uncluttered long lean lines . . some with matching cardigan jackets or long floating cover-ups. Deep, cut-out necklines or low-dipping backs give them drama coming or going. They're loaded with glamour, but—and here's the good news—they're at lingerie prices.

HOSTESS PAJAMAS — Women's apparel that recalls the movie-star allure of the 30s is offered in today's newest fabrics. The long fluid look is captured by Stan Herman in a belted tunic top with deep slit neckline that falls slowly from gathers at the shoulders. With it is the long, flowing pajama pant. They're in a sensuous anti-cling crepe-set nylon with permanent anti-static properties that eliminate bunching, twisting or riding up.

Key accents in men's wear

Men's sweaters gain in fashion importance as the layered look and sportswear gain momentum. Most interesting — the sweaters with U-necks, V-necks, turtlenecks (again!). A "sleeper" is the bulky knit which is expected to zoom in popularity.

Men's sleeveless sweaters will tie in handsomely with the continuing theme of the layered look.

Men's umbrellas. The black standard in men's umbrellas will probably never die, but it is moving over and making room for many varieties of fashion umbrellas. Today's male sophisticate is ready to accept color and pattern. Among the best-selling styles are the foulards, stripes, plaids and geometric patterns. Even the folding styles are appearing in handsome fashion shades. The over-sized golf umbrella with multi-colored panels is making a big splash on the market. Handles are receiving special treatments, and practically every style of umbrella comes with its own carrying case.

Baggy pants in for men

Elastic waistband bag-type pants will continue important in young men's apparel through spring '74. That's the opinion of several leading makers of jeans and dress jeans. Manufacturers indicate that the elastic waistband, recently popular in the big gold striped uncovered elastic look, are beginning to move toward covered shirred elastic models for a dresser, less novelty-type approach. They say the elastic band also is appealing to girls, who for some years now have been buying their slacks and jeans in young men's stores and departments and in tops and bottoms shops. The reason for this is that the higher-rise cut with a regular wasitband on many of the new bag-type pants doesn't fit the women customers as well as the basic low-rise, Western-type jeans model. The too-big waistline problem on the higher-rise pants is eliminated with the elasticized model.

THAT'S IT!—UCLA no longer king

Bruin dynasty in NCAA finals crumbles after loss to State

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)—Twice, seven-time NCAA basketball champion UCLA appeared to have an eighth straight title locked up.

But the Bruins' dynasty came to a fitful close Saturday when top-ranked North Carolina State battled from 11 points back in the second half and seven points down in the second overtime, ending UCLA's incredible 38-game NCAA tournament winning streak with a 80-77 victory.

UCLA, despite 29 points and 18 rebounds by Bill Walton, simply lacked the killer instinct.

North Carolina State's victory reversed an 84-66 setback by UCLA at St. Louis on Dec. 15. The Wolfpack will carry a 29-1 record into the Monday's finale against Marquette (26-4), which scored a 64-51 victory over Kansas in the "other" semifinal game.

Another Walton, this one six-foot sophomore Lloyd Walton, sparked the Warriors on a nine-point spree early in the second half for the victory over Kansas.

UCLA, which Monday night will not be playing in the NCAA championship game for the first time since 1966, erected 49-38 and 57-46 leads in the second half. Then the Bruins spurted with seven straight points in the second overtime to take another seemingly insurmountable lead, 74-67, with 3:27 to go.

But tthey couldn't stave off the Wolfpack and their gang heroes — David Thompson, Tom Burleson, Tim Stoddard, Morris Rivers and the smallest of all, 5-5-½, Monte Towe.

Here's how the final North Carolina State rally evolved:

Thompson cut the margin to 75-71 on a tip with three minutes to go. Curtis was called for charging, and Burleson tipped in Thompson's missed shot with 2:16 to go.

Burleson was fouled with 1:38 remaining and made the first shot. Stoddard fouled out with 1:13 to go, but Dave Meyers missed the first of a one-and-one opportunity.

Thompson rebounded and flipped in the go-ahead shot with 53 seconds left for a 76-75 lead. The junior Shelby, N.C., was fouled with 34 seconds left, tossed in free shots and the Wolfpack coach Norm Sloan was a comeback winner.

Sloan said in the dressing "before the season I told the team that we had a chance to be one of the greatest basketball teams of all-time. I'm not making that claim now though. This is an exceptional bunch of young men. Pressure never seems to bother them. They never give up."

UCLA coach John Wooden, after remarking on the brilliance of the nationally televised contest, said some of his players might not play in Monday night's third place game against Kansas.

"This is nothing new," he said. "I ʾave it pretty much to them, and it ıay be that they all want to play.

Each team scored only two points in ıe first overtime. Burleson hit with 4:08 left, wheeling around Walton. UCLA's Greg Lee popped in a 20-footer at the 3:48 mark, tying the game.

The Pack stalled the last three minutes, but Burleson missed an inside shot, the ball rolling off the rim with three seconds to go.

The regulation game ended at 65-65 after N.C. State roared back from an 11-point deficit that UCLA built in the first 4 ½ minutes of the second half.

Led by Walton, the Bruins outscored the Wolfpack, 14-3, for a 49-38 lead with 15:38 remaining.

But N.C. State, with the partisan crowd roaring, didn't quit, finally catching up on a three-point play by Thompson for a 63-61 lead 4:58 from the end of regulation time.

Both teams missed good shots in the last minute. Walton failed with 50 seconds left on a close-in shot and Tim Stoddard, after the Wolfpack ran the clock down, missed from the corner with five seconds to go.

UCLA rescued a 35-35 halftime score when Meyers sank a 35-foot shot at the

In the opening game of the doubleheader, almost forgotten here in the excitement over the heralded showdown between State and UCLA, Kansas had a lead of 29-26 with 18:01 to play when Marquette's Warriors turned the game around with an unbroken string of nine points.

Bill Walton goes up for two points (left) and then comes crashing down on Tom Burleson

Purdue will battle Utah in NIT finals

NEW YORK(UPI) — Exploding loud enough to be heard in Salt Lake City, Utah's high-scoring Redskins reeled off 69 points in the second half to beat Boston College, 117-93, in the nightcap of the NIT semi-finals Saturday at Madison Square Garden.

Utah thus moved into the finale against Purdue, which jolted Jacksonville, 78-63, in the opener of Saturday's doubleheader played before 12,105.

Leading 48-45 at half-time, the Utes charged out on the floor as if they were fired up, outscoring Boston College 18-2 in the first 5 ½ minutes of the second half and never let up the pressure. Mike Sojourner, with 29 points, Tickey Burden, with 28, and Tyrone Medley, with 17, accounted for 74 of Utah's total points.

Bob Carrington, Boston sophomore, was high man for the losers with 33 points, 25 of which were tallied in the first half. Utah's three-game total of 311 points is a new team high for three games in the NIT — topping the 294 registered by Bradley in 1957. The Redskins, needing only 44 more points to become the NIT's all-time scoring leaders, are a cinch to break the mark Sunday. St. Bonaventure's 1960 unit is the current record-holder with 354 points.

Broncos score in S.B. relays

Montgomery's jump was measured at 48 fett, 9¾ inches. The 880 relay team of Joe Fabian, Jerrold Curry, Doug Dantzler, and Myron McGill placed fourth with a time of 1:28.2.

Russ Reabold placed fourth in the shotput with a put of 51 feet, 2 inches. McGill ran the hundred in 9.7 to qualify for the finals but did not place in the finals.

USC outscored four other Pac-8 track and field rivals to claim the University division championship with 84 points.

Wooden just shrugs it off

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

But UCLA coach John Wooden doesn't agree with that theory.

He never thought of the Bruins' string of seven consecutive national championships and nine in 10 years as a dynasty.

"I've never considered a dynasty," Wooden said after his Bruins were defeated by top-ranked North Carolina St. 80-77 in two overtimes here Saturday afternoon in the NCAA semifinals. "We have had a nice run, but things didn't break right for us today."

Wooden was saluted by a national gathering of writers—the most ever for a national tournament—when he spoke at his post-game press conference.

Most of the writers applauded the Wizard of Westwood for his accomplishments plus his cooperation as a losing coach after so many years as a winner.

"This has been a long and great season," Wooden said. "I imagine a lot of people are going to be disappointed and may be critical of me for not being dejected or down but that's the way I am.

"I don't like my team to show much emotion and a win or loss. After our loss today, I told our team that we made some critical mistakes but to forget them because there is nothing they can do about them now.

"We have a great group of youngsters on this year's team. That's one reason why I'm still coaching. I think games like this are great for incollegiate basketball. While there are some problems with this sport as so many things in life, a game like this proves the sport isn't as sick as some people think."

Even though North Carolina St., which now plays Marquette for the national crown Monday night, was ranked No. 1 entering Saturday's action, UCLA was still considered the favorite because of its tremendous tournament record through the years. The defeat ended a string of 38 consecutive victories in NCAA play.

"We had the ability to build leads this season but we couldn't hold them," Wooden said. "I guess that has to be the coaching. We started four seniors this year and it has been my experience through the years that players usually fall off their performances their senior year."

It's incredible to think UCLA enjoyed an 11-point lead with 10:56 left in regulation play only to have N.C. State bounce back. What's even more remarkable was the Bruins having a seven-point margin with 3:27 remaining in the second overtime only to lose. Tommy Curtis was already starting his victory routine when the Pack roared from behind.

In all four losses this season, UCLA has blown big leads.

"I thought we had the game in hand two different times," Wooden said. "But we made some crucial mistakes and North Carolina State had the poise and ability to take advantage of it. We took some bad shots for a team with a lead.

"I knew our string of national championships couldn't go on forever. I'm happy it went as long as it did."

Both Wooden and North Carolina State coach Norm Sloan agreed the rabid fans in this basketball-happy state played a big part in the Wolfpack victory.

"We played North Carolina State in St. Louis (84-66 win) and in North Carolina," Wooden said. "Now I wish we could play them in Los Angeles. I think (Tom) McMillen was right."

McMillen, the Maryland star, said nobody can beat a North Carolina team in Greensboro after his team was defeated by the Wolfpack in overtime in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament finals.

"Mind you, I'm not complaining," Wooden quickly added. "We've had the national championships twice in Los Angeles and we enjoyed the advantage in those games. This crowd here was a tremendous help when N.C. State had their rallies. This is a beautiful place to play basketball."

"Sure, the crowd helped us," Sloan added. "It helped us more than it hurt UCLA since they had been through situations a number of times."

"UCLA will close its season Monday against Kansas in the third place consolation game and there is some question whether all the Bruins will play.

"Consolation games are for the birds," Wooden added. "Some of our players probably won't be playing. I'll leave it up to them. I will try to use the players who haven't seen much action this season and hope we have a good time."

Actually, one must wonder if Bill Walton will play Monday. The UCLA superstar has already completed his studies at Westwood and must now decide his future course as far as accepting an attractive offer from the pros.

When asked about Saturday's game, Walton said, "Go ask the other guys. I just want to dress and go home." Home could mean Los Angeles, San Diego or the hotel here.

Sloan isn't celebrating too much. His club must still think about Monday's title game with Marquette, a cinderella team coached by the colorful Al McGuire.

"No, I can't consider this as our greatest win," Sloan said. "We've had some great wins this year and this is one of them. If we win Monday night, that will be the best."

"We beat a great basketball team," Sloan added. "It is one of the greatest of all times but so is our team."

Pressure has never really bothered us. We never gave up today even though we were denied victories at the end of regulation time and at the end of the first overtime. We played it perfectly, the ball just didn't go in. It looked like almost an impossible task in the second overtime but we did a lot of great things to rally back."

Foreman ready to convince Norton, public Tuesday

CARACAS (UPI) — George Foreman puts it all on the line here Tuesday night, for ambitious Ken Norton first and then for those who keep raising the question of whether he's now only a rusty heavyweight champion with one token defense in 14 months or still the sledge-hammering strongman who demolished Joe Frazier in five minutes.

The unbeaten, untied 25-year-old champion, who has knocked out 36 of his 39 professional victims, makes the point the title no longer is his but actually is "up for grabs" when he enters the ring against second-ranked Norton in the first heavyweight championship fight ever to be held in South America. Nonetheless, Foreman is confident he'll walk away still the champion.

"I'd prefer to win as early as possible, but I'm training for 15 rounds or whatever it takes,' says the huge 220-pound titleholder, whom Muhammad Ali claims has no finesse and swings like a washer woman."

As for the question of whether his general inactivity in the ring for more than a year now may have eroded some of his skills and dulled his sharpness, Foreman replies, "It may or may not, but I'll only find out when I actually test myself. I'll be burning at Ken Norton from the first round'.

Norton figures that.

The broad-shouldered, thin-waisted 28-year-old ex-marine who has two years of university behind him, says he's smarter than high school dropout Foreman and will 'out-think him" Tuesday night.

''Foreman's main asset is his strength,' says the articulate Norton, "What we're going to do is use his strength to our advantage'.

"He's going to need a lot of that intelligence of his to pick himself off the floor," Foreman counters.'I think Norton should rely on everything he can. We both know he's got a fight on his hands'.

Norton has won 30 of his 32 professional bouts, 23 of them by knockouts but skyrocketed into prominence with a 12-round decision over Muhammad Ali a year ago. Ali reversed that decision last September.

Should Foreman beat Norton, his next fight will be against Ali. Overtures for such a projected fight have been made to Foreman here, annoying Norton's handlers to such an extent that they decided not to train him for a couple of days publicly in the Poliedro stadium, site of the fight, as a sign of protest.

Norton did train two days in secret, but his co-manager, Art Rivkin, said this had nothing to do with a possible Foreman-Ali fight in the future but was merely because the challenger wanted to experiment with some new tactics and that would be difficult to do in public.

'Sure we heard about the approaches made to Foreman for an Ali fight,' Rivkin said. "We plan to throw some bolts into those plans.'

More than half a billion people in 70 countries will watch it live on communication satellite television.

Norton himself was a relative newcomer among the top heavyweights until he broke Ali's jaw last March 31 before a hometown crowd in San Diego. He won that fight but lost a close rematch Sept. 10 on a split decision.

Only other man to beat Norton was Jose Luis Garcia, a Venezuela who knocked him out in eight rounds in 1970, early in his career.

The fight will be shown Tuesday on closed circuit television at the Fox theatre in Pomona.

Tickets are priced at $10 for reserved main floor seats and $8 for unreserved seats in the balcony. Doors will open at 5:30 p.m. Monday. The title fight is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Kings extend streak to 10

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Reserve goalie Gary Edwards registered his first shutout of the season Saturday night to keep Los Angeles unbeaten in its last 10 National Hockey League games as the playoffbound Kings blanked the Vancouver Canucks, 5-0.

In tying a club mark with its 10-game unbeaten string, the Kings remained three points ahead of fourth-

Dodgers win 7th straight

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Los Angeles is on a hitting binge and their opponentssare in a fielding nightmare. First it was the Yankees and Saturday it was the turn of Motreal to commit seve errors as the Dodgers beat the Expos 15-6.

The Dodgers have scored 29 runs in two days. This latest victory was their seventh straight and gave them a grapefruit record of 9-and-5.

It was no contest after the first inning when the Dodgers combined five hits with four Montreal mistakes for nine runs. Highlight of the inning was a three-run homer by Tom Paciorek for the last three runs. Pitching to Jim Wynn, the next batter up, Balor Moore, narrowly missed his helmet with a fast ball and for a few moments it appeared there might be a brawl as players rushed from both benches. No blows were struck.

Wynn hit a home run over the right field bank in his next turn at bat and Moore was removed from the game midway through the fourth inning.

Held to one run on two hits by Tommy John over the first six innings, the Expos broke out for five runs in the seventh against Greg Shanahan on two singles and two doubles.

Claremont girls win three times

The quarter mile relay team, which was clocked in 53.0 seconds, consisted on Terri Ryan, Sonia Bowe, Ann Maybie and Muriel Brownell.

The 880 medley team, which recorded a time of 2:00.5, included Bowe, Ryan, Margo Warhurst and Kim Stanley.

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Sparked by John Riddle's one-hitter in the nightcap, Cal Poly swept a doubleheader from the University of Oregon team Saturday, taking the opener 3-2 and the second game 4-0.

Impressive pitching and timely hitting proved the difference for Poly. Dee King fired a six-hitter in the opening victory and Riddle was simply sensational in the windup to the twinbill.

The Ducks got one run back in the second off of King. Dean Roberts, younger brother of ex-Oregon great and San Diego Padre third baseman Dave Roberts, singled and stole second. Bo Aiello got him in with another one-bagger.

Poly scored what proved to be the winning tally in the third.

Don Reynolds, the Ducks' star running back during the football season, got home a run in the fifth with a triple, but King stayed tough for the win.

The big righthander finished with three strikeouts and no walks, but Riddle's performance in the nightcap overshadowed him.

The Bronco southpaw silenced the rugged-hitting Ducks on one hit, an infield single by Roberts in the fourth, and fanned 11 Oregon batters in seven innings.

Poly got Riddle all the runs he needed in the first. A single by Ludewig, two walks, and two big errors by the Oregon shortstop got in three scores for the Broncos.

Dave Metkovich, son of ex-big leaguer George "Catfish" Metkovich, picked up an RBI single in the third to stretch the Poly lead to 4-0.

Riddle walked three in completely baffling the Ducks for his first mound win of the season, and the Cal Poly defense played flawlessly behind him.

The wins were big ones for coach John Scolinos' squad. Poly was struggling with a 6-13 mark coming into the twinbill.

Oregon, who will be competing in the UC Riverside tourney next week, fell to a 4-7 season record with the two losses.

Poly now travels to Santa Barbara for a three-game set with UCSB. The Broncos will play a single game Monday at the Gauchos' diamond, and the two teams will come back for a doubleheader Tuesday.

La Verne, APC win pair; Claremont-Mudd splits two

The Leopards took an extra inning to squeeze by Redlands 7-4 in the opener of a conference doubleheader. In the nightcap, the Leos walloped the Bulldogs, 10-2.

That gives La Verne an 8-4 record overall. In Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) competition, the Leos are 3-0 and tied for second place with Claremont-Mudd.

Azusa Pacific defeated Biola College 5-1 and 11-5 at Biola. The Cougars now are 9-7 for the season and have won five of their last six games.

Claremont-Mudd played a non-conference doubleheader at Cal Lutheran. The Stags slugged out an 11-3 win in the first game but dropped the second, 7-5, when Kingsmen hitters connected for three home runs.

The Stags now are 8-6 overall and remain 3-0 in conference play.

Robb Mayhew notched his first victory of the season for La Verne. The USIU transferee had lost to USC, Cal State Long Beach and Chapman.

Redlands tied it up with a run in the seventh to send the game into extra innings. But the Leos roared back with three runs in the eighth to win.

Jesse Mendoza singled and scored when Wayne Redfearn smashed a triple. Paul Flemming walked. Rich Fielder singled to score Redfearn. Don Snyder singled to put runners on second and third. Hank Merenda's sacrifice fly scored Flemming with the final run.

The second game was scoreless for two innings, then the Leos went to work. They scored once in the third, three times in the fourth, twice in the fifth and added three more in the sixth as Dan Quisenberry recorded his third win.

Leading hitters for the day were Fielder with five hits in eight at bats including three doubles and Big Mike Alonso. Alonso slammed his sixth home run of the season and also had a double as he, too went 5-for-8.

VanSchoych had four hits in eight at-bats including a double and batted in three runs. Mitchell had a double and triple and batted in two runs in going 4-for-7.

Gary Burger tripled in three runs and Jim Mullowney slammed a three-run homer in Claremont-Mudd's 11-3 win. In the second game, Henry Baver, Jim Hyatt, and Ken Willoughby hit roundtrippers for the Kingsmen. Mike Bruno started and was roughed up for five runs in three innings.

Mounties fall back with twinbill split

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — A leaky defense which contributed to eight errors in the first game of a doubleheader with San Diego Mesa Saturday afternoon, may have knocked Mt. San Antonio College out of the South Coast Conference title picture.

The Mounties came back in the nitecap after dropping the opener, 6-1, to pound the Olympians with 12 hits in a 9-3 victory.

The Falcons earned coach Wally Kincaid his 500th career victory, shutting out hapless Orange Coast, 8-0. The win was the 37th in a row for Cerritos over two seasons, including 17-0 this season and 9-0 in South Coast play.

The Mounties (5-4 and 15-5 overall are four games out of first place and a game behind second place Santa Ana (6-3). They visit Santa Ana Tuesday.

"Our backs are to the wall now," said Mazmanian after it was over Saturday. "We had to win two out of three this week and we didn't do it. I really didn't expect to sweep the doubleheader. We needed a win over Cerritos earlier in the week." The Mounties lost to the Falcons Tuesday, 5-2, all on unearned runs.

After blowing the opener to Mesa, the Mounties jumped all over Olympian starter Chuck Rainey in the seven-winning nitecap, scoring in every inning but the fifth.

The big hitters were leftfielder Whitney Rinear and shortstop Mike Parkinson, who each collected two hits, two ribbies and scored two runs. Designated hitter Don Cashen and third baseman Kevin Bell each had two hits also.

Righthander Charlie Fallon went the distance to pick up his fourth victory in six starts. The sophomore struck out three, walked seven and gave up nine hits.

Lefthander Bobby Chaulk was credited with his first loss in six games in the opener, going seven-plus innings before he was relieved by Ralph Beltran. Chaulk fanned seven, and walked only one. He had a one-hitter through four innings. But the roof caved in in the fifth as the Olympians pounded him for four hits and two runs.

Mazmanian expects to start either lefthander Jim Vallone (2-1) or righthander Darrell Weatherbee (1-0) at Santa Ana Tuesday.

The league diving competition had been held Friday at Pacific High.

Overall, the Tigers amassed 347 points in the two-day league finals to 269 for runnerup Redlands High. Riverside finished a distant third with 162 points.

Jeff Daines and Steve Evans had gotten Chaffey off flying in the championship by finishing first and third respectively in the diving events.

In the swimming competition, the Tigers scored a complete sweep of the 500-yard free-style, with Royce Wilson claiming first and Ron Allen and Wayne Jenkins finishing second and third.

Wilson and Ron Allen finished second-third in the 200-yard free-style, while Mark Lucas and Curt Spencer came in second and third in the 100-yard free-style.

Miller loses concentration; Heritage lead drops to four

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, aided by a hole in one, sat on a 10 stroke advantage and appeared set for a runaway lead when his concentration wavered on the back nine, forcing him to settle for a 1-over-par 72 and a four-stroke lead after three rounds of the $200,000 Heritage Golf Classic.

Miller stood seven under par at 206 for 54 holes, and must be favored to register his fourth victory of the year Sunday even though he dropped five strokes to par coming home when he started thinking about UCLA and how it was making out against North Carolina state in the NCAA semi-finals.

Weiskopf had a 67 and Gilbert 68.

At one-under-par, six strokes off the pace in the chase for the $40,000 first prize, were Len Thompson and Tom Kite.

"I was more worried about UCLA than I was my golf," said Californian Miller. "I just lost my concentration."

Miller, the year's top tour money winner with $109,000, was 12 strokes under par at the turn as he aced the 167-yard, par-three seventh hole with a four iron.

Then, with identical 67s already under his belt in the first round and an apparent runaway in his mind, the lanky golfer bogeyed the 11th and 12th, double-bogeyed the 15th with a lakeshot and added one more bogey.

"I was trying to play smart golf," said Miller. "I just should have paid attention to what I was doing and played it shot by shot."

The golfing sensation of the year, who won the first three tournaments on the current tour, was still a heavy favorite to win the top money Sunday despite his troubles Saturday.

Weiskopf said he wasn't giving up and that anything could happen on the narrow fairways of ths Atlantic coastal island resort. The fairways are spotted with sea sand traps and quiet alligator pools.

"When you play a tough course like this," said Weiskopf, "and you're even within five shots you've got a chance.

At even par were David Graham, Forrest Fezler, J.C. Snead, Allen Miller, and Lanny Wadkins.

Arnold Palmer, the ageless wonder of modern golf and winner of the first Heritage Classic in 1969, showed some of the old flair with a 67 and a 54-hole total of 214.

"Everything that could go wrong on that back side, did," Miller said. I still have a four-shot lead. I'll hahve to to win it."

Mission Conference baseball

Panthers, Owls win again

Chaffey and Citrus continued their winning ways in the Mission Conference Saturday, the Panthers beating Grossmont 5-1 while the Owls defeated San Diego City College by a 6-3 count.

Chaffey hurler Dave Bryant fired a three-hitter against SDCC. The righthander registered five strikeouts in gaining his third win on the season, two of them in the MC.

Grossmont actually held a 1-0 lead going into the bottom of the sixth, but Dave Hill changed that around, belting a two-run homer for the Panthers.

David Chavez clinched the Chaffey win with a three-run round-tripper in the eighth. It was the 19th home run on the season for Chaffey, a new school record.

Citrus built up a 6-0 lead against SDCC, and pitcher Jim Arkison held on for the triumph.

Seven errors by the visiting Knights proved very beneficial to the Owls.

Citrus combined three singles and three SDCC errors for the three fifth-frame runs, and two more errors in the seventh led to three more Owl tallies.

San Diego finally got to Arkison for a run in the eight. It was the first run he had allowed in 28 and two-thirds innings of pitching in the Mission Conference.

Jim Valley had four hits for SDCC, and Bill George accounted for three more. Citrus managed only seven hits off San Diego's John Rector.

The win for the Panthers advances their MC record to 9-2, as the first half of play will end Monday for Chaffey as they host Southwestern.

Citrus advances to an 8-3 mark with their victory, as they continue to stay on the heels of Chaffey and Palomar, the Mission loop's co-leaders. Palomar posted a 10-1 win over Riverside Saturday to stay even with Chaffey at 9-2.

Overall, Chaffey is now 13-5 while Citrus is 11-7. Gary Wagoner is expected to start for the Panthers Monday against Southwestern. The contest is a makeup of an earlier MC game which was rained out.

SCIAC double dual meet

Oxy throttles Leos, Stags

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Occidental showed why there's power in numbers Saturday afternoon as coach Steve Haas' Tigers routed Claremont-Mudd 115-28, and destroyed La Verne 125-16 while the Stags blasted the Leos 98-36 in an SCIAC double-dual track meet at the Stag field.

Oxy's 25-man squad had little trouble with La Verne's 'Dirty Dozen' and CMC's eight-man team while first in 14 of the 15 events.

The Tigers, now 4-0 on the league season, appear to be well on the way to their 29th consecutive SCIAC championship.

Coach Haas, who starred on Oxy's title teams in the early 60's, is the possessor of the L.A. Sports Arena record in the 440-yard run with a time of 56.6 in 1962.

John Kuechle led the perennial titleists with a double win in the triple jump (43-2) and the long jump (23-0). Former Upland High distance star Bob Kryczko was an easy victor in the three mile (14:54.9) and placed second in the 880 (2:01.7). Jack Fischer was first in the mile in 4:28.7 and placed second in the 440 in 54.2.

Kryczko seems to have found a home at Oxy and Haas is pleased with the freshman's decision to run for him.

"Kryczko has very good potential," said Haas. "He ran a lifetime best 4:17.7 last Saturday and is consistently improving."

"Haas is a real good coach," said Kryczko. "I'm coming around slow but I've improved each meet. We have a good track program. It's easy competition in league but we also run against Stanford, Arizona, San Jose and Washington."

"My fastest times have come against major college competition but I haven't placed yet," added the former Scot star. "I'm usually in it until the last lap and then end up fifth or sixth."

Claremont-Mudd's James Frierson was the only non-Tiger to win an event.

Frierson, who just join the track team this week, captured first in the 440 in his first league competition with a time of 51.7.

The Stags' Tom Reese displayed his versatility in placing second in the shot put at 44-1¾, third in the javelin (157-1), fourth in the 120 highs (18.4) and sixth in the high jump.

Teammate Bob Davies ran a 4:29.1 mile to place second and finished fourth in the 880 (2:04.9) and fifth in the 220. While Wardell Armstrong was third in the 100 in 10.6 and second in the high jump at 6-0.

La Verne's top performers were Dane Coleman who placed third in the long jump with a leap of 17-5 and third in the triple jump at 40-10½. He also ran third in the intermediate hurdles with a time of 1:06.6.

The Leos' Rick Bash ran fifth in the 100, fourthh in the long jump and fifth in the triple jump.

'Hens, Cougars roll to easy track victories

Both Pomona-Pitzer and Azusa Pacific colleges had little trouble with their opponents Saturday in track action.

The Sagehens from P-P remained unbeaten in Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) action by whipping Redlands, 102-43. Meanwhile, APC came out on top in a tri-meet encounter with Whittier and Biola. The Cougars compiled 87 points to Whittier's 61 and Biola's 33.

Four Pomona-Pitzer athletes scored double victories in the meet against Redlands. Sprinter Bill Taylor captured firsts in the 220 in 22.1 seconds and the 440 in 49.0 seconds.

Distance runner Randy Luce won both the mile and the three miles for the 'Hens with times of 4:23.7 and 14:50.2, respectively.

Steve Smith did his thing again in the hurdles for Pomona, winning the 120 highs in 15.2 seconds and the 440 intermediates in 55.9 seconds.

And, of course, Ray Fogg copped the top spots in the shot put (54-11¾) and the discuss (156-6½).

APC captured firsts in five of the seven field events, with John Wallace turning in the best day for the Cougars. Wallace won the long jump, ran a leg on the winning mile relay team, placed second in the triple jump and second in the 440.

Sloan knows he has a job to do to get his team ready for Marquette.

"Marquette is in an enviable position because it came here without a lot of pressure. It is a fine defensive team," the Wolfpack coach said. "Our problem will be getting back down to earth. We have worked too hard to get to this point to let it get away from us now."

As usual, McGuire gave the writers something to think about after his team beat Kansas, 64-51.

"I thought I'd done a great job until I went for the television interview," McGuire said. "North Carolina State came on the court then and that was the end of the interview. Too much noise."

Kansas used a zone against the Warrirors, which pleased McGuire. "I prefer zones. If you put a zone against us, it allows us to rest on offense and work on defense."

Earlier in the week, McGuire predicted UCLA would win the national championship this year but it would be the end of the UCLA dynasty.

"You can't lose players like Walton and (Keith) Wilkes and be as strong," Wooden said. "We'll have a fine team next year."

That seems like a warning for anyone thinking that the Bruins are finished.

TOURNEY NOTES: Jerry Miles, former P-B sports editor is the man responsible for taking care of the 500 members of the media in his position as director of public relations for the NCAA. He is assisted by Dave Daniel, another ex-P-Ber . . .

Next year's finals will return to California at San Diego. The following year the NCAA Tourney for Philadelphia, Atlanta and St. Louis. Next year's four Regionals are scheduled for Providence, Dayton, New Mexico St. and Oregon State at Portland.

Kings going after title

POMONA — The Pomona Kings softball team will be shooting for the championship game of the Northeast Softball Association pre-season tournament today when it meets Warner West at 1 p.m. at Pico Park in Pico Rivera.

The Kings advanced Saturday by defeating LaFlor, 5-3, behind the pitching of Dominic Ocessano and the hitting of Alex Reed.

Sagehens drop both ends

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

CLAREMONT — Should this decade ever end, it might very well be tagged by historian as "The Spiraling Seventies." While everything from the price of Coca-Cola to the face of Phyllis Diller is being lifted, it's nice to know that one thing will probably stay the same—the position of Pomona-Pitzer in the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference baseball race.

The Sagehens, getting off to their best start in many years this season with a 4-1 non-conference mark, showed that they will once again manage to finish ahead of Caltech in the standings but probably no one else, as Whittier completed a three-game sweep with 6-2 and 14-3 victories Saturday.

Playing on the Sagehen home field, the Poets started each game early, scoring three times in their first at bat of the initial game and tallying five in the first three innings of the nightcap.

David Jones suffered the loss in the seven-inning opener as he gave up 12 hits but turned in a creditable performance by striking out five and walking only three.

In the second loss, the defeat went against Jon Blacker, the first of three 'Hen hurlers. In his four and two-thirds innings of work, Blacker gave up seven runs but was victimized by a leaky defense.

Despite the lopsided finale score, the second game was more encouraging from the offensive standpoint for coach Mike Riskas as the 'Hens collected 10 hits with Biff Sherman going three-for-four and Kim Aguirre knocking in all three runs with a double and a long run run in three trips to the plate.

The big wheels against Pomona were two graduates of California High School in Whittier who didn't even start in their prep days. Rod Wilhelms had a six for-eight performance in the two games with two triples and a double while Dana Tunison was four-for-six in the second game. In all, the Poets had 20 hits in the second game.

Pomona-Pitzer, which has a much tougher schedule in the SCIAC than most teams (because it doesn't get to hit against Sagehens pitching), faces Redlands Tuesday on the Bulldogs' field.

Sands homer lifts Angels

Sands, batting for Sandy Alomar, hit his second pinch-hit home run of the spring to provide the California Angels with a 4-3 win over Milwaukee Saturday.

It was exactly one week ago that Sands came off the bench in the same eighth inning and hit another three-run homer to beat San Francisco 5-4.

Sands' third home run of the spring wiped out the Brewers' 3-1 lead and spoiled an excellent pitching performance by Clyde Wright, who was traded to Milwaukee by the Angels during the winter.

Wright allowed just five hits and one run in seven innings and stood to be the winner before Sands hit a Bill Wilson pitch over the right field fence after walks to Rudy Meoli and Mickey Rivers.

Rivers' triple and a sacrifice fly by Alomar gave California a 1-0 lead in the first inning.

Another former Angel, Ken Berry, doubled and eventually scored the tying run on George Scott's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning.

Berry's third hit of the game, an infield single that came with the bases loaded, gave Milwaukee a 2-1 lead in the seventh.

Sanguillen remembers Clemente

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI — The memory of Roberto Clemente still kindles brightly in the mind of Manny Sanguillen.

"I think about him a lot," confesses Sanguillen, who probably was closer to the late Pirates outfielder than any other player. "Rennie (Stennett) often does things on the field which remind me of Roberto. The way he (Stennett) slides and the way he stands at the plate. He makes me remember."

Sanguillen, of course, would never want to forget the great Hall of Famer whose life tragically was cut short in an airplane crash on Dec. 31, 1972. If it had not been for Clemente, Sanguillen strongly doubts he would be the all-star player he is today.

"He helped me so much. When I first came to spring training with the Pirates, guys who I had known like Matty Alou and Manny Mota were gone. Roberto sort of looked after me. I remember he let me drive his car. I was always calling him 'sir' and he was real appreciative of my respect for him. He became like my brother," says Manny.

"He was always giving me advice on how to improve my game. He would come in from rightfield and ask me why I called a certain pitch on a certain batter. He would tell me that it was the wrong call and that I should have called a different kind of pitch.

"After the '71 season he took me with him to Puerto Rico to play on his team. He was the manager, and he helped me so much with details. People in Puerto Rico think he was my brother."

Sanguillen still believes the reason the Pirates didn't win the National League East pennant in 1973 was due mostly to the loss of Clemente.

"Willie Stargell is a great ballplayer, but Roberto was a pusher. He'd get a basehit and Willie would come up behind him and we'd get something going. And when he was in rightfield you knew if a ball was hit to right a runner wasn't going to try and take an extra base. When I was put there everybody tried to take the extra base," says Sanguillen.

The attempted conversion of Sanguillen from catcher to rightfield last spring was one of the more disastrous moves the Pirates tried in an effort to rectify the loss of Clemente, and Manny feels it was a major reason why he failed to hit .300.

"Actually I really felt strong when I was playing right and I was hitting the ball pretty good, but then when I switched back to catcher it took a lot out of my body," recalls Sanguillen. "I had caught only twice during spring training and when they asked me to switch back to catcher it was the middle of June.

"I really didn't do very well behind the plate. I didn't go through with my motion and I was throwing most of the time off-balance. To be a good catcher takes a lot of work. You have to practice. It is a very hard position to play. I have to work hard in spring training to get myself ready."

This spring Sanguillen finds himself in a much better frame of mind. He will be the No. 1 catcher this year and can devote his energies toward perfecting his trade.

"This year I know I'm behind home plate and I'm thinking about catching. I feel much more relaxed. There is a much better attitude on the whole club this year. We know we can win it."

Friendly Advice

A 75-year-old lady in Oklahoma City has been sending quarterbacking advice to the University of Oklahoma's Jack Mildren for three seasons. 'I think she's given me 20 different grips that she says would make me throw the ball better," says Mildren, who completed 49 per cent of his passes last season. "I still don't think I'm a bad passer but maybe I should drop by and see her. She might have the secret."

Sailplane pilots prep for L.A. to D.C. soaring derby

LOS ANGELES — Seven of the nation's top soaring pilots will depart here May 1 for Washington, D.C. in the third annual Smirnoff Sailplane Derby, the world's longest glider competition.

The gliders, which depend entirely upon air currents for their power, will follow a 2,900-mile course across country that is expected to bring them to Washington on or about May 20.

Edward H. Butts of Twin Falls, Idaho, competition director for the Smirnoff event, announced today that the invitational field includes the U.S. standard class soaring champion, the world "Goal and Return" distance record holder, the holder of the national 100-kilometer speed record, and a three-time U.S. open class champion.

Last year's Smirnoff Derby, the second cross-country sailplane race ever undertaken, began on May 14 at Los Angeles and terminated in Frederick, Maryland, 17 days later. It was won by Goren Ax of Sweden, who then was world open class soaring chapion.

Cities on the route of the Smirnoff Derby will include Las Vegas, Nevada; Phoenix, Arizona; Las Cruces, New Mexico; Odessa, Texas; Dallas, Texas; Tulsa, Oklahoma; St. Louis, Missouri; Indianpaolis, Indiana; Akron, Ohio; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Frederick, Maryland; and Washington, D.C.

Modest Moses Malone:

Prep cager of the year

Petersburg, Va. (UPI) — For modest Moses Malone being recruited by 200 colleges is a little hard to believe. But it's not for anyone who has seen him play basketball.

Malone is a high school David Thompson and probably this year's most sought-after graduating senior. There are some who think he could skip college and go right into the pros. He isn't one of them.

"A lot of people tell me I'm the best, that I'm the greatest that ever played the game. But me? I'm just another player," said the 6-10, 210 pounder. he has been the star of the Petersburg, Va. high school team that has won two consecutive state championships and 50 straight games.

In one third of the school's games this year Malone outscored and outrebounded the entire opposition team.

"People tell me how much money I might be worth right now, but I really don't think about the money. Not now. I've got too much basketball to play, gotta learn more about the game."

But pro scout Marty Blake, who does reports for 25 major league basketball teams, believes that Malone, who averaged 38 points, 19 rebounds, and six blocked shots per game, is ready to skip college.

"Malone is ready to play pro ball right now," he said. "Why shouldn't he play pro? Why should he go to college. A lot of baseball players turn pro right out of high school, why can't a kid like Malone," he said.

"Colleges give you all that baloney about education but let's be realistic."

Malone disagrees.

"College really means a lot to me. I think I can get a lot out of it, and it can do something for me."

But picking the school has now become his biggest problem —there are so many to choose from.

"I got a box about this high of college applications," he said, stretching his arm out waist high. "I guess there's a couple hundred in there. It's hard for me to believe them."

And then there are all those people who have "just the right school where you'll be happy." Like the teacher who walked up while Malone was being interviewed, and tugged on his sleeve.

"Mo, tell me if it's none of my business or not, but has anyone written you from Eau Claire State —you know —it's a little school in Wisconsin?"

But before he could answer the teacher added:

"My brother went there, and he wrote me and asked me to ask you if he could send some information about the school if you'd like?" Malone slowly walked away mumbling a reply that no one understood.

Malone said he plans to visit a number of the major schools like UCLA. But there are persistent rumors that the two leading contenders for the player who may dominate college basketball in the next four years are Maryland and Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond.

Sources indicate that Maryland may have the inside track. If Lefty Driesell, whose reputation as a recruiter was well established when he lured Tom McMillen away from North Carolina just as the now All-American was about to enroll, gets Malone, Maryland might finally get through the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

That would give them the shot at the National title Driesell has wanted to win.

He is currently director of golf for San Diego Country Estates as well as a regular on the tour.

Admission is free and the clinic is open to all youngsters 10 through 17.

San Diego Country Estates is located in the San Vicente Valley just four miles south of Ramona and can be reached from San Diego via Interstate 8 and Highway 67.

In other tournaments, Marie Muchmore won the even holes event, while Emily Miller took and shared honors with 70s Mrs. Bass in the low net—low gross tourney.

Hunting fatals still low, but mishaps up

SACRAMENTO — Ten persons died in California hunting accidents last year, equalling a record for the fewest number, but the number of mishaps and the accident rate both were up from the year before.

These are among highlights of the annual hunter safety report of the Department of Fish and Game released this week by Capt. Bruce Sanford, acting DFG hunter safety training officer.

Eight-seven persons were injured in hunting accidents in the state during the year, and the accident rate was 1.29 per 10,000 hunters.

The 10 fatalities tied the record for the fewest number set in 1971 and equalled the following year. Until 1971 there had been no year in which the number of fatalities had been fewer than the 11 registered in 1969.

There were 31 fatal accidents during the first year of the DFG's hunter safety program, second in the nation when it was inaugurated in 1955. The number has fluctated widely since. There were 17 fatalities in 1970.

The record low in the number of accidents was the 70 set in 1971. There were 79 accidents each during 1972 and 1957, and 89 during 1970.

In terms of accident rate, last year's mark was the highest in five years and up sharply from the 1.13 for the previous year. The accident rate for 1971 was the lowest ever at 0.93, and the rate for 1970 was 1.19.

Capt. Sanford compiled his statistics from uniform hunter casualty reports. For the first time, in incidents in which more than one person was injured, a separate accident was record for each victim.

Most accidents occurred in open areas where visibility was good and at distance of 10 yards or less between shooter and victim. Deer hunters led all others in number of mishaps (25), with pheasant (18) and squirrel (12) hunters following.

The shotgun was the most dangerous weapon. Shotguns were involved in 45 accidents. The rifle was next with 26, and the pistol accounted for 14.

Medic warns of spinal infection with addicts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Heroin addicts may develop a painful and dangerous spinal infection caused by bacteria introduced into the body with dirty needles and drugs, according to a University of Southern California physician.

Dr. Michael J. Patzakis, USC assistant professor of orthopedic surgery, says doctors should consider the possibility of infection between the disks of the spine when examining patients with puzzling back conditions.

German minstrel on Bridges slate

CLAREMONT — Karl Wolfram, German minstrel, will resurrect the sound of the Middle Ages and Renaissance period on rare historical instruments in an 8:15 p.m. concert Wednesday in Bridges Hall of Music, Pomona College.

Wolfram, who has revived the art of the touring minstrel, will accompany himself on a hurdy-gurdy, lute and theorbo.

Wolfram has presented concerts throughout the world for more than 20 years and has sung at most of the major colleges and universities in the United States. His repertoire includes English lute songs, Italian madrigals and Spanish works for the vihuela as well as German vocal literature ranging from 12th century Minnelieder to art songs of the 19th century.

The three instruments on which he plays have an interesting history. The radleier, or hurdy-gurdy, something of a combination between a medieval fiddle and a street organ, originated in the 10th century. The original large instrument was reduced in size through a series of modifications over the centuries. Wolfram's model was found in a pawn shop in Poland and is believed to have been built in the 15th century.

The therobo is the large lute of the late Renaissance, having, in addition to the six strings of the lute, a number of bass strings stretched over a second neck. Wolfram's instrument was built in 1916 by the famous lute maker Hermann Hauser.

His lute dates back to 1551. It was repaired in 1715 in Breslau, Poland by the lute maker Johann Stirtzer, and is believed to have once been the property of Frederick the Great. In 1803 this instrument was transformed into a guitar in Berlin.

Wolfram rebuilt the instrument into a lute, according to the specifications of its original case and an instrument in the Stokholm Historical Museum.

The concert is offered through the auspices of the Associated Students of Pomona College, the German departments of Scripps and Pomona colleges, and the Pomona College music department.

General admission is $1, students 50 cents.

Vast acreage is irrigated

An estimated 1,775,000 acres of Oregon farm land is now under irrigation, the State Agriculture Department reports.

Keep the flag off ceiling

Bayonet from city

First produced in the 17th century, the bayonet took its name from the Franch city of Bayonne, where it was made.

A FIRST — Claudette Colbert will make her first Los Angeles stage appearance at the Shubert Theater in Jerome Chodorov's comedy "A Community of Two," opening Tuesday night for three weeks. George Gaynes co-stars in the play's pre-Broadway tour. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Improved relations laid to retiring envoy

LIMA (UPI) — When U.S. Ambassador Taylor G. Belcher arrived in July of 1969, relations between the United States and Peru were the worst in ristory.

"Toby" Belcher retires from the diplomatic service April 1 with the two nations at their best level of understanding since President Juan Velasco Alvarado took power in a military coup in October, 1968.

Belcher crowned his 28-year diplomatic career Feb. 19 when he signed an agreement that substantially resolves the problem that has poisoned the atmosphere —compensation for expropriated American properties.

The $76 million payment by Peru clears up almost every major compensation problem. Credits and loans from international agencies, blocked by the United States for five years, have already begun to flow to Peru.

Belcher in Lima and special envoy James R. Greene, traveling constantly between Peru and Washington, both worked night and day on the agreement for months.

Copper, oil potentials

As much as their diplomacy, the world oil and copper shortages contributed to the agreement. Peru has enormous unexploited lodes of copper in the Andes Mountains.

Seventeen oil companies, a dozen of them American, are working on potentially rich reserves of sulfur-free oil in the Amazon jungles.

But Belcher's four and a half years in Peru warmed the chilly air in both Washington and Lima. Having been ambassador in Cyprus before, he was no stranger to tough posts.

"He brought off a delicate diplomatic balancing act and he never lost his sense of humor," one young foreign service officer said.

Moreover, he ceaselessly tried to get across to his fellow Americans, in Washington and elsewhere, his point of view about the generals and their "noncommunist, noncapitalist Peruvian revolution."

Vested interests suffer

Belcher, 54, discussed that point of view shortly before leaving Peru to teach, write and enjoy a country estate overlooking West Point on the Hudson River in New York State.

"When a revolutionary government is trying to make basic changes in society, vested interests are going to suffer," he said. "In Peru, some of those vested interests are American interests. We had to find a way to live with it, so that we could get into a position to cooperate with the Peruvian government in its efforts to improve the lot of millions of Peruvians living in relative poverty for centuries.

"For the last 15 years, we've been saying all over the world that if you don't have peaceful change in the poor countries, you're going to have violent revolution. This government is quite rightly proud of the basic changes they brought about without bloodshed."

When the reformist generals took power, much of the agricultural and industrial wealth was concentrated in "the 400 families" living in Lima, and in foreign owned companies. A vast "other nation" of six million predominantly illiterate Indian peasants, half the population, ekes out a bare living on the barren slopes and valleys of the Andes. Hundreds of peasants migrate to Lima every week to build ramshackle huts in the "pueblos jovenes" (new towns) surrounding the capital.

Agrarian reform

"The basic, basic change this government brought about was their agrarian reform program," Belcher said. The government expropriated almost all the big plantations in Peru. Some were broken up and others turned into cooperatives.

"Over the years we unsuccessfully tried to persuade many other governments in Latin America that it was in their own best interest to carry out a reasonable land reform program," Belcher said.

The government's extensive program of low cost housing has failed as yet to cope with the burgeoning urbanization problem, but in the "pueblos jovenes" Belcher sees a sign of hope for the future.

"The average pueblo jovene dweller is building his own home, doing his own work, investing a tremendous amount of money relative to his income in creating something that's his," the ambassador said. "With a little encouragement, the people seem to be able to do tremendous things, which speaks well of the innate ability and desire of the average Peruvian to work."

It will certainly require the collective hard work of all Peruvians, all the potential oil and mineral wealth of the country, and all of the help Peru can find abroad to resolve the problems of Peru's mountain peasants, according to Belcher.

"In the Sierra, they need to make a tremendous investment in roads, in agricultural extension programs, in forming cooperatives out of tiny patches of land, in schools and teachers," Belcher said.

"Miracle Cure?"

5,000 YEAR OLD CHINESE HEALTH REMEDY FOUND

PEKING (Special — Health researchers in China have uncovered an amazing rare old Chinese herb remedy that possesses spectacular healing qualities and reportedly has been used for 5,000 years to cure or give relief to a host of the most common illnesses suffered by mankind. Dramatic claims are being made that this "miracle herb" called ginseng, may actually hold the key to a longer healthier life. Indeed, there is one historical case of a user living to be 256 years old.

Helps Many Illnesses

Like acupuncture, the many healing properties of this remarkable herb were once considered "folklore and superstition", but modern researchers around the world are suggesting that it may actually regulate many of the body's proccesses to increase SEXUAL potency, help heal ULCERS, relieve ARTHRITIS, check graying or loss of HAIR, improve DIGESTION, slow down ARTERIOSCLEROSIS, relieve ASTHMA overcome FATIGUE, improve DIABETIC conditions, relieve inflammation of the URINARY TRACT, help chronic INSOMNIA, relieve BACKACHES and PAINS, and generally improve your health by increasing your body's potential to heal itself.

Safe, No Side Effects

Ginseng is not a drug, but an herb or vegetable that is extremely rich in vitamins and minerals. What's more, this amazing natural remedy is completely safe and non-toxic with no side effects. Unfortunately, high-grade ginseng is in short supply, and brokers and processors around the world are bracing themselves for a "run" on the market as the herb's purported "near miraculous" healing properties become more widely known to the genral public.

Now Available in U.S.

Now you can get a generous 30-day supply of this amazing natural remedy direct from a major supplier by sending only $10.00 in check, cash or money order to Health Laboratory, Dept. 1, Box 2142, Palm Springs, Calif. 92262. This wonder herb is said to have helped millions of other people, and it may help your health problem too. Isn't it worth a try?

Automakers offer 5 'economy' models

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. and foreign automakers have just introduced five models they hope will catch the eye of buyers switching down from a big car, but unwilling to settle for the ultra-small models.

Each has a degree of luxury or unique quality the builders hope will take the sharp edge off slumping new car sales. None is in the $3,000-and-under subcompact class.

The three U.S. models—Ford Gran Torino Elite, Plymouth Valiant Brougham and Dodge Dart S.E.—are luxury versions of their basic cars, while the Mazda RX-4 and Volkswagen Dasher are new to the American market.

For VW, the introduction of the Dasher with a sticker price of $3,975 for a two-door with a manual transmission is the biggest departure since it introduced the homely "Beetle" in the 1950's. VW plans two more models later this year or in early 1975—both with watercooled front engines like the Dasher and one selling at around $3,000.

Stuart Perkins, president of Volkswagen of America, admitted that introducing the car during a slumping sales period was not the best timing but predicted 75,000 to 80,000 Dashers would be sold in 1974.

Perkins also said the U.S. market is now centered on the small car that offers the buyer ample space, economy, luxury and options.

"People are getting away from the idea that buying a small or compact car represents a compromise and are beginning to recognize that you can buy a smaller car with everything you have had on a larger car plus economy of operation as well," says Perkins.

At Dasher's introduction to the new media in southern Arizona, newsmen averaged better than 37 miles per gallon during a 60-mile economy run. VW is advertising 25 m.p.g. as the average for most drivers.

"It's the right car for these days of fuel shortages and general high cost of living," says Perkins of the Dasher, sold for several years as the Passat in Europe and since last year as the Fox by VW's Porsche-Audi Division in the United States.

The Dasher, with a 97.2-inch wheelbase and 172.8 inches overall, can comfortably seat five persons with ample headroom in the rear seat even for a six-footer.

Its four-cylinder water-cooled engine develops 75 horsepower and is peppy. The engine is mounted ahead of the transmission-differential where it improves traction for the frontwheel drive which provides excellent handling, even on mountainous dirt roads.

Mazda of America offers the second new car—the rotary engine RX-4 which should remain the only car of its type in the U.S. market at least through 1974. General Motors had planned to introduce its rotary engine Vega in September, but delayed the debut because of problems with emissions and fuel economy.

Like its American and Japanese competitors, Mazda is trying to cash in on the swing to the smaller car with luxury appointments. But, unlike U.S. automakers, Mazda had to move up to meet the demand.

The two-door RX-4 hardtop is nine inches longer than the popular RX-3 coupes and also has a price tag of $4,095-$600 more than the RX-2.

Standard equipment on the RX-4 includes reclining front bucket seats, a "split level" combination fresh air heating ventilation system, center console with storage compartment, a tamper-proof in-the-windshield radio antenna, complete instrumentation with a tachmeter, cut-pile nylon carpeting and velour-type crushed nylon seat fabric.

The main feature of the Mazda, however, is the rotary engine based on the original designs of Felix Wankel. The RX-4 features a larger 40 cubic inch engine that develops 110 horsepower compared to the 35 cubic inch engine that develops 90 horsepower in the RX-3.

Mazda's unique feature —the rotary engine —has also provided the Japanese automaker with some problems because of statements criticizing its fuel economy. While the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) says its tests show the car gets about 10.8 miles per gallon, Mazda says figures like 17 to 21 m.p.g. would be more accurate. It has published the results of 11 independent road tests and surveys that showed mileage between 17 and 23.8 .p.g.

Luxury, along with economy, are the words used by Ford and Chrysler to sell their new top-of-the-line models.

Ford's Gran Torino Elite competes with General Motors cars like the Chevrolet Monte Carlo. The intermediate segment in 1972 and 1973 accounted for between 22 and 23 per cent of the new car market, although it slipped along with other large cars at the end of 1973.

Standard equipment includes a 351 V-8 engine, automatic transmission, power steering, power front disc brakes, steelbelted radial tires, wheel covers and something for a gasoline-hungry public —a 26.5 gallon gasoline tank instead of the regular 21 gallon tank.

"The Gran Torino Elite gives Ford Division a solid entry in the intermediate specialty market —where styling is the name of the game," says Bennett E. Bidwell, Ford Division general manager.

"It also strengthens our representation in the overall intermediate market where two-door models accounted for 68 per cent of sales in the 1973 model year," said Bidwell.

While Ford concentrates on upgrading its intermediate-sire Torino, Chrysler's two compacts get the full treatment. Without a sub-compact of its own, Chrysler has to rely on the Valiant and the Dart to get a share of the small car market.

Both the two-door and four-door Valiant Brougham and Dart S.E. (Special Edition) offer plush seats and cut pile carpeting with a choice of a 225 cubic inch six-cylinder of 318 cubic inch V-8 engine.

"In today's market, most motorists appreciate the importance of conserving fuel, but still want a car that provides comfortable seating in a luxury package," explains F.G. Hazelroth, Chrysler Plymouth Division general sales manager.

"It may sound contradictory to introduce a luxury model for a nameplate that has such a strong image for economy," says George A. Bilque, Dodge Division general sales manager. "However, economy can be a misnomer in the current marketplace," says Bilque.

Two new oil systems nearing production

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two remotely operated subsea oil production systems that could extend industry capability to water depths of up to 6,000 feet will be ready for commercial use early next year.

Developed over a seven-year period by Mobil Oil and North American Rockwell for Subsea Equipment Associates, Ltd. of London, the $25 million project was designed for single, high-production wells in moderate to deep ocean depths.

The two subsea systems are a multiple-well manifold-production center and the modular single-wellhead completion system.

The production equipment in self-contained modules can be installed without divers on the ocean floor, instead of a surface platform.

While most offshore oil production capability has a current limit of 600 feet, the two systems have a calculated depth capability of up to 6,000 feet.

"This fills the void between what you can drill and what you produce," said John Adams, president of Seal Petroleum Corp. of Houston. "It's a simple concept. All we have done is take conventional equipment and placed it on the sea floor."

The system will probably first be used in the North Sea where well spacing and bad weather conditions make the single-wellhead subsea production system particularly attractive, Adams said.

Seal is a consortium jointly owned by Mobil Oil Corp., Westinghouse, British Petroleum Co., Ltd., Compagnie Francaise Des Petroles and Groupe Deep.

Lower in Costs

Its developers see the Seal project as a method to increase offshore production, which contributes about 20 per cent of the free world's available oil. Approximately one third to 50 per cent of the oil supply in the next 50 years is expected to come from beneath the sea, Adams said.

"The rate of discovery on land is declining, but it's increasing at the subsea level," Adams said.

"The big impetus for developing this project has been the decision by the U.S. government to offer (lease) acreage in deep water areas in the Gulf of Mexico."

Its designers say the Seal systems are lower in capital costs than alternate production methods, can be designed and fabricated quicker, cost less to be installed and reduce navigation and shipping hazards.

Subsea oil production systems also claim to provide maximum protection against pollution risks and danger to operating personnel is reduced since divers are not needed for installation or maintenance.

Money problems delay colonial Williamsburg

About 1750, Elizabeth's son, Carter Burwell, built a stately home which still stands on the land overlooking the historic James River, and made Carter's Grove one of the showplaces of the country.

Now, on 12 acres near the baronial Georgian house which has been open to the public since 1964, Colonial Williamsburg is taking the first step toward recreating the working plantation that once thrived on the acres surrounding the mansion.

Officials of Colonial Williamsburg, which operates the restored colonial Virginia capital here and also owns Carter's Grove, are setting out a 12-acre apple orchard this spring. After several years of detailed study, researchers have found grafts of six old apple varieties which will duplicate almost exactly the trees grown when Carter's Grove was making and selling cider before the American Revolution.

It is uncertain when further steps in the restoration of typical 18th Century plantation work and life will be coming. Under ideal conditions, one official said in an interview, it could take up to a decade—if financing for the multimillion dollar project can be found.

"I'm hopeful we can find the resources in the future," said James R. Short, head of the Colonial Williamsburg Preservation and Research Division, but added he was "not terribly optimistic" because the energy crisis has cut visitor revenues sharply in recent months.

Short's long-range hopes include restoration of the crops, livestock and crafts of the plantation days of more than two centuries ago.

"We're only planning to do things which research can show were done at Carter's Grove in colonial days," Short said.

Recreating other plantation products in realistic settings will be more difficult. Records show, for example, that Carter's Grove sold beef, pork, corn and meat to taverns, homes and even the colonial governor's mansion, but detailed descriptions of the types of animals and seeds are skimpy.

Interest rates worry men on Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI — If there is anything that worries the men on Wall Street more than high interest rates, it has not come to the surface.

So they had plenty to worry about this week as droves of banks raised their prime interest rate, the amount they charge favored customers, from 8¾ per cent to 9 per cent.

Bankers Trust was the first to move the lending rate upward. Others began to follow and by week's end Bank of America, the nation's largest, and First National City had joined the long parade.

The stock market responded on the negative side, although there were brief upward movements caused by good economic news from Washington —the first ever surplus in the balance of payments and reports of an increase in personal income in February.

At the end of trading Friday, the Dow Jones industrial average for the week was off 9.70 to 878.13. It had been moving steadily upward since mid-February when the Arabs began indicating they would end their oil embargo. But when the announcement came last Sunday that the majority of the producing nations was lifting them unconditionally, Wall Streeters regarded the action as something that had been expected and a rally failed to materialize.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index was off 2.01.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange was 64,664,630, compared with 86,812,260 the previous week and 77,411,470 in the same week in 1973. Declines outnumbered advances 1,381 to 417 among the 1,986 issues involved in trading. There were 164 stocks which reached new highs for the year and 143 which dropped to new lows.

General Electric was the most active stock of the week, gaining 2⅛ to 55 on a turnover of 731,000 shares. GE announced it expected a higher first-quarter net.

Polaroid was second most active, losing 14⅜ to 69 on a volume of 650,000 shares. The stock plunged after Eastman Kodak announced it would market an instant film to compete with Polaroid's sophisticated SX-70 system. In doing so, Eastman indicated its dry film would be less expensive than Polaroid's. Eastman's stock rose 4⅛ to 113¾.

American Telephone and Telegraph was third most active, dropping 1½ points to 50⅞ on movement of 532,400 shares. Earlier in the week, ATT posted a 12 per cent increase in first-quarter earnings to $760.7 million.

Ramada Inns finished fourth most active, falling fractionally to 7½ on an exchange of 530,200 shares. ATT Warrants were fifth most active, off ⅝ to 3⅞ on 498,200 shares.

Other active stocks were General Motors, off 1⅛; Howard Johnson, off 1⅜; ITT, off 1¾; Texaco, off 1½, and Great Western Financial, off 3.

Gold stocks made excellent gains. The price of gold soared on European markets after rumors circulated that the West German government would revaluate the mark upward. The rumors were denied Friday. Dome Mines rose 18¾ to 183, Homestake Mines gained 4 points to 90¼ and ASA Ltd. picked up 4¾ to 89¼.

Benefit horse show

Set by Casa Colina

As an aid to handicapped children, the first annual Casa Colina Benefit Horse Show will be held Saturday at the Carnation Ring, Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

The show will be sponsored by the hospital's auxiliary and the Pacific Coast Walking Horse Association to support the Casa Colina Hospital-Claremont Colleges Preschool for Handicapped Children, located on the hospital grounds.

Shows will begin at 8 a.m., 1:30 p.m., and 7:30 p.m. Vaulting exhibitions will be presented at the matinee and opening performances. Highlights of the evening show will include a Walking Horse Derby, a Southern Belles and Beaux of the Mid-1800's Class with costumes, and division championships.

A perpetual trophy for the Amateur Championship Show Horse is being provided by the hospital's board of directors and will be presented by Wilhelm G. Clasen of San Marino, president of the board.

A Plantation Buffet Dinner will be served at 6 p.m. It will be preceded by a no-host social hour. Decorations with a Southern flair will compliment the stars of the show, the Tennessee Walking Horses.

The Candystripers and Handystripers are organizing a coffee bar and making goods for a bake sale.

Children who will benefit from the horse show attend the preschool five days a week. They range in age from 18 months to six years and come from many communities in the greater Pomona Valley area. According to Elizabeth Neumann, Ph.D., director of the preschool, proceeds from the horse show will be used to continue and expand present programs. These include an educational curriculum, weekly field trips to areas of community interest, a swim program, occupational, physical and language therapy and a drama workshop.

Coordinators for the show from the Casa Colina Auxiliary are Mrs. Robert Keith, president, and Mrs. Jack Hoxsey. Committee chairmen include Mmes. Leland Stronach, Richard Kandt, Dale Eazell, Herbert Johnson, Wendell Meyer, T. Paul Blanshard, Robert Ecklund, Stephen Goldwater, H. E. Bickerdike, M. G. Lacy and Gerald Laws.

Pacific Coast Walking Horse Association members participating in the show are from areas in San Diego County, Riverside, Newport, San Bernardino, Los Angeles and from as far north as Santa Paula and Alpine. Miss Anne McCutchan of Rancho Santa Fe, president of the PCWHA, is coordinating the show activities. PCWHA show committee members include Robert Tanons of Alta Loma, Mrs. Kenneth Cheek of Santa Ana, Miss Marge Schultz of Covina, Mrs. Robert Bloor of Hawaiian Gardens, Russ Thompson of Ontario, Mrs. Winston Henson of Riverside, Mrs. C. A. Manning of Santa Ana, Dick Tatman of Chino, Oscar Jaques of Bloomington and Mrs. Robert Sunderland of Valley Center.

There is no admission charge to the show. Reservations for the $6.50 dinner may be made by calling Mrs. Kandt, 714-987-7873, or Mrs. Meyer of Casa Colina, 714-593-1336, by Monday.

GET ACQUAINTED

Mrs. Gail Henson of Riverside introduces her Tennessee Walking Horse, Robin's Bay Lady, to several of the Casa Colina Hospital-Claremont Colleges Preschool for Handicapped Children's students and their instructor, Tom Keene. The school will benefit from the Saturday show.

Disregards trend

He looks at women's careers

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Josiah Bunting III is an ex-Marine, Rhodes Scholar, novelist, Vietnam vet, and most recently professor of history at the Naval War College in Newport, R.I.

What is he doing as president of Briarcliff College in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.—a women's college that needs a turn in fortunes?

As with many small women's colleges, Briarcliff, 650 capacity, has shrinking enrollment. Down to 350. Bunting is leading a return to capacity enrollment.

He doesn't give a hoot to studies pointing to the end of small colleges.

"My mission," he said in an interview, "is to energize, to inspire, to build...."

His philosophy is that women must graduate with more than just a degree in liberal arts. They must also have a skill that will get them into the job market.

Briarcliff now has several such programs.

"These really prepare graduates for a career," Bunting said. "They can go directly from college to a position, without intermediate training.

"Special programs in cartography and geography, as well as educational psychology, have been particularly successful."

A new one, to be added in the fall, combines journalism and publishing procedures. Other practical courses starting up are under the Briarcliff Institute of Public Affairs. In these courses students will be equipped with skills making them desirable at the local, state or federal level of government.

"The woman as pure homemaker is a creature of the past," Bunting said. "Today's woman should also have a special interest or expertise.

As for his own expertise in running a woman's college, Bunting said:

"I'm just running a little college and I'm running it off the top of my head the best way I know how."

Until Bunting assumed the presidency in September, Briarcliff was on the brink of extinction. Enrollment was down to less than half of what it was two years earlier. Girls once gathered in the snack bar to discuss "when this place is going to close."

Faculty and student morale now is up. Applications for fall of 1974 are up 12 per cent. President Bunting expects an even larger increase in 1975.

"The word is getting around that we're here for keeps," he said. "And that we're getting better where it counts."

As with any president of a woman's college he addressed himself also to two questions: Why a woman's college? What about boys?

To the first question he answered:

"Women's colleges are in a unique position of being able to educate the new American woman.

"A highly motivated and aggressive woman can succeed in a man's world no matter where she goes to school, but most women need the confidence-building that they can only get at an all-female college.

"There are twice as many graduates of women's colleges in Who's Who Of American Women as graduates of coed schools."

About boys:

"On weekends they come by the busload from Princeton University, for one. Princeton is only 90 minutes away. Boys also enroll for the January term—mini courses."

Bunting, 33, went into the Marines at 17, spent two years, then attended Virginia Military Institute.

He is a person of many successes. His first novel, "The Lionheads," was written after his Vietnam experience. It was a Book of the Month club alternate selection.

He describes it as antimilitaristic rather than antimilitary.

The year it came out, Bunting resigned from the Army and from his post as assistant professor of history at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

If as though by magnets most of your rolls are drawn to the gutter, you can do something to improve your poor showing amazing your friends and relatives in the process.

Take it from a pro —namely Judy Cook, Woman Bowler of the Year. In an interview, the pride of Grandview, Mo., passed on four steps to improved bowling. To wit:

—Learn to pick up your spares properly. Most people don't know how to do that. To shoot spares on the right hand side of the lane, you move to the left hand side of approach. Always shoot the ball down diagonally, in other words.

—Tune up the timing and coordination in your approach. If the approach is not good, the timing will be off. You need to practice to learn that. Ms. Cook uses the four step approach. That is, she takes four steps to the foul line.

—Concentrate. "So many people don't even think before picking up the ball —or they try to carry on a conversation while bowling."

—Practice. "Very important. You cannot just bowl one night a week and be good." To improve in a big way practice two or three times a week. Alone. Bowl four to six games each time.

Ms. Cook is a member of the Brunswick Advisory Staff of Bowling Champions. Her winnings last year were $22,000.

"But if I had been bowling in men's tournaments, my winnings would have been upwards of $50,000," she said. "As in many sports, the stakes are much higher for the men."

The bowlers must contend with this rather unequitable situation. They haven't obtained the sponsorship or attracted the television cameras and press like the men have.

Bowling needs the kind of push tennis got when Billie Jean King led a movement to upgrade women's tennis.

"I think a woman could beat a man in a 10 game match," Ms. Cook said when asked if a woman has the stamina to bowl against a man.

"Most of it is brains, but a lot of girls tire at the end if they haven't made themselves physically fit. I play tennis and otherwise keep myself strong."

The Professional WOMEN'S Bowling Association (PWBA) is trying to get women's winnings moving up.

Ms. Cook says the audience is there for televised matches. That is, when you consider that 52 million Americans bowl.

Her two children, LeAnn, 4, and Roy, 8, putter around the bowling lanes. It is great family fun, as many bowling lanes recognize. In many communities the bowling place has centers for little children, restaurants that are the last word, automatic scorers.

Ms. Cook has found a new romance on the bowling circuit. Just last month she became engaged to a successful bowler on the Professional Bowlers Association Tour —Dave Soutar. The wedding has not been set yet.

Breaking barrier

Salaries are increasing

By ROZ LISTON

NEW YORK UPI — You've come a long way, baby—so far, in fact, that women are beginning to command higher start-up salaries than men in some fields.

The 35 million women in the U.S. labor force still earn 40 per cent less than male employes, but female graduates with specialized degrees have started to break the salary barrier.

Women holding degrees in engineering or business are the target of a feverish hunt by industry, under pressure from the Federal government to hire women for positions outside of the secretarial area. Competition among employers for this small group of women specialists often erupts into a salary war with women receiving fatter offers than men.

In 1972-73, women bachelors in engineering were offered an average salary of $936 a month compared with $929 for men, according to a survey by the College Placement Council.

Women engineering graduates received 94 per cent more job offers than in the 1971-72 period, the survey showed, while their male counterparts reported a jump of 83 per cent in bids.

"The very scarcity of women engineers, their motivation and talent, and government pressure on industry has made them a desirable commodity," says Mrs. Jean Kessler, director of the Bethlehem, Pa., council.

Women specialists in accounting, marketing and finance at New York University's undergraduate and graduate schools of business are receiving some offers conspicuously higher than the average salary for their fields.

"Industry has been slow to discover that women perform exceptionally well, but in the last two years it has offered somewhat bigger starting pay to women business candidates than to men," says George C. Dinas, associate director of NYU's Business Placement Center.

One woman in accounting has been offered $17,800, although the average beginning salary in this field is $14,500. "At accounting firms the dollar-and-cents offers are running ahead for women," says Dinas. A U.S. Department of Labor report on salary differentials between men and women business students in 1970 revealed the largest gap occurred in accounting. Only four years ago women accountants started at a median salary of $746 a month and men at $832.

"Industry generally is looking for quality rather than tokenism when it seeks women business candidates," says Ralph M. Zinc, director of NYU's Business Placement Center. "But even if an offer is obviously tokenism, I tell women students it's a wedge in the door and a chance to prove themselves." Zinc says some employers have indicated it would be "helpful" if the applicant were a woman.

"NYU may be a little ahead of other universities in placing women at higher salaries because of urban exposure," Zinc observes. Northwestern University's Endicott Report on job prospects for the nation's 1974 college graduates said starting salaries will be almost identical for women ($752 to $952 a month) and men ($741 to $963).

And the academic community, hard hit by suits charging discrimination against women professors in hiring and pay, has given way to bigger paychecks for women at two-year private colleges. Women teaching at these schools earned an average of $9,596 in 1972-73 compared with $9,462 for men, according to the U.S. Office of Education.

Book review sponsored by YWCA

PIANO INSTRUCTION for ADULT

Have you ever said, "I took piano lessons as a child, but I can't play a thing now"? Or "If I weren't so old, I'd take piano lessons'? Or "If only I had the time to practice"?

For the past three years we have been conducting specialized research and tests of various concepts, methods and materials relating to the field of piano instruction for adults. We feel we have developed some exciting new programs which both simplify and enhance the learning process. These programs emphasize graphic reading, intervallic reading, sight reading, ensemble playing, technic, tonality and improvisation. Each program is flexibly structured to meet the specific needs of the individual student.

Please call the Music Education Center for an appointment to have these programs explained to you in detail.

Cold cream originated in Greece

Cold cream was discovered about 150 AD by a Greek physician. The original cold cream formula consisted of a mixture of olive oil, beeswax, and water, with rose petals added for fragrance. Applied to the skin, the water evaporated and produced a cool feeling. This is probably the basis for the name "cold cream".

The basic formula was the prototype for all of today's skin creams, both cosmetic and medicinal. However, modern cosmetic cold creams and cleansing creams contain additional and refined ingredients, and sometimes synthetic substitutes that make the creams much more pleasant and convenient to use.

Rental shortage helps:

Housing recovery seen

DETROIT — A shortage of rental units is helping to pave the way for this year's recovery in housing activity.

The energy crisis is contributing to the trend. And so is a stretch-out in apartment completion times, caused by materials shortages.

The trend was also aided by a heavy rate of condominium building and conversions the first eight months of last year.

These are the findings of Advance Mortgage Corp.'s current survey of U.S. Housing Markets, which compares housing trends in 20 local markets.

"There were some 600,000 rental apartment starts in 1973, compared to 250,000 condominium starts," said George P. Jahn, Advance vice president.

He estimates at least as many rental starts this year in a substantially smaller housing year.

"A year ago at this time," Jahn said, "many local markets, particularly in the South and West, were overbuilt in rentals. Today, in most of thise markets, rental demand is beginning to exceed supply.

Nationwide suburban vacancies shrank after midyear, according to Census Bureau surveys, and the rental apartment absorption rate in the third quarter of 1973 was the highest since the tight market of 1970, he added.

"The only major markets, or portions of markets, left with vacancies of 10 per cent or higher are Houston, Dallaw-Fort Worth, southeast Denver and the East Bay suburbs of Oakland. Only the Denver sector, a luxury market, appears to have real problems. Houston and Dallas are able to live with vacancies in the 10 per cent range because of their high in-migration.

Rental demand should strengthen even further over the remainder of the year. Local occupancy rates do not yet reflect the slowdown in rental starts that began early last year, nor last year's stretchout in apartment completion times. These will effect the supply of new units coming on the market said Jahn.

"Neither does the market yet show the full impact of the energy crisis. To the extent that the crisis has been painful to for-sale developers, by causing buyer indecision about where to move, it has been a boon to rental occupancy."

Mortgage funds to match the rental demand are in ample supply, Jahn reports. Indeed, some apartment lenders complain of a lack of quality rental projects. Some of the strongest builders have been marking time until interest rates come down further.

Life insurance companies, the bellwether rental apartment lenders, began cutting back on new loan commitments in March of 1973, nearly six months before the credit crunch. Rental activity did not slow much more after the credit crunch, Jahn reports, and may even have picked up in the fourth quarter in a number of local markets.

"Paralleling the favorable rental trend," Jahn added, "many markets now have substantial inventories of unsold condominiums.

"Rental and condos now bear a rhythmic relationship in many local markets. When there has been heavy emphasis on condos for a long period, a shortage of rentals develops. And then, after a while, the opposite trend sets in."

The upbeat rental trend is not quite universal. One sector of the rental market may be softer next year, Jahn cautioned. This is the market in the smaller metro areas, which big-city builders have been cultivating for the past two years. A record number of rental apartment completions is due to hit the nation's smaller cities in 1974.

Upland builder wins national sales award

UPLAND — Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes of California, has been awarded the Million Dollar Circle citation by the National Association of Home Builders' sales and marketing council.

The award honored him for "professional leadership of sales staff while selling $12 million of new homes" during a 12 month period ending Sept. 30, 1973.

The $12 million reflected sales in San Bernardino, Riverside and Los Angeles counties, said Lewis. He predicted this amount of sales will be reached the first nine months of this fiscal year.

A similar NAHB award was received by Robert E. Lewis, president of the Lewis Homes of Nevada Co., in recognition of last year's $5 million sales compiled in Reno and Las Vegas.

The Lewis Homes organization, with headquarters in Upland, is a builder of residential communities in California, Nevada and Utah.

Realtors have new officers

ATLANTA — Joseph B. Doherty of Andover, Mass., has been installed as new president of the National Association of Realtors.

Other officers include Arthur S. Leitch, San Diego, first vice president, and Philip C. Smaby, Minneapolis, Minn., treasurer.

Doherty had served as first vice president last year and as national director for 12 years. He is past president of both the Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Boards and the Greater Lawrence, Mass., Board of Realtors.

Burton E. Smith of Bellflower, Calif., was installed as president of Real Estate Securities and Syndication Institute, an affiliate organization.

Resort features found at Orchard

UPLAND — Residents at Orchard Lane are offered resort features within the grounds of the single story villa home community.

These include a swimming pool, whirlpool spa and cabana area.

The landscaped grounds, recreation facilities and house exteriors are maintained by professional crews hired by the homeowners association. Each homeowner is an automatic member of this group, which is responsible for the common areas.

The homes, priced from $19,900, feature wall-to-wall carpeting, draperies, built-in ovens and ranges, disposals, dishwashers, and air conditioning.

Each home has a private patio and enclosed attached garage. Some include fireplaces.

Orchard Lane is located near schools, shops and entertainment facilities.

Contractors elect Matich

COLTON — John N. Matich, a construction contractor, has been installed as senior vice president of the Associated General Contractors (AGC) at its 55th annual convention and exposition in San Diego.

Matich is president of Matich Corp., with offices in Colton. He has been involved in construction since 1941.

He has been on the AGC board of directors since 1963 and has served on numerous national committees. He was chairman of the emergency planning committee and named chairman of the year in 1969 for his work with that committee.

The AGC is the only national organization of general contractors representing all major types of construction. It is a leading management for the construction industry.

Montclair focuses on additions

MONTCLAIR — Residents here concentrated last month on additions and repairs to their existing homes.

While no city building permits were issued for new residential structures, 38 were received for additions and alterations. The proposed work represents a combined $26,143 valuation.

In addition, a single permit was issued for a car garage valued at $650, and another for a swimming pool, valued at $4,300.

City officials issued during February a total of 73 permits for projects having a valuation of $69,116. This boosted this year's totals to 143 permits and $256,761 valuation.

Other permits and their valuations issued include:

Structures other than buildings, eight, $14,373; additions and alterations to non residential structures, 15, $22,250; and signs, four, $1,400. In addition, there were four permits issued for new sewer connections.

Planned unit projects give new living style

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The planned community has come a long way from the drawing boards of the first visionaries.

Thousands of families in all parts of the country are living in PUDs, as the planned unit developments are known, and their experience is being used now to make this style of living even more satisfying.

"Information on how well past housing projects are satisfying human needs is very important," says Salvatore Balsamo, Chicago-based, award-winning architect with wide experience in the design of PUDs. "Finding out what makes them work helps us design better communities.

"It's an evolutionary process. The architect is doing much more than just designing houses to satisfy developers. We're being consulted more often in the planning stage...to design whole communities to suit the buyers themselves."

To do this, Balsamo says, research into the success or shortcomings of past designs is essential. "Research helps us create entire environments for specific needs."

He notes a recent report by the Urban Land Institute (ULI), a trade association which has conducted large-scale studies of operating'PUDs, cites as the greatest single defect in the work of land planners, as well as architects, the failure to check the results of their work. Too many planners, for example, do not know what a density of ten looks like when a project is completed and the area is filled with people, children, bicycles and, especially, parked cars, ULI found.

Feedback

Robinwoods, one of the first PUDs in the Chicago area, and one of the first approved and executed under an FHA program to provide housing for moderate income families, has yielded valuable feedback to Balsamo, its architect.

Residents of the development, which consists of 327 townhouses, clustered in 49 buildings on a 46-acre site, when interviewed by the Balsamo firm about design features, corroborated findings in the ULI studies, he said. Their comments indicated:

—Special play areas for children are important, particularly tot lots near living units so children can be supervised easily. Parents agreed such areas should be away from streets with heavy traffic.

—Proper parking facilities are essential. ULI found more than 25 per cent of respondents in other developments thought parking was "poor". On the other hand, at Robinwoods there was favorable comment on the parking which puts cars in courtyards behind buildings while sidewalks are separate from roads, making walking safer.

—Because of higher densities of PUDs, recreational facilities are needed to allow people to do things that can't be done in a small yard or patio. The ULI study found swimming-wading pools, play areas and tennis courts the three most popular amenities.

—Security is considered important.

A homeowner's association to manage the community and handle maintenance is essential in a PUD. An efficient, well-run association is a large factor in raising property values throughout the development since it contributes heavily to buyer satisfaction, ULI found.

Findings utilized

Balsamo said he incorporated these findings into succeeding projects. In one, a recreational PUD near Fox Lake, Ill., preschoolers can play in an enclosed lot in full view of living units. Older children enjoy an enclosed wading pool adjacent to an adult pool.

Young anglers enjoy the "Huckleberry Fishing Shack." isolated from a busy marina and providing safe fishing in a special pond from a walkway with a railing. For teenagers there is an activities center in the midst of a sports core with a pool table, games, vending machines, jukebox, and supervised activities.

Two other Balsamo-planned communities emphasize security which the architect says is becoming one of the most important criteria in PUD planning. Entrance is through a single gate monitored by a security guard who queries residents by means of an intercom before visitors are admitted to the grounds. A mobile patrol is on duty 24 hours daily.

His studies found that people tend to cluster within their immediate neighborhood, Balsamo said. As a result, in a group of six mid-rise buildings in a Chicago suburb, in additon to an over-all community association, each building has a governing body to administer its own needs. There also are private recreation facilities in each in addition to the community recreation center.

Balsamo says he is working with urbanologists, biologists, geologists, sociologists and psychologists as consultants in a 5,000-acre micro-city he is planning in Florida. In the residential-commercial community, he says, such amenities as a privately funded school system, day care center and outpatient medical centers will be given high priority.

Good design today goes far beyond the bricks and mortar stage, Balsamo says. "The architect must tune community development to all the human requirements of the individuals who will occupy the community. These range from basic shelter to ecological and sociological needs."

Sales conference for area Realtors set in Pasadena

POMONA — An educational and sales conference for local Realtors and sales associates will be held April 2 at the Huntington Sheraton Hotel in Pasadena.

The conference, titled "In Search of Agreement," is being sponsored by the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors (PVBR) and the California Real Estate Association (CREA). It deals with negotiations involved in real estate transactions, including how to achieve fairness and balance between the interests of buyer and seller.

Mrs. Mildred J. Heckmer, president, and other key members of the PVBR, met recently with Rosalie Kamansky of Upland, regional vice president of CREA, and members of the Realtors Institute, educational arm of the 73,000 member organization, to complete plans for the assocation's annual educational activities in the local area.

Zig Ziglar of Dallas, Tex., an authority on salesmanship, will be fetured speaker at the Pasadena program. His message, titled "The Five Steps Up," goes beyond sales to success in every realm of life, said officials.

A new 30-minute movie, produced by CREA, will also be shown to participants. It dramatizes two real estate salesmen bringing together a tough buyer and "hard headed" seller by using the principles of fairness, balance and agreement.

An examination will be given at the end of the one day session. Those with passing grades will receive one unit of credit toward the Graduate, Realtors Institute (GRI) educational certificate and designation.

"This kind of conference helps real estate people get a better grasp on things they must do to serve their clients," said Mrs. Heckmer.

Local firm distributes dividends

POMONA — The California Shopping Centers, Inc., reports a quarterly distribution of 21 cents per share on the common stock payable April 1 to shareholders of record on March 15.

This action continues the practice of cash distribution which it has followed every year since 1965.

The group owns and manages diversified types of residential and commercial properties in California, Arizona and Nevada. These include apartment complexes in Westminster and Las Vegas, Nev., and shopping centers in Compton and Monrovia, Las Vegas and Mesa, Ariz.

Three Los Angeles area properties include the recently completed Village Garden Apartments in Diamond Bar, the first apartments in the 8,000 acre master planned community; The Monterey, a condominium complex in Arcadia; and a new development being constructed in Tustin to contain 100 units.

California Shopping Centers is a cash flow, real estate company. It combines many of the facets of a real estate operating company with those of a real investment company. It adds certain features of its own.

Home buyers aided in Los Angeles seminar

Jane Sliva earns GRI certificate

POMONA — Jane Sliva, a Claremont real estate salesman, has been awarded a Graduate, Realtors Institute (GIR) educational certificate.

Candidates must also have completed at least three years as a member of a local board of Realtors to be eligible for the certificate.

Mrs. Sliva was presented the GRI plaque at the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors recent luncheon meeting. She has been a member of the local board since 1965, serving on various board committees. She has also been a CREA director.

She is sales manager for the Wheeler-Steffen Realtors, 500 W. Foothill Blvd., Claremont. She received the firm's "associate of the year" award in 1972.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — While using powder eye shadow I first wipe my eyelids with a damp tissue and then brush on the eye shadow that soon dries and stays on longer. —LINDA.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those people who take their pets to the vet often. Use a clothes hamper to carry him in. It is also great for traveling with a pet who gets carsick. An old rug or towel can be put in the bottom. Make sure the hamper has holes in it. — TINA.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — Save the small cans that salted peanuts come in. Use them for steaming puddings or baking small fruitcakes. These make nice, individual servings and welcome gifts for live-alones. —MRS. C.H.

DEAR POLLY — I wear goggles when I ski and sometimes I get scratches on my goggles. Recently I had a three-to four-inch scratch on the face of them. I covered the scratch with toothpaste and rubbed it in with my finger. I let it dry for four minutes, then rinsed it off with warm water. I polished it with a soft cloth and the scratch was gone. — K.C.

DEAR POLLY — While raking leaves last fall the following Pointer was discovered. Our daughter's hard plastic swimming pool was used unstead of a bag or sack. The pool is light enough to be pulled and holds many more leaves. —MRS. M.F.

DEAR POLLY — The inner plastic core left after a roll of transparent plastic tape is used can make a nice napkin ring. —D.E.

DEAR POLLY — When sending a stamp that is to be used in answering an ad I fasten it to a piece of plain white paper with a piece of clear tape that can be trimmed off when the stamp is used. — MRS. H.M.L.

DEAR POLLY — I had a lot of partially used candles that I did not want to throw away. One evening, instead of burning wood in the fireplace, I arranged many candles at different levels on the grate and legs. I lit only the candles. The effect was novel and beautiful. — HELEN.

DEAR POLLY — Though I received two diaper pails as baby shower gifts, I prefer to immediately rinse diapers by hand. I use the pails for detergent holders. I wrote the names of the detergents I use on the lids, buy the large size boxes of detergents, and save! —TONI.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

A WHALE BREATHES WITH LUNGS, NOT GILLS. IT MUST HOLD ITS BREATH WHILE UNDER WATER. A WHALE'S NOSTRILS OPEN ON TOP OF ITS HEAD THROUGH AN OPENING CALLED A "BLOWHOLE." WHEN THE WHALE COMES TO THE SURFACE IT BLOWS THE OLD AIR OUT OF THE BLOWHOLE AND BREATHES IN FRESH AIR. THE HOT, USED AIR CONDENSES INTO PLUMES OF STEAMLIKE VAPOR WHEN IT HITS THE COLD SEA AIR, MUCH LIKE YOUR OWN BREATH DOES ON A COLD DAY. WHEN IT BLOWS OUT THE STEAMY AIR, WE SAY THAT THE WHALE IS SPOUTING.

MAC DAVIS: 'A TOUCH OF GOLD'

Guests on the show include only those recording artists who have had the distinction of winning a gold record. In order of appearance, they include, the Love Unlimited Orchestra, conducted by Gene Page, with "Love's Theme;" the De Franco Family, featuring Tony De Franco, with "Heartbeat, It's a Lovebeat;" Vicki Lawrence with "Night the Lights Went Out in Georgia;" David Essex with "Rock On;" Eric Weissberg and Deliverance with "Dueling Banjos;" Ted Neeley with a scene from "Jesus Christ Superstar;" Coven with "One Tin Soldier;" Al Wilson with "Show and Tell;" Edward Bear with "Last Song;" Alex Harvey with "Delta Dawn;" and Stevie Wonder with "Superstition."

Host Mac Davis offers his gold record hit, "Baby Don't Get Hooked on Me." a song he both composed and recorded, that also won BMI's "Most Performed Song of 1972." Later in the program, Davis sings his current release, "Hell of a Woman," as he takes the television viewer on a brief behind-the-scenes tour of a recording studio.

Interlaced in the program are conversations with guest artists, Vicki Lawrence, Al Wilson, Alex Harvey and Larry Evoy (lead singer/drummer of "Edwin Bear'). The talk centers on the artists' glimpses at the road leading to a gold record, and how it feels to finally receive one.

Davis also talks to Ted Neeley about the kinship of film and recording popularity, especially in relationship to Neeley's success in "Jesus Christ Superstar."

"A TOUCH OF GOLD" is produced by Sam Riddle and directed by Kip Walton. The program is produced by S.R.O. Productions and Kip Walton Productions in cooperation with NBC.

ROSS PORTER: 'SPORTSCASTING FIRST'

If there ever was a career other than sports broadcasting in the books for award-winning KNBC-Sportscaster Ross Porter, it never had much of a chance. Porter had decided on his life's work when he was eight years old.

"I had an idol in those days," reflected Ross recently during a break in a hectic schedule that has him working NBC's exclusive coverage of the NCAA Basketball Tournament in addition to his twice-nightly sports shows on KNBC.

"He was a sportscaster out of KOMA Radio in Oklahoma City whom we picked up in my hometown of Shawnee, Okla. He did everything—basketball, football, baseball—and I listened to him religiously," says Porter. "I was always interested in sports, but this man gave me the inspiration to try to switch to the broadcasting side of the game."

That man was Curt Gowdy, now in his ninth year with NBC Sports and considered by many to be the top sportscaster in the business. Coincidentally, Porter shares the broadcast assignment with Gowdy during coverage of the NCAA Basketball finals.

The NCAA Basketball Tournament, a regular feature of NBC Sports since 1969, climaxes on NBC, Monday (6PM), from Greensboro, N.C.

In early March, twenty-five teams set out in pursuit of the trophy emblematic of collegiate basketball supremacy, the distinction UCLA has held for seven straight years and nine of the last 10.

Curt Gowdy, who says his greatest on-air enjoyment comes from doing basketball play-by-play, and Tom Hawkins, a two-time All-American at Notre Dame and ten-year pro player with both the Cincinnati Royals and Los Angeles Lakers, kicked off a busy tournament schedule by doing the opening doubleheader, assisted by Charlie Jones.

Gowdy, Hawkins and Porter will be back at the Coliseum in Greensboro, N.C., Monday night as the two finalists do battle for the National Championship. The coast-to-coast telecast, marks NBC's second straight year of prime-time coverage for the title game.

During his seven and a half years as Sports Director for KNBC, Porter has won numerous awards, including a Los Angeles-area Emmy for outstanding sports programming and the Golden Mike for best television sports telecast in Los Angeles.

Ross has a reputation for having a near-photographic memory, a talent he modestly dismisses. "I guess it's because I do rattle off a number of statistics from time to time. If there is one thing I do pride myself on," he says, "it's my homework. I get home sometime around midnight following my last show each evening and rarely get to bed before 3:30 a.m. It's the best time for me to keep up with latest developments. I subscribe to all the leading sports publications and just looking over the weekly and daily metropolitan papers can keep you busy enough." So Porter has the statistics and makes generous use of them but it's the result of no unique talent; It's the result of hard work.

COVER CLOSE-UP

TO NEW TERRITORY

One Hundred years ago, a young father, mother and their three children walked away from their cabin in the snowy woods of Wisconsin, climbed into a covered wagon drawn by two horses and set out for the newly opened territory of Kansas. Everyone hated to leave Wisconsin, especially to say goodbye to grandma, grandpa and friends. But father said they had to travel. Too many people were moving in and scaring off the game he hunted for food and clothing. Besides, in Kansas, the government was offering 160 acres free to anyone who would homestead their plot. A man could be his own man there.

The father—young, rugged and restless—was named Charles Ingalls. His wife was named Caroline and the three children, all girls, were Mary, 11; Laura, 10 and little Carrie, 3. Mary was pretty, but timid. Laura was not so pretty, but very bright and adventurous. Carrie was just happy. Years later, when Laura grew up, she married Almanzo Wilder. As Laura Ingalls Wilder, she began to write books about her family's life in the America of those early days. She called the first book, about the Wisconsin days, "The Little House in the Big Woods." The second book about the move to Kansas and the struggle to survive there, she named "The Little House on the Prairie."

Seven more books followed. They came to be known as the "Little House books." Harper & Row published the first one in 1932, the last one in 1971, with each one topping the one before it in sales. More than 1,500,000 copies were sold in the past two years. These figures impressed show business executive Ed Friendly, who went from vice-president in programming with NBC in New York to co-executive producer of Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In. Friendly said he spent months exploring the possibility of preparing companies to acquire the rights to the series in September, 1972.

"One big reason why we won," said he, "was our announced intention up front to present these books as a saga, a series of dramatizations in which the characters will grow and change." Friendly said he spent months exploring the possibility of preparng this saga for the motion picture screen before convincing himself that it more properly belonged on the television screen.

Friendly said he also was convinced that Michael Landon, former star of Bonanza—as Little Joe—would be perfect as the young father. Landon, in turn, was so enthusiastic about the story that he not only wanted to star in it, but also direct it. Friendly concurred and started the wheels turning. Screen writer Blanche Hanalis, who also did the TV adaptation of the novel, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," was engaged to write the script. A cast was painstakingly assembled—TV newcomer Karen Grassle to play the mother, spirited Melissa Gilbert to play Laura, lovely Melissa Sue Anderson to play Mary and, as baby Carrie, a tiny thing with a big name, Lindsay Sidney Green Bush.

At the same time, Friendly and associate producer Kent McCray were crisscrossing the Southwest looking for the right place to film this story. Needed were snow and woods for the Wisconsin scenes, rolling plains for the Kansas scenes. For the former, it was decided to use the hills outside Sonora, California. For the latter, the plains outside nearby Stockton.

Finally in January everything was ready and the cameras rolled. It was decided to shoot the Sonora (Wisconsin) scenes first for fear the snow might melt. No danger. It was freezing cold on those grey dawns in outer Sonora. Filming continued through February, followed by editing, dubbing and adding the music. Now comes the culmination of all this activity, going back to the 11-month effort to get rights to the books.

On Saturday (March 30) Michael Landon stars in "The Little House on the Prairie," two-hour, fact-base World Premiere drama on the NBC Saturday Night Movie from 9 to 11PM. The motion picture tells the story of the Ingalls family in its move to Kansas from Wisconsin, and its struggle to survive there, as seen through the eyes of young Laura, who also narrates.

The family's new life, like before, has its joys and sorrows. On the way to Kansas, the scenery is breathtaking and the sunsets incredible, but the horses break down. At night, the stars are almost touchable and it's fun at the campfire to hear father play the fiddle. But the coyotes' howl keeps getting closer.

LIFE AND WORKS OF JAMES WONG HOWE

James Wong Howe, two-time Academy Award-winning cinematographer, is profiled in a half-hour documentary, narrated by actor Burt Lancaster, "James Wong Howe: The Man and His Movies," Sunday at 10:30PM on KNBC/Channel 4. Howe's genius with a camera is viewed from the perspective of those who have worked with him throughout his legendary 56-year career in Hollywood. Commenting on Howe's innovative artistry are directors Howard Hawks and Daniel Mann, and film stars William Holden, Rock Hudson, Samantha Eggar and Mary Miles Minter.

Film clips from memorable James Wong Howe movies are used to illustrate elements of his technique. Director Howard Hawks talks about his 40-picture association with Howe with a film clip from "Air Force," starring John Garfield; William Holden describes the magic of Howe's lighting with a scene from "Picnic;" Samantha Eggar notes the "detailed perfection" of Howe's approach as seen in "The Molly Maguires;" and Rock Hudson describes difficult camera angles with a scene from "Seconds."

Other impressive camera techniques are detailed in clips from such films as "Body and Soul," with John Garfield and Johnny Day; "Counter-Attack," with Paul Muni and Marguerite Chapman; "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," with Edward G. Robinson; "He Ran All the Way," with John Garfield and Shelley Winters; as well as the Oscar-winning motion pictures, "Hud" and "The Rose Tattoo."

The film also traces Howe's early struggles with poverty and discrimination, from his humble beginnings in Pasco, Washington, where he learned his skill with a two-dollar Kodak camera, to his early days in Hollywood, when director Daniel Mann remembers him as the "only Oriental that he had ever seen on a sound stage in all his years in California."

Throughout, Howe offers anecdotes about highlights in his long career, and reviews his major motion pictures, describing how he achieved the "impossibe" shots and sought unusual camera effects. He is also joined by his wife, Sanora Babb, who offers her insights into his creative talent.

SHELLEY WINTERS PICKS HER ROLES

When you're an actress with Academy Award nominations, two Oscars and two Emmy Awards to your credit, you don't have to take every part that's offered to you. That's the enviable state that Shelly Winters has found herself in, thanks to a great deal of talent and a lot of dedication to her craft.

Miss Winters stars in "Double Trouble" on The New CBS Tuesday Night Movie at 9:30PM. In the film, Miss Winters and Barry Primus portrays partners in a private detective agency. Miss Winters has run the gamut of portrayals in her dramatic career on stage, screen and television—from the young innocent in "A Place in the Sun" to the very selfish, neglectful mother in "A Patch of Blue," for which she won a second Academy Award. More recently, Miss Winters has appeared in several films in the horror genre and toured in the lead as the shrewish mother in the play "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds."

"I decided to do 'Double Trouble'," Miss Winters explains, "because it is something light and entertaining for a change. It has that kind of a delicate touch you used to see in the old 'Thin Man' films with Myrna Loy and William Powell. You could like the people. In 'Double Trouble,' it's kind of nice to play a woman who's likeable for a change."

SERIOUS ROLE FOR DOM DELUISE

Why would the star of a hit comedy series like Lotsa Luck interrupt his busy schedule to guest in a straight dramatic role in Medical Center?

"Because it was fun," Dom DeLuise replies. "Every comedian wants to try serious acting. It's a challenge and it gives a little zing to life. Probably everyone gets a certain amount of pleasure in his regular work but a change of pace is always welcome—and it's good for us. By broadening our base we are sharpening our skills, extending ourselves just a little bit farther instead of sticking in the same easy familiar pattern."

The Medical Center episode in which DeLuise guests is titled "The World's a Balloon" and airs Monday at 10PM on CBS. DeLuise portrays a middle-aged ventriloquist who never quite got his career off the ground. He has assumed guardianship of a 14-year-old nephew without legal approval and suddenly faces a contest over custody. The role calls for a great deal of agonizing on Dom's part, but the comedian says he met the challenge by sticking to the same approach he has used throughout his career.

"In preparing myself mentally for comedy, I tell myself I've just come from work. I've been on the subway and I'm irritated with the world," he says. "Now I'm ready to throw some comedy punches.

"For Medical Center I tell myself I've just come from work, I've been on the subway, I'm irritated with the world, I love my nephew and now they're trying to take my nephew away from me. It's the same technique as for comedy and it works."

That's how DeLuise creates the mood. Then to be convincing in the role, he says he asks himself, "Who am I? Where am I going? What do I want?" DeLuise admits he was mentally ready long before the role was offered to him by director Mike Caffey and the series' producers, Frank Glicksman and Al C. Ward.

"All my life I've been waiting for someone to ask me to play something heavy," he explains. "It's always been a goal of mine so when the Medical Center offer came I had my answer well rehearsed. I told them 'yes.' "

DeLuise said it was "fun" to work with Chad Everett and the rest of the cast because "they have more fun between scenes than we do in comedy. After playing comedy in front of the cameras the cast tends to lapse into a serious mood during the breaks. In drama it's the other way around." DeLuise calls his Medical Center role "a great experience" and admits he'd like to star regularly in a serious series "if the public wanted me to."

INSIDE the tube & OUTSIDE hollywood

by Bill Mahan

Sam Riddle and Kip Walton have produced an interesting special titled "A Touch of Gold" which airs on NBC at 9PM on Monday. The show is a contemporary musical and its debut marks the first time any contemporary musical has been aired over prime time. Besides being a special, the show is being used as a pilot for a possible summer series. If Walton and Riddle are unsuccessful in nailing down a regular series, then they'll shoot for a series of specials.

"We're presenting an hour of honest musical television so the youth who are watching won't feel ripped off," Sam said. "There is no canned applause, no canned laughter, nor any canned sporadic giggles. The show is entirely honest and anything you hear from offstage is the way it happened. All the performers on this show have had at least one record that has sold a million or more copies and—all combined—the artists have sold over fifteen million records. The show is hosted by Mac Davis and is backed by the Love Unlimited Orchestra with thirty different instruments. We're offering some of the most exciting people in the musical world on this show—Vicki Lawrence, the De Franco Family, Ted Neeley (star of "Jesus Christ Superstar"), Coven, Al Wilson, Alex Harvey, Stevie Wonder, David Essex, and Ed Bear to name a few."

At 34 years of age, Sam Riddle has had one of broadcasting's most extensive careers. He has been one of Los Angeles' top-rated disc jockeys for the past 13 years, bringing top ratings to KRLA, KFWB, KHJ, KDAY, and, most recently, KROQ.

Riddle's radio exposure and ratings opened the doors to Los Angeles and network television. It started with the Sam Riddle Show on KCOP-TV and led to seven years at KHJ-TV hosting and producing the city's top teen shows (Groovy, 9th Street West, Boss City, and Hollywood A Go Go). He was the co host with Mama Cass Elliott of ABC's Get it Together. In 1972, Universal Television contracted S.R.O. Productions to produce the television premiere of "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Kip Walton has been around music all his life. He began studying the piano at age four, and was the youngest student ever accepted at the world famous Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York, where he gave classical concerts as a child.

After completing high school in Burlingame, California, he studied theatre arts at the Pasadena Playhouse working his way through the school as a gardener. Prior to being drafted into the Army, he worked as a messenger at Warner Brothers Studios.

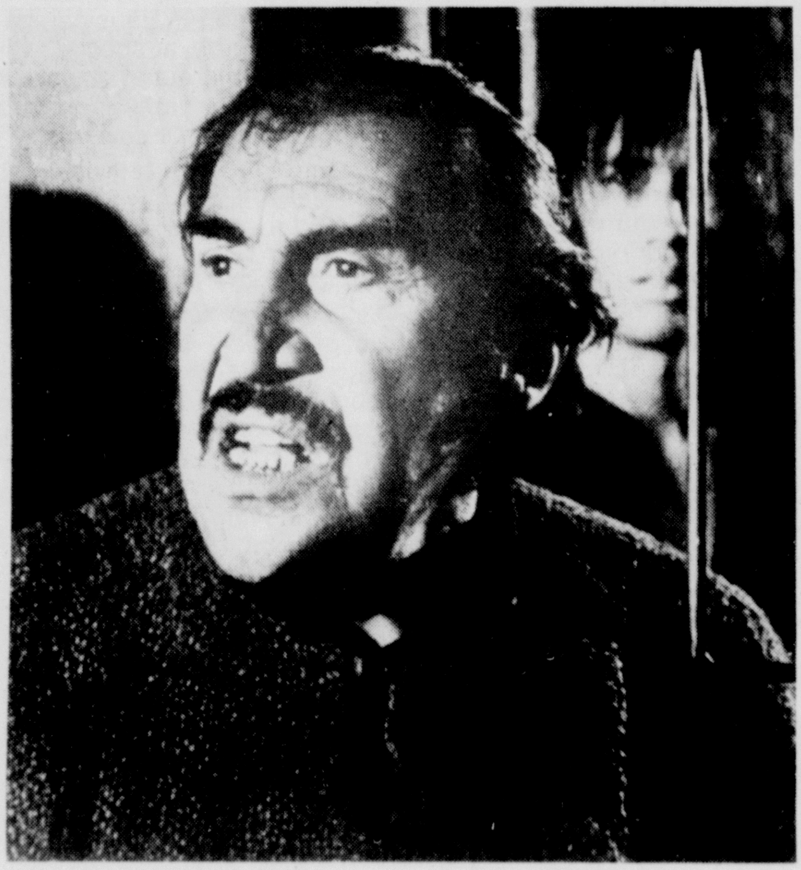
'MEXICOS' GREATEST DIRECTOR'

It was tentatively reassuring that El Indio, as they call him in Mexico, wasn't toting that gun on his hip, and a definite relief to hear him say with a laugh, "No, no, senor, I do not hate newspapermen any more." Not so long ago in Mexico he shot one, a movie critic. Not to mention a producer.

Emilio Fernandez, by consensus of his peers on both sides of the border, Mexico's greatest director, had come up to co-star with David Carradine as an actor in "The Brujo," an episode of Kung Fu (ABC, 9PM, Thusrday). He was "between" directorial assignments. "He's very demanding," someone said by way of explanation; which was putting it mildly. But then El Indio has had a wild and woolly life.



Emilio Fernandez ("El Indio"), by general consensus Mexico's greatest director, and a national folk hero below the border for the wild and woolly life he has lived (SEE STORY), turns actor on Kung Fu.

Fighting for General Obregon as a boy, he was stood against a wall by Pancho Villa's men to be shot—and escaped. Sentenced to 20 years for stealing a plane during the Huerta uprising, he smuggled dynamite into the prison, blew a hole in the wall, and escaped again. As a political refugee, he was a boilermaker in Chicago, but departed after cuckolding a gangster; became an extra in Hollywood. He taught John Ford the words of "La Cucaracha," the Villistas' marching song, and Ford launched his career in pictures.

It was the gun-packing director El Indio who gave Dolores Del Rio a new career in Mexican films after the sweet-faced beauty was washed up in Hollywood. "Wipe that look off your face and start looking like people," he demanded, and cast her as a prostitute in "Las Abandonadas," an attack on Mexican generals who were on the take. To get the film released he had to threaten to shoot a few officials, but out it came, and created a sensation. Then he starred Dolores in "Maria Candelaria," hailed at the Cannes Film Festival as a masterpiece.

Meanwhile he was having a torrid romance with Del Rio. "Burn the furs, throw away the emeralds, and come and live with me in a hut," he demanded. That was when she left him. His greatest film was "The Pearl," from a short story by John Steinbeck. "Brujo" is Spanish for male witch, and El Indio turns into one in "Kung Fu."

"A part I can get my teeth into," he said, displaying them evilly.

A BUSY DAY FOR WAYNE NEWTON

Wayne Newton's output during the recent taping of a series of segments for NBC's Music Country USA (Thursdays, 10PM), made it clear that the physical strain of a singing career is not confined to the vocal chords.

Wayne was just one of five music headliners assembled by creator-producer-director Greg Garrison for a day of location shooting at Greg's 40-acre ranch in Hidden Valley, Calif., just outside Los Angeles, last week. But because of his commitments to the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas that same week, Newton was by far the busiest of the group that day. One look at his schedule tells why.

On Monday evening, Wayne was scheduled for his regular dinner and late show appearances as the Sands' headliner. Meantime, over at the Frontier Hotel his buddy Roy Clark fell ill and was unable to make his two scheduled appearances that night. Wayne was asked to fill in.

By moving the start of Wayne's two shows to later hours and by moving those of Roy's to earlier times, Newton did not two but four shows that had him on the go that night from 7 p.m. until well past 2 o'clock in the morning.

With no more than a change of clothes, Wayne headed for the Las Vegas airport where a private jet was to take him to the airport in Van Nuys, Calif., the closest air stop to the Music Country location site. From there it was a 45-minute drive on picturesque but now darkened country roads to Greg's ranch.

The shooting call for Wayne was 9AM, which meant he had to be on the set at least an hour and a half earlier for make-up, wardrobe and other pre-shooting activities.

The weather was brisk that January morning at the location site and while the performers could wear whatever they wished in the day of warm outer jackets (Buck Owens was resplendent in a fur-lined parka), Wayne eschewed the heavier gear which he felt would hamper his moves, some of which involved the handling of two of his prized Arabian stallions on camera.

Wayne did no less than seven (count 'em) songs: "Act Naturally," "Sunday Morning Coming Down," "Take Me Home Country Road," "Behind Closed Doors," "Gentle on My Mind," "Cotton Fields" and "Today I Started Loving You Again."

At 4:45PM, Newton left the remote location site for the drive back to Van Nuys Airport, boarded a private jet and was back in Las Vegas at about 6:30PM to prepare for first of his two shows at the Sands.

ANGIE DICKINSON COPS POLICE ROLE

Angie Dickinson has finally found a television role she wouldn't mind playing every week. The role is that of an undercover policewoman who is a member of the Vice Administration Department. She has the dangerous assignment of helping to crack a big gambling ring in "The Gamble," a Screen Gems Police Story drama airing Tuesday at 10PM on NBC.

"It's the kind of role every actress dreams of playing," enthuses Angie. "It's something I'd like to do as a series." Offered a number of series in the past, the blonde and beautiful Angie has turned them all down.

"So many of those parts not only type you as an actress, but they're also very restrictive," she says. "It's the same thing every week. But the 'Police Story' role offers a great deal of latitude. An undercover policewoman works in many areas and all require a different approach."

"The Gamble" was an exhausting one for the actress because the long production hours involved much night shooting which resulted in Angie coming down with a heavy cold. Fortunately, the staph germs struck when the show was winding up. "But it was well worth it," she sniffles, "and you can quote me on that."

Can Angie imagine herself toting a badge as a real lady of the law? "No," she answers firmly. "It was a wonderful experience playing the part, but I wouldn't choose to do it professionally. On the other hand, I can understand why women are attracted to the work. It certainly isn't dull."

Angie notes the emergence of better roles for women in television lately, citing Cicely Tyson in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" and Elizabeth Montgomery in "A Case of Rape" as examples. "But female leads in dramatic series are still scarce," she notes. "Despite women's lib, television is still a man's world."

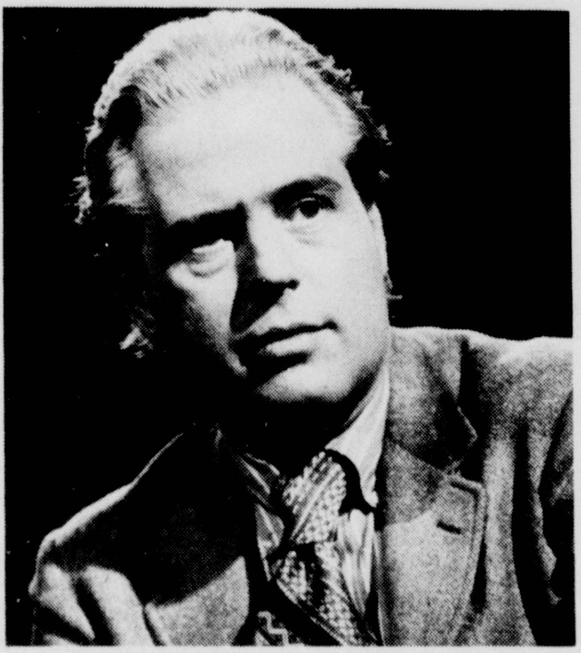
'KCET'S MEMBERSHIP WEEK'



Columnist Nicholas Von Hoffman provides commentary on "The Best of the Great American Dream Machine," part of KCET's "Pledge Week," Wednesday, March 27, 8PM.

Public supported KCET has scheduled a special "Membership Week" of programming which will be highlighted by all five episodes of Emile Zola's "Nana," a composite of "The Great American Dream Machine," and the Alfred Hitchcock segment from "The Men Who Made The Movies." The special eight nights will run from Sunday (3/24) to next Sunday evening. The unusual broadcast times are due to brief membership breaks.

Highlights are: Sunday (3/24) at 7:36PM, an examination of the effects of air pollution as reported on "The Los Angeles Collective," followed at 8:07 by "The Men Who Made The Movies" and a rare video-portrait of Alfred Hitchcock. Masterpiece Theatre's "Upstairs, Downstairs" airs at 9:15, and at 11:40 the first of two specials dealing with noted artists who work in the medium of videotape. "You Call That Art?" presents a look at John Baldessari who paints with photographs.

On Monday (3/25) at 8:03PM, the renowned Vienna Philharmonic stages an all-Strauss program, followed at 9:09 with "World Symphony Special" featuring Arthur Fiedler and 140 musicians from 60 nations. At 10:51, artist William Wegman's work is showcased on part II of "You Call That Art?"

Tuesday (3/26) at 8:02PM, "Place For No Story" airs. It is an aerial cinematic portrait of California's coastline and inland topography that tells much about man's attitude and relationship to his environment. It is followed by the 60-minute film "Catch The Joy" at 9:03, and the repeat at 10:09 of Pushkin's short story of greed and horror, "Queen of Spades," starring Dame Edith Adams.

On Wednesday (3/27) at 8:03PM, KCET reprises the best of "The Great American Dream Machine," an hour of irreverent glimpses at American life. At 9:05 "The Sinners" premieres. The first of 12 one-hour plays adapted from some of the best and funniest Irish short stories is titled "Legal Aid." At 10:02 the dramatization of Oscar Wilde's life, "Feasting With Panthers," airs on Theater in America.

Thursday night (3/28) is science night on Channel 28. KNBC newsman Jim Brown and Dr. Don Ray, chief scientist of the Jet Propulsion Lab in Pasadena, provide live reports throughout the evening from JPL of Mariner 10's fly-by of the planet Mercury. At approximately 8:03 the first pictures of the planet should be received. At 8:35 the science series "Nova" focuses on life in outer space and an examination of Viking Lander due to set down on Mars in 1976.

Friday (3/29) night's lineup includes "Washington Week in Review" at 8:15PM, "Bill Moyer's Journal" at 10:02 and "Firing Line" with William Buckley, Jr., at 10:35.

'JOSE PEREZ GRADUATES'

Jose Perez, a favorite of the critics in CBS' short-lived Calucci's Department this season, is back in a new situation comedy, "Aces Up," which CBS will air Friday at 9:30PM, as part of a special presentation of pilots for next season. After wrapping up production on "Aces Up," Perez took some time out recently to talk about both his old and new shows. Now that a few months have passed since the demise of Calucci's Department, Perez can be more objective about it.

"It was a good show," he said. "But it was too much a New York show. Middle America didn't care for it. All the critics liked it, even in the smaller cities in the Middle West, but the people hated it. We were killed in the ratings. Of course, being against Sanford and Son didn't help us either. That had a lot to do with us getting cancelled."

Is he bitter about it? "No. You can't be bitter about things like that. It's the nature of the business. There were legitimate reasons why it didn't succeed. The disappointing part about it was that it was rare to be able to work with such good people as Renee Taylor, Joseph Bologna and James Coco. That was a tremendous experience, and I'm sorry it had to end."

JOSE PEREZ and RAUL JULIA, co-stars of "Aces Up."

But end it did, and now Perez is looking forward to the possibility of doing "Aces Up" for next season. In the show, Perez and Raul Julia are the only regulars. They portray two Puerto Rican racing car enthusiasts who scrounge a living with their "nickle-and-dime" trucking business while trying to build a racing car that will carry them to glory.

The pilot episode shows them in a slapstick trucking duel across the desert with another Puerto Rican team. Both trucks are hauling loads of watermelons to Las Vegas, and both arrive there empty, having strewn their cargo all over the desert enroute. In a climactic scene, both sides proceed to destroy each other's trucks, with crowbars and sledgehammers. The final shot shows Perez and Julia being towed into the sunset in their wrecked truck, singing all the way because they'd shown the other side they couldn't be pushed around.

Should the pilot become a series, Perez hopes it will become a vehicle whereby the rest of America might become better acquainted with the Puerto Ricans who live here. "In California, where we made the show, the people are more familiar with Mexican-Americans. But Puerto Ricans are entirely different. We are an island people, and we are more carefree. We take life a little easier."

EDWARD ASNER: LIGHTHEARTED HEAVY

Some might think it ironic that an actor who previously was seen mostly as a "heavy" on TV should capture two Emmy Awards for the best supporting role in a TV comedy series, in 1971 and 1972. That's the way it has been for Edward Asner, who plays Lou Grant, the gruff, hard-drinking, slow-burning newsroom boss on the Mary Tyler Moore Show.

But Asner doesn't see any irony in that at all. "There is no reason an actor can't switch from drama to comedy," he says. "I think comedy is a little tougher to do than drama on film, but any actor who has learned his craft should be able to handle parts that go both ways—given the time."

Born in Kansas City, Kansas, Asner learned his craft in Chicago and New York City before moving to the West Coast. Back in 1961, in New York, he was playing Detective Lt. Busti, a role he created on the "Naked City" series for CBS. When the series fell behind in its schedule, the producers decided to film two episodes simultaneously, so Asner and Paul Burke were sent to Hollywood on an extradition case while Harry Palaver and Horace McMahon filmed in New York.

That was Asner's first visit to Los Angeles. He decided that it was here his future lay, so he hired an agent, and two months later he and wife Nancy left New York via auto and trailer, filming a "Route 66" episode in Youngstown, Ohio, en route to help cover expenses. "I never regretted my decision to leave New York," says Asner. "My first six months in Hollywood accounted for my most lucrative period in show business to that time."

During his first decade here he played mostly "heavy" roles, including a running part for one season on Slattery's People. Then, in 1969 he filmed a movie for television, "Doug Selby, D.A.," starring Jim Hutton, which was to serve as a pilot for a series. Asner portrayed a bumbling police chief and, even though the movie wasn't seen on TV until December 1971, his performance was viewed by Grant Tinker, Mary Tyler Moore's husband, who was then vice president of TV programs at 20th Century-Fox.

In 1970, when Allan Burns and Tinker were discussing possibilities for the role of Lou Grant, Mary's boss in her new series, both men thought of Asner. He was called for an audition, and a new comedy star was born. "I love the part and the show," he says, "and I hope it lasts another ten years. It's amazing how many newsmen tell me they've had a boss just like me."

'LOOKING UP . . . UP . . . UP TO NEW TV STARS

Things are definitely "looking up" for a new type of TV star these days! Not one of them is under six feet five inches tall. They're the champion basketball players who are now broadcasters—and their stardom is just as real as Merv Griffin's or Mike Douglas'. Take for example . . . Elgin Baylor. Elgin, as anybody within 6,000 miles of Los Angeles knows, used to play basketball — championship basketball — year after year for the Lakers. Now he talks about basketball on national television each week for the National Basketball Association — the NBA.

Elgin, Rod Hundley (another former Laker who is very, very tall) and Pat Summerall are the three regulars who bring you the NBA Game of the Week. They give you the play by play description, but they also furnish the background and color for the game. They fill you in on who is doing well, who is not doing so well, and who should have stayed in the locker room that day. They're up on everything in basketball . . . and they should be. They're all star players of just yesterday and all champions in their own right.

Elgin Baylor, former Los Angeles Laker great, now turns to talking about the game instead of playing it. Elgin adds the color and background to the NBA Game of the Week broadcast over CBS.

Baylor is a former All American from Seattle where he got off to an early start as a record-breaker, shattering nine school records in scoring and rebounding. After graduation, the Lakers were fortunate enough to catch Elgin in the first-round draft choice. He was an instant star . . . and Rookie of the Year . . . and for fourteen years he was a fixture as forward with the Los Angeles Lakers. He used those years well, becoming fourth leading scorer in NBA history with over 23,149 points (that's a lot of baskets!) and he's the fifth leading rebounder as well. Quite a set of credentials for a neophyte sportscaster!

"Having played the game, it's second nature to talk about it. But it's a whole new dimension for me. I enjoy doing it . . . and I've met some great people—producers, directors . . . all the people at CBS are great. I think we make the game more enjoyable for the fans. We point up what's going on, what's really behind the plays . . . why certain players did what they did. It makes it a better game for the viewers."

Elgin Baylor loves to talk about basketball. And he does so with great enthusiasm, love and respect for the game . . . and for his new role as television star.

"TELE-TALK"

Leonard H. Goldenson, Chairman of the Board of American Broadcasting Companies, Inc., and Chairman of the Board of United Cerebral Palsy Association, recently proposed to the House Select Committee on Education that greater use be made of aeronautics and space technology to help handicapped people.

"Thirty-five billion dollars was spent on research to get men to the moon," Mr. Goldenson said. "It seems to me only logical that an additional amount of money should be invested to further NASA's research to make many of these things available to those on earth. The public would then begin to appreciate the space program, for its impact would be felt by over ten million families in this country.

"As I understand," he added, "it costs about $65 billion annually to maintain the 10 million handicapped in this country. If we could make many of them self-sufficient, as suggested here, through research, we could cut that maintenance by billions of dollars. I would think this is a good investment on the part of our government."

Specific technological developments by NASA that could be applicable to the handicappeds' needs, Mr. Goldenson pointed out, include a lunar walker, an electrode implant that would enable kidneys to function, another near the ocular nerve in the brain that would enable a totally blind person to see light and shadows, and a computerized "master and slave technique" built into NASA space suits that could be utilized in physical therapy.

"Dr. Lee Arnold, an advisor at NASA in the space program and chairman and professor of the Department of Aeronautics and Astronautics, New York University, stated NASA had developed a lunar walker originally in their space program because they felt man couldn't walk on the lunar surface, but abandoned this idea later, Mr. Goldenson told the committee. "A young boy of 12 took this 8 by 6-foot mock-up lunar walker up stairs, down stairs, through mud, over rocks, through sand and shallow water. We immediately felt, if through research this could be put into a miniature form for a handicapped person we could free millions of handicapped and elderly people who had become immobile."

Research has already been done on electrode implants in cases of paralyzed kidneys, Mr. Goldenson said. "As a result of research it is now possible to implant an electrode at an appropriate level of the spine and kidney. By pushing a button this activates the small transmitter. This, in turn, activates the implanted electrode causing the bladder to function. It is also felt an electrode can be planted near the ocular nerve in the brain enabling a totally blind person to see light and shadows."

The "master and slave technique" developed by NASA "gives rise to the possible development of a lighter moon suit which could be used by a therapist," Mr. Goldenson pointed out. "Let's say that 50 people who have suffered strokes were put into similar suits. As a therapist moved her arm, all 50 people would involuntarily have to do the same, though voluntarily they could not. Thus, paraplegics, people who have suffered strokes, cerebral palsy or infantile paralysis victims, arthritis patients or those with other nervous disorders could all receive therapy from one person. It was suggested that it might be feasible to program each individual with his own computer program; the only problem is one of stabilization. This, the scientists at NASA felt, could be overcome with research."

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR BETTY FRIEDAN,
founder of the Women's Lib Movement

What do you think of women who say that mothers should abandon their children to achieve self-determination?—Patricia Barker, Battle Creek, Mich.

● Any woman who says this is a female chauvinist. Any definition of the women's movement that leads you to think that mothers should abandon their children patently violates what the women's movement is all about, which is the right of women to full personhood. This includes the choice of whether or not and when to have children, but not the right of women to love and care for the children they bear.

FOR SEN. ROBERT C. BYRD (D-W. Va.)

What do you think of limiting gasoline purchases to ten gallons?—T. T. K., Santa Rosa, Calif.

● Of all the questionable proposals put forth for combating the energy crisis, limiting gasoline purchases to ten gallons seems to me the most futile. What difference is there between a trip to the gas station once a week for 20 gallons and two trips a week to the station for ten gallons—except in the extra gas used for the added trip?

FOR ISAAC ASIMOV, science-fiction author

What's your explanation of the influx of UFO reports?—I. Turner, Boise, Idaho

● Manias are catching. If one person decides to cut off his hair to protest something, pretty soon dozens of people all over the country will be doing the same. Whenever one person reports a flying saucer and it gets into the paper, you can always expect a whole rash of them. It doesn't mean a thing.

FOR AMANDA BLAKE of "Gunsmoke"

I've heard you keep a lion as a pet. Is it de-clawed or de-toothed?—L. D., Encino, Calif.

● No. We just try to stay on good terms with each other.

FOR ARTHUR GODFREY

I hear you're an amateur radio operator. Where do you operate and what class are you?—Kris Wenger, Battle Creek, Mich.

● Truthfully, I don't know what class I am, but my license is marked "general," and my call sign is K4LIB (King Four Love It Baby). But don't bother calling. I have no equipment at present, having given it all to a home for the blind in New York.

FOR MICKEY MANTLE

Who is the toughest pitcher you ever faced?—John Todd, Sacramento, Calif.

● Don Drysdale of the Dodgers. He was also the meanest. He was a friend of mine, but he'd come by before a game and say, "Where do you want to get hit today?"

FOR TERRY ANNE MEEUWSEN, Miss America 1973

What do you think about the "Ms." bit?—Kimberly Fulkerson, Rogersville, Tenn.

● I think Women's Lib would accomplish a lot more if they approached problems positively. As for the "Ms." bit—the last thing our society needs is another name tag attached to a social group. Once this liberation is achieved, we've all got to live and work together. So, let's work together to get there.

FOR DAN RATHER, CBS correspondent

How do you answer the charge that the press is out to "get" the President?—Joe Zeloof, Edison, N.J.

● It's not my job to get in name-calling or accusation matches with this or any other President. My job is to get as much of the truth about what is going on as I can, and to report it accurately and fairly. Sometimes, being human, I fail, but that is my goal. I love my country and respect the Office of the Presidency. I feel no hostility toward this or any other President.

FOR CELESTE HOLM

● I think it's a very important medium. But I think it's being used too much to sell products. When making a commercial, the actors spend days, even weeks, filming it. But when it comes to the programming, the actors are given one chance, and as long as nobody completely muffs the scene, the director says, "Cut and print it!" I think that shows "where it's at."

FOR THE

ASK THEM YOURSELF

EDITOR

I often watch Redd Foxx on "Sanford & Son," and on TV talk shows, and like him very much. Is he as nice as he seems to be?—B. Williams, Roswell, N.M.

● That depends on who's talking. Lots of people will agree with you that he's a sweetheart. But some, including several of the cast and crew of "Sanford & Son," claim he's become swellheaded, that success has gone to his head, and that he's not as nice as he once was.

A Marriage Counselor Speaks Out On Her Own Women's Lib Headaches

"I only hope that we are not rushing headlong into a new demeaning image for women—the image of the selfish, the unreasoning, the unjust."

"In my opinion," says Dr. Liswood, "anything that tends to lessen friendship between the sexes is inevitably sad and impoverishing to the human race."

Eva Rubinstein

As a marriage counselor I am concerned over the effect of Women's Liberation on American marriage. Speakers and writers for the rapidly proliferating organizations of this movement are repeatedly guilty of two major offenses in my book—denigrating men, and suggesting that homemaking is slavery and housewives are slobs.

Many women are emotionally immature enough to believe them. Many men are emotionally immature enough to allow what they say to prejudice them against the good things Women's Lib does.

Let me state up front that I am not anti-Women's Liberation. I am in sympathy with this movement's efforts to eliminate the stupid prejudices that for too long have been unfair to women. How can it be denied that women should be eligible for any job they're capable of performing and receive the same pay for it a man would receive? Or that women who wish to work outside the home should do so, providing suitable arrangements are made for the care of the house and children? To this end, I am enthusiastic about the Women's Lib's program of establishing day nurseries for the children of working mothers.

However, I am alarmed by the way many Lib spokeswomen seem to delight in inflaming the "battle of the sexes" and in driving a wedge between men and women, husbands and wives. In my opinion, anything that tends to lessen friendship between the sexes is inevitably sad and impoverishing to the human race.

Until recently it was unusual for a man to initiate marriage counseling. But during the past year, many unhappy, indignant and angry husbands have called me for appointments. They complain that their wives are denying responsibility to their marriage, harassing them with outrageous demands and calling them "male chauvinist pigs," obviously not a term the wives coined themselves. As one bewildered man said: "My wife and I aren't good friends anymore."

Undoubtedly there are male chauvinists who demean and enslave their wives. They require her to account for every dime she spends, they give her no personal allowance and keep their investments in their name only. Such men certainly are the villains in many marital problems and even breakups.

But now there is a new villain to contend with. This is the woman who believes she should have a salary for her work in the home and suggests that she is working only for her husband—and not for her marriage. This is the same woman who expects her husband, returning from the job that supports his family, to do the laundry and even bathe the children, without realizing that she herself is being a shirker. It isn't the work they do that demeans these women—at least not in my view. They demean themselves.

Listen for a moment to the complaints of a man we'll call "Mr. Smith." Mr. Smith, an advertising executive, came to my office to seek help. He felt that his marriage was coming unglued.

At work, he said, the women on his staff seemed much more temperamental than they used to be. "And when they 'act up' and the work doesn't get out, I'm as exhausted as if I'd been digging ditches.

"After one rough day I looked forward to the before-dinner drink my wife always had waiting for me. It's no big deal for me to fix a Scotch-on-the-rocks. But I liked the fact that she did it. It made me feel appreciated.

"But that night, instead of saying, 'Here you are, Hon!' she said, 'From now on, Big Boy, you're bartender!' I got the message. She had been listening to a Women's Lib speaker who intrigued her, and she no longer was going to be my 'slave.'

"That was three months ago," he continued. "Our house isn't as warm or orderly as it used to be. I have to drop off my shirts and suits at the laundry and cleaner on my way to the train. The kids are starting to act differently, too. They're beginning to act like their mother, making a great fuss about carrying out the garbage or cleaning the garage or doing anything that isn't what they feel like doing."

This is not surprising. Only when a mother respects herself—whatever she does—do children incline toward being cooperative.

I asked Mrs. Smith to come see me. During our conference, I said, "If you sincerely think domestic work turns you into a slob, you should not do it. But you have an alternative. You can take an outside job—and pay someone else to look after your home and family."

After thinking about it, Mrs. Smith decided she did not want to go out and get a job. She was not happy about being "just a housewife," as she put it, but it seemed the "lesser of two evils." Their marriage is now in better shape. The wife, at least, is holding up her end, although sometimes complainingly. Understandably, however, good feeling between the partners is not what it used to be.

A Women's Lib leader recently did a radio interview with a woman writer who referred to herself as a housewife. The movement leader answered: "Well, you're first a writer, not a slob!" This kind of talk tends to fix in many minds the notion that being a housewife is equal to being a slob.

I believe Women's Lib organizations have a responsibility to monitor their speakers and issue a disclaimer when a spokesman says anything contrary to their philosophy. This would go a long way toward curtailing the marital unrest that's now occasioned when some speakers indulge in emotional high jinks.

Women have had their spirits and egos eroded by all the aspersions that have been cast on their domestic roles.

One wife, motivated by all this denigration of housewifery, decided to take a job. Her husband encouraged her, but he came to regret it.

He told me: "When my wife stayed home I was happy to help her with any rough work. When she took a job I naturally started doing a lot more. But she has become unfair.

"I suggested that, since she gets home a half hour before I do, she start dinner. But she told me that it was bad enough she had to make our bed and do our breakfast dishes – two coffee mugs, two spoons and two juice glasses–before she left in the morning. I might have said that I made the coffee and poured the juice, but who wants to be that petty?"

He added, "I'm reacting badly. I feel so pushed around." I later learned that he had stopped making love to his wife some months before.

Pursuing the case, I learned that this man's wife is a person with a natural aptitude for business. She frankly admitted that when she'd been promoted to assistant sportswear buyer she'd made up her mind to waste no energy on housework, to direct all her talents and energies to becoming an executive.

"That's fine," I said, "but you should be aware that you may alienate your husband." When I suggested that she invest some of her salary in a part-time helper, she hesitated. She wanted to deposit all her earnings in her own savings account, which was growing rapidly, while her husband continued to pay all the bills.

I persuaded her there was injustice in this, and she began to shoulder her share of the load. Now, a part-time servant comes in five afternoons a week to keep the house clean and leaves dinner ready to be heated. And her husband is no longer a laggard lover.

I think the most serious harm Women's Lib has done is illustrated by this recent incident at the university where I teach.

I was talking to a group of young women and suggested a way they might make life easier for men with whom they come in contact.

From the rear of the room a loud female voice called: "Too damn bad about the boys!"

Then, standing to be seen as well as heard, she announced, "As a member of NOW, I consider it high time we women quit catering to men and lived our lives as we see fit!"

I was dismayed by all the approving laughter. The point the girls were missing, it seemed to me, was that when half the human race turns its back on the other half, it can only cause trouble. In the past, women have felt demeaned by men. I only hope that we are not rushing headlong into a new demeaning image for women–the image of the selfish, the unreasoning, the unjust. That could become the kind of self-made image from which we women will have a hard time recovering.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Are You Really What You Eat?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. When you're cooking for a man, how good the dish you set before him smells is more important than how it tastes, for a man's sense of smell is far more acute than a woman's.

2. An inadequate diet can affect you physically, but it can't do anything to your IQ or your personality.

3. People with few marked preferences or pronounced dislikes for food tend to seek stimulation and excitement in other areas of life.

ANSWERS

1. False. The man of the house may exclaim, "Boy! Does that smell good!" as tantalizing aromas arise from the cooking pots. But don't let that fool you, for any fragrance, whether it emanates from the kitchen range or a Chanel Number Five bottle, has to be stronger for a man to smell it than for a woman. In experiments conducted at the Psychological Laboratory, University of Utrecht, women were found to have a greater olfactory acuity (sense of smell) than men. In fact, roughly 50 percent of the men tested showed a markedly poor olfactory capacity. Perhaps that's why some women feel it's necessary to use perfumes as liberally as they do—in order for them to register on the males' sensibilities.

2. False. Findings of a study sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service have shown that: Inadequate nutrition can affect both physiological and psychological development in humans. It's important to have a well-balanced diet regardless of your age, but it was found that "the nine months of gestation and the first few years of life are the most critical in the growth of brain tissue, and are also the periods of greatest vulnerability to malnutrition."

3. False. Studies show that people who have passive attitudes toward food, seldom showing either distaste or enthusiasm, tend to lead lives lacking in color and variety. On the other hand, people whose tastes in food run a wide gamut, whose preferences are marked and enthusiastic, are apt to bring the same zestful attitude to other phases of life and living.

4. True. Studies show that enjoyment of a tasty repast can very definitely influence our mood romantically, and render us more appreciative of and more susceptible to the charms of the opposite sex. Hunger, on the other hand,

At 38, I got rid of 10 pounds and my gray hair, and went to work for a decorator.

Over the past few years I'd gotten a little fatter and a little grayer. Year by year. Maybe because my husband loved me too much. But deep down I knew. And here I was nearing 40.

Before when I'd had these feelings I'd work it off cleaning a closet or something. This time I knew I had to renew myself. It was painful but I went looking for a job.

I decided one thing I didn't need was gray hair. Every time I looked in the mirror it was depressing. That gloomy gray-brown color just wasn't me!...

I didn't want to use a peroxide dye though. I wouldn't touch my hair till I found out about Loving Care® lotion. It's not a permanent tint or dye. It's a gentle color wash.

It's different from most all other haircolor brands because it doesn't have peroxide! And it doesn't change your own natural color. Just the gray goes away.

Now I'm doing things. I like myself. And who knows what's ahead! I feel as a person I've only just begun and forty is going to be fabulous!

tends to have the opposite effect. And an inadequate diet, as one authority points out, results in decreased libido and decreased fertility.

5. True—according to studies conducted at the University of New Mexico on children and vegetable eating. Boys and girls, aged 5½ to 7½, were divided into various groups. Before lunch, one group "had an additional child present who served as a spinach-eating model, wolfing his spinach down and commenting on its tastiness." Another group watched a rutabaga-eating model put away the vegetable with relish and dispatch, commenting on how good it tasted. Still another group saw no model. Results: Children who watched the spinach-eating model ate appreciably more spinach than the others. And as for the other vegetable, it's noted that "exposure to a rutabaga eater increased both the number of rutabaga eaters and the amount of rutabaga eaten." In summing up their findings, the investigators recommend that: Parents who want their children to like vegetables should try entertaining a lentil lover, asparagus aficionado or spinach savorer for lunch! fw

Jose Feliciano: My Ten Favorite Records

"I know most of these people and I really like their work," says Jose Feliciano. "In many cases they have influenced my music. The Edward R. Murrow album has helped give me a picture of history." Feliciano, the blind Puerto Rican performer, has had to overcome many handicaps. But he struck gold with "Light My Fire" and has been a huge success ever since.

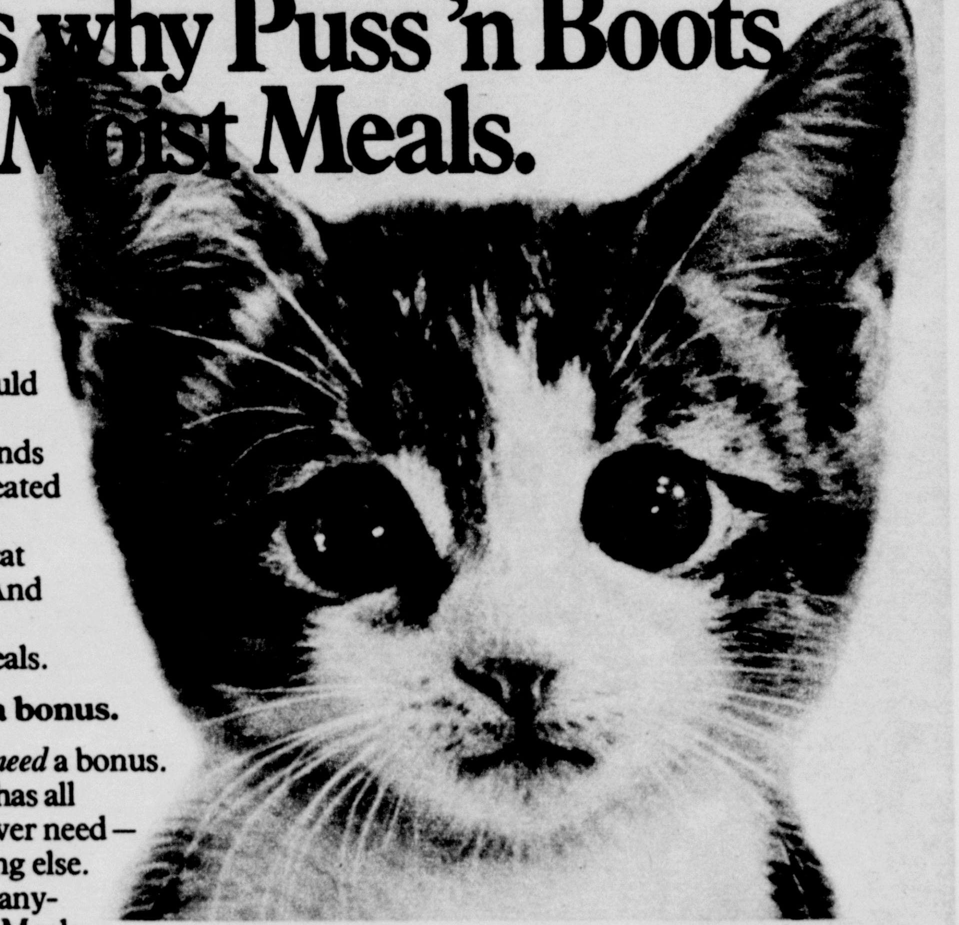
Your cat really doesn't have nine lives. That's why Puss 'n Boots created Moist Meals.



If you could wish one thing for your cat, you'd wish that the one life he does have would be a happy and healthy one.

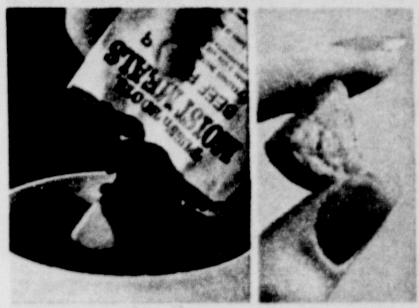
Puss 'n Boots understands this completely. So we've created a new cat food that contains 100% of the nutrition your cat needs to live a healthy life. And made it delicious, too.

The name is Moist Meals.

The only cat food with a bonus.

Moist Meals doesn't really need a bonus. Even without the bonus, it has all the nutrition your cat will ever need—even if he never eats anything else.

And he may never eat anything else. We tested Moist Meals against comparable flavors of Tender Vittles (the cat food that appears most similar to Moist Meals) among hundreds and hundreds of cats. Owners told us virtually three times as many preferred Moist Meals as Tender Vittles.



What is the bonus, and why is it there?

The bonus is a nugget made of liver, egg, cheese and vitamins. An extra chunk of concentrated nutrition that cats find irresistible.

It's there for insurance, pure and simple.

8 more reasons to try Moist Meals.

Four of them are flavors your cat will love: 1. Liver. 2. Beef. 3. Chicken. 4. Tuna.

And four of them are things you love: 1. Pre-measured, meal-size pouches. 2. No mess. 3. No refrigeration. 4. And, best of all, no unpleasant odor.

Moist Meals from Puss 'n Boots.® Because your cat really has only one life.

BILLY CUNNINGHAM:

A Street-War Kind of Basketball

The Carolina Cougars' Billy Cunningham, voted the "Most Valuable Player" in the American Basketball Association for the '72-'73 season, is now making about $200,000 a year. This is quite an advance over the $25,000-a-year goal he once said would "make me secure and happy for the rest of my life."... Cunningham was known as "Billy the Kid" and the "Irish terror" back in the Brooklyn tenement district he came from. He was always getting into fights both on and off the basketball court. He learned to play on asphalt courts in playgrounds where the baskets were rusted and twisted. That's where he developed his slashing, driving style, as well as his tendency for violent eruption. . . . His wife Sondra, an astrology buff, blames her husband's temperament on the fact that he's a Gemini—"The Gemini sign projects temper," she says. Cunningham admits he's always been a tense person. "My father—a city fire chief—was an intense man, my mother was intense, and so were the coaches I had in high school and college," he says. . . . Both in high school and at the University of North Carolina, Cunningham was known as a player who fought with referees and teammates. Marriage and fatherhood have mellowed him a little. . . . Formerly with the Philadelphia 76'ers, he was on the NBA All-Star team for three years before the Cougars enticed him to switch to their new league. His coach, Larry Brown, calls him "a great guy to have in a close game."—By Barry Abramson

The Diet Watch

Hold the Fats!

One problem a dieter faces is how to get enough protein and yet keep down the calories—not to mention the cost of buying high-protein foods like meat, poultry and fish. Protein, which keeps us vital, young and healthy, is what our bodies are largely made of, and ideally we should have about 60 grams of it a day. Some inexpensive low-calorie protein foods are: a ½ cup of cottage cheese (16 grams of protein) at 85 calories for uncreamed or 130 for creamed; three ounces of canned tuna (24 grams) at 170 calories; a ½ cup of cooked soybeans (20 grams) at 108 calories; an eight-ounce glass of skim milk (nine grams) at 90 calories. By contrast, one expensive pork chop, with only about three ounces of meat on it, gives us 16 grams of protein—and 260 calories!

How can you fare well, protein-wise, at lunch counters? Good choices are a frankfurter on a roll, an American or Swiss cheese sandwich one cheese-pizza section, a cup of split pea soup (made with water), a cup of yogurt or a sardine sandwich.—By Harriet La Barre

The Doctor Lets You In

Is Acne Just a State of Mind?

Do a person's emotions have anything to do with his having acne? Acne is not an imaginary disease. Either you have it or you don't. How come, then, some doctors have recently declared that acne is often in your mind? The answer is that acne, an inflammatory response to the fatty acids in the skin (probably enhanced by glandular changes in adolescence), can be influenced by emotion. Doctors are not sure why this is so, but they have determined it is so by demonstrating that when an acne-suffering teenager is removed from a stressful environment, his or her acne often improves. This does not mean that you can completely eliminate acne by eliminating stress. But emotion can make acne better—or worse.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

People and You

How Fathers Affect Their Sons' Personalities

When children in a family "didn't turn out right," most of the blame used to fall on Mom. A new discovery indicates there are two kinds of fatherly behavior that can push a boy into personality problems. It's not enough, psychologists have found, for Dad to be concerned about his son. Fathers who are very affectionate but who are rarely home leave their boys without a day-in-day-out adult model to imitate. These sons often find it hard to mature. Yet just being home isn't enough. Boys with unloving fathers frequently grow up to be both immature and undependable. These youngsters, say the psychologists, might be better off if their disinterested Dads weren't with them so much. What should Dad do? The boys in the study who grew up to be the best adjusted had fathers with two assets: They were around home a lot and were clearly affectionate to and interested in their children.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

SAM LEVENSON:

Why Can't Schools Teach Our Kids to Be Human?

"It's high time we changed the basis of our educational systems," says comedian, author and former educator Sam Levenson. "We have to begin training our teachers so they can educate children on a human and moral level. It isn't only a question of learning to read, but of what we are reading. It isn't only a matter of learning to speak properly, but also of what we are saying. The old 'McGuffey Readers' may have been corny, but every reading lesson had a moral. I don't accept the excuse that there isn't the money. We have eight-lane highways to drive to our capitals and complain about education. What about having only four-lane highways and spending more on schools?" Mr. Levenson has written the new best seller, "In One Era and Out the Other."—Interviewed by William Wolf

Jobmanship

Supervisors Who Create Crises

Do you sometimes feel you "can't take the pressure" of your job? Maybe it's not your job; maybe it's your supervisor. Some supervisors function best under pressure. Consciously or unconsciously they create crises for themselves and their workers. This kind of supervisor is very proud of being able to manage "when the heat's on." He also insists that "in this business you've got to be able to take it." Even if he himself complains about the frequent emergencies, he gets an emotional boost out of fighting through and "coming out on top again." The crisis-happy supervisor repeatedly manufactures situations by overreacting. For example: "We've all got to get that delivery made by quitting time tonight," he demands. And everyone is forced to get up and run. Yet if he'd stop to think it through, he might realize that a deadline of tomorrow night would take care of it.—By S. R. Redford

Lassie's Trainer Tells:

How to Talk to Your Dog—Whether Movie Star or Mutt

By Rudd Weatherwax
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

"I can say positively," Rudd Weatherwax emphasizes, "that a trained dog is a happy dog."

> "If I could, I'd make it a law that every dog owner would have to take a course that would teach him about the real nature of his pet."

If I had a nickel for every time a dog owner told me he didn't want to "break his dog's spirit" by training him, Lassie and I could retire! I've trained more than 1,500 dogs in the last 50 years, and I can say positively that a trained dog is a happy dog.

There are more than 30 million dogs in this country, yet fewer than five of any 100 owners truly understand what a dog is. This leads to frustrated, unhappy dogs, and frustrated, unhappy owners. It's also directly responsible for animal-welfare societies having to put to death as many as 3,000 dogs a day.

I'd like to talk to you about how to communicate with your pet successfully, which is essential if you and he are to live together happily and with mutual pleasure.

First, every dog, from Lassie down to that cute pup in the pet-store window, needs a good deal of love and attention. Your dog depends on you for all the social interaction he'd normally get from his pack if he were running wild. In addition to the usual pats, walks and words, be sure to give him at least 15 minutes of your undivided attention each and every day. Without this, he'll feel lonely and rejected and will probably develop behavior problems.

"Mean Talk"

Authority—or firmness, if you prefer—is also important. If you don't demonstrate that you're the boss, then he'll decide that he's "top dog" in the house. Don't confuse abuse or punishment with authority. It's not necessary to strike a dog—even with a newspaper —or whip or scream at him. This will just make your dog distrust you.

A pointing finger and a harsh, "No, Samson! Bad dog! Shame!" are usually enough. When I find stronger measures are needed, I use what I call a "mean talk." I grip Lassie firmly (but gently) with both hands by the loose skin of the neck, bring my face close to his and lecture him roughly for a minute or two on what a miserable, lowdown son of a gun he's been. Nothing makes Lassie repent faster!

Wouldn't you like to help your boy or girl become a child who turns to books with pleasure and enthusiasm…and who reads easily and naturally?

Of course you would—because the ability to read well is perhaps the most useful and important skill your child will ever learn. How well children read will affect their performance in school, and later in life, too.

The secret: books that are fun to read
I CAN READ books have been especially designed to capture the interest and imagination of children 4 to 8. The stories are written in words children understand. And the plots are so entertaining that any boy or girl becomes eager to read the stories.

Sponsored by the Editors of My Weekly Reader
The Editors of My Weekly Reader are experts in making reading pleasant and enjoyable for children. They have selected the I CAN READ series as the kind of storybooks you should have at home for your children to build their interest in reading.

The stories are just right for youngsters 4 to 8. The characters are lovable (and sometimes even a bit mischievous!). There are many big, bright, colorful pictures, and the type is large and easy to read.

"When we found out what AARP does for people over 55, my wife didn't mind telling her age."

"After a friend of ours told us about the American Association of Retired Persons, I said to my wife, 'Irma, Everybody's having fun but us. Lots of people out there are having a marvelous time and we're sitting home counting the years.' So I picked myself right up and filled out an AARP coupon just like the one on this page. I want to tell you it was the best thing we ever did."

WHAT'S AARP?

AARP is the American Association of Retired Persons or as we like to think of ourselves—The new social security. A non-profit association of almost 6 million people. Anybody who's over 55 can belong. And all it costs to be a member is $2 a year. Which is almost like buying a whole new life for a few cents a week. You can stay home and enjoy it. You can be rich. Poor. Healthy. Not so healthy. It's one of the few organizations in the world that offers you the opportunity to give so much of yourself, and at the same time provides so many benefits and services. Simply because its one purpose is to help you continue to feel vital, important and involved in every part of life.

WHAT YOU GET

To begin with, you can continue your education. You can fill your leisure time with hundreds of new meaningful activities. At home. Or outside. You can get help in finding part-time work. Be assured of reasonable prices on medicines, travel, on many of the necessities of life including health insurance. You can meet new people. Make your voice heard in government. You'll receive two fine publications written just for you. In other words, you're going to have fun again and find that life is more than just a way to pass time.

DON'T STOP LEARNING

AARP's Institute of Lifetime Learning offers a full program of education courses in music appreciation, psychology, creative writing, literature, government, and a variety of other subjects. There are home study courses or you can attend lectures at regional centers around the country.

BE REPRESENTED IN GOVERNMENT

AARP's legislative program represents you in your state legislature and Congress. Its 33-point program is a Bill of Rights to all older persons retired or not. We let you know what's happening. So that you can know about all of the legislation put through on your behalf.

FEEL BETTER WITH HEALTH INSURANCE

Medicare doesn't cover everything. So one of AARP's most important services is eligibility for special supplementary Group Health Insurance Plans. They help you to pay for the best medical and surgical treatment, and include a unique Nursing Home and Home-Nursing Care Plan. You'll feel better just having this kind of protection.

PHARMACY SERVICE

Because of the buying power represented by almost 6 million AARP members, AARP makes it possible for you to get over-the-counter and prescription medicine and supplies at realistic prices and have them delivered to your home, postage paid.

GO PLACES

Where would you like to travel? Around the world? Across the country? AARP's travel service can help you do it. You can choose from a wide variety of quality tours and cruises, ranging from luxury to economy, most of them escorted by experienced tour directors. The world is there. All you have to do is go into it.

FEEL LIKE WORKING?

Just because you're retired doesn't mean you can't work. Mature Temps, an AARP recommended service, may be able to help you supplement your retirement income with part-time or temporary employment. There are offices in a number of major metropolitan areas across the country. Just call. Their service is free.

Irma and Peter McNulty

PARTICIPATE IN CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

Chances are there's an AARP Chapter near you. (There are 1500 of them around the United States). If you'd like to go to a meeting and find out about the inside workings of AARP, just come on over. It's a great way to make our association grow stronger and a fine opportunity for you to meet dozens of vital people your own age.

WANT TO GET INVOLVED?

At Local Chapters you'll have the opportunity to find out about community services in which you can lend a helping hand. You can learn more about the Defensive Driving Courses, the Consumer Information Desk or participate in the Tax Aide Program. Or just meet new friends.

NEED ADVICE?

AARP provides its members with a series of booklets that guide retired people through areas of particular concern. They cover everything from how to get personal help, to health advice, moving, diet, and all the little problems that trouble you from time to time.

WORRIED ABOUT AUTO INSURANCE*?

If you're an AARP member, you will receive information about how you may be able to actually save money on your auto insurance with a policy that has guaranteed renewable and limited-cancellation features.

LIKE TO READ?

When you join AARP you automatically receive subscriptions to AARP's official publications, Modern Maturity and the AARP News Bulletin, two publications filled with news and features of special interest to you.

Your annual membership dues of $2 help cover the cost of these publications, which means for as long as you're a member of AARP your magazines will keep coming.

There's so much more to AARP than we have room to tell you here. And really, the best way to find out is to join. The coupon below will enroll you so that you can take advantage of all the AARP benefits and services. There's only one requirement. You have to be 55 or over. We don't think you'll mind telling us if you are.

*Auto Insurance available in all states except Massachusetts. Only statutory coverage available in North Carolina and Texas.

Lassie

ing your efforts and you're only confusing your pet. Don't encourage him to jump on you and play when you're in work clothes one day, then reprimand him for the same thing the next day when you're in good clothes.

Why Is Lassie a "He"?

Now Lassie's a little different from your dog. So I have to treat him a little differently. For example, I have to permit Lassie to sleep on my furniture. Since he frequently has to jump up on a couch or a chair when he's working before the cameras, I can't very well forbid him from doing the same thing at home. The sometimes "Yes," sometimes "No" would bewilder and upset him.

Lassie is specially trained to respond to what appear to be inconsistent commands in order to perform for the camera. For example, when we were filming "The Lassie Method" training film, I told Lassie to dig a hole in the yard. Then to demonstrate how to break a dog of destructive digging, I threw cans filled with rocks near his feet. He was one surprised dog! But he gave us the look of fright we wanted on film.

He got a lot of extra loving and treats after that one.

Lassie does all the things you've seen him do simply because I've put a lot of time into his training—two years of daily work, in fact, before he steps in front of the cameras for the first time. (The present Lassie is the fifth; I retire Lassie at seven years of age and let his son step into the role. Why the son? Not because boy collies are smarter, but simply because they're a little prettier!)

While a dog is a lot smarter than most people think, you still can't expect him to have the reasoning powers of a human. So you have to be patient. You have to show him things over and over—working every day, not just when the mood strikes you—until he finally understands the idea and makes it a permanent part of his personality. But once he does, he won't forget it. Sometimes that causes me some trouble.

Guard Dog vs. Pet

I've taught Lassie how to open doorknobs, latches and locks. As a result, I've had to install special "Lassie-proof" latches on all my outside doors to prevent him from opening them up and dashing out for a frolic.

Lassie can open the refrigerator, too, and help himself and treat the other dogs to snacks now and then, unless we keep the door latched. We even have a special bathtub for Lassie with the hot- and cold-water knobs on the outside of the tub so he won't turn on the hot water and scald himself.

Lassie has to work with all sorts of strangers and make public appearances, so he's trained to be friendly to everyone. But this means he can't distinguish between a burglar and a friend! You can't train a dog to be friendly and to be a guard dog. He's either one or the other.

"Don't encourage him to jump on you when you're in work clothes, then reprimand him when you're in good clothes."

If I could, I'd make it a law that every dog owner would have to take a course that would teach him about the real nature of his pet. The dog is the most taken-for-granted and misunderstood animal in the world—and that's the major cause of behavior problems. I strongly recommend that you buy or borrow a good book on the subject from the library. There are several. My own book is called "The Lassie Method: Raising and Training Your Dog with Patience, Firmness and Love." I also believe every dog should undergo basic obedience training—not just for your sake, for his. Being obedient earns him extra love and praise, gives him a chance to show off, builds his ego, strengthens his sense of responsibility and gives him a constructive outlet for his intelligence.

The Five Commandments

Lassie loves to work, even though it's very demanding. When he has some time off between appearances or films, he gets restless.

The basic points in getting through to your dog and living happily together, then, are 1) Love; 2) Authority; and 3) Patience. And close behind these are 4) Real Knowledge; and 5) Effective Training.

If you take them to heart and apply them, Lassie and I can guarantee you and your dog a happy and rewarding life together. fw

The Sand Dollar
(Holy Ghost Shell)

THIS IS A REAL SAND DOLLAR PRESERVED FOREVER IN 24 KARAT GOLD

This most unusual of marine life specimens has markings that symbolize the Life of Christ. The five narrow openings represent the four nail holes and the wound in the Crucified Body of Chirst. On the front side, the outline of the Easter Lily is clearly seen with the five pointed Star of Bethlehem in the center. The back reveals a Christmas Poinsetta. Legend has it that when the Sand Dollar is broken, the shell releases five little Doves of Peace. Some say these are the Angels that sang to the shepherds the first Christmas Morning.

This striking piece of jewelry is designed by nature and then "frozen in gold." And because each is cast from a real sand dollar, every detail is held intact... the way nature desired it.

How to collect from Social Security at any age!

Would you like to know how much money you have invested in Social Security right to the penny? Then would you like to know how to get the most from that investment including all the brand new Social Security benefits? Now you can do both by using the short easy coupon at the bottom of this page. Here is the way it works. The left half of the coupon will be sent to the proper government office. They will run a check on your account and then send you a report in a confidential sealed envelope. This report will tell you how much of your earnings have been recorded in your Social Security account year by year. There is no charge for this service, not even postage.

The right half of the coupon will be used as a shipping label to send you a copy of a new book entitled, "How to collect from Social Security at any age." If you think that you have to wait until retirement age to start collecting your Social Security benefits, this book will really open your eyes. Here are some of the little-known facts about Social Security you will find out about in this book:

- How to increase the amount of your payment if you are already on Social Security.
- How to collect your share of the brand new Social Security benefits just passed by Congress.
- How to qualify for Social Security disability pensions at any age.
- How to increase your Social Security benefits.
- How to report your Farm income for Social Security.
- How to make your whole family eligible for Social Security benefits, even your youngest children.
- How to replace a lost Social Security card.
- How to replace a lost Social Security check.
- How to get a refund if you have overpaid your Social Security taxes. (Studies show that two out of three people overpay.)
- How to figure out what your Social Security retirement payments should be.
- Should you tatoo your Social Security number on your body?
- What papers do you need in order to file a Social Security claim?
- How ten million people who are only 30 years old, on the average, collect Social Security.
- Should you get a divorce in order to get more Social Security? (a lot of people already have.)
- Should you have two Social Security cards?
- How to get free services which are available from Social Security.
- How to make sure your employer is not cheating you on your Social Security.
- How you may be cheating yourself out of your Social Security benefits.
- When are the five times you should get in touch with your Social Security office?
- How to work and still get Social Security benefits.
- How to cash in on Social Security even if you've never paid a penny into it.
- How to get hospital and medical insurance for the aged.
- How students between the ages of 18 and 22 can get Social Security cash benefits.
- How to get the special Social Security benefits that are only for veterans.

Now—for the first time—an international Jet-Setter reveals the "inside" story:

How The Beautiful People Get Rid Of Both Cellulite And Ordinary Fat—Without Dieting!

Yes, the Beautiful People cannot afford to be fat!

Those stunning, sleekly-slim couples who grace the pages of the fashion magazines and society columns...who spend each new Season in New York and Cannes and Saint Moritz and Saint Tropez...who live surrounded by a horde of admirers and photographers must remain youthful and slim right up to 50...60...70!

And, if you were to ask them what they do to maintain their Beautiful People Bodies, the answer would always be the same: "I don't do ANYTHING; I don't diet!"

That's right! The Beautiful People Don't Diet! They enjoy the finest food in the world and yet the needle on the scale barely moves! How do they do it?

For the first time, Luciana Avedon (former Princess Pignatelli and now the wife of the European cosmetics executive, Burt S. Avedon) reveals the "BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE MIRACLE FORMULA" responsible for all those lusciously svelte figures on the society pages. How they NEVER go on fad diets, NEVER take dangerous amphetamines, diuretics or diet pills, and NEVER give up their favorite foods either! How they simply go right on eating the foods they like—but in a special way that keeps them always fashionably slim, without their having to jump on and off the diet merry-go-round.

To give just a few examples:

One California socialite says: "I always keep my weight fluctuation within two pounds. It's bad for the face when you go up and down."

Another stunning fashion leader says: "I weighed more at age 25 than I do now." (She's now 37!)

Another says: "Sitting down to nothing but clear soup or health food depresses me; it makes me feel like an invalid."

But yet they know how to splurge like this without incurring disaster on the scales! They get their food kicks—constantly—but their figures never show it!

They eat the finest food in the world (even the delicacies and "tempters" you'd be horrified to touch), but they do it in a way that never lets them put on more weight than they can simply "peel off" in a few days any time they decide to!

(In fact, these Beautiful People secrets of delicious figure-maintenance are so powerful that, when one young, overweight model was introduced to just one of them, she lost 22 pounds in one month and stayed at that weight from then on! And another young girl, when shown how, lost 20 "impossible" pounds in two short months, even though not a single meal demanded special preparation!)

So, From Now On, Forget About Debilitating Diets! The Beautiful People Don't Use Them—Why Should You?

Once again, let us emphasize that the Beautiful People think dieting is a "bore." They eat well—very well—and they are not fat! They wouldn't think of doing without their favorite foods and the needle on the scale barely changes!

Why then shouldn't you follow their plan and lose weight—pounds and pounds and pounds of it! The process is the same, even if you start with a 50 pound handicap. And you do it all by yourself (without "fat" doctors, or the group therapy approach of diet clubs.) And, yet, (to repeat once again) you do not "sacrifice" the foods you love for a single minute!

Yes, you can still enjoy parties, restaurants, business lunches or dinners, and "super-relaxed" vacations. You can eat all the foods you usually do, and still find the pounds and inches gradually, but permanently, melting off!

ABOUT THE AUTHORS:

Roman-born Luciana Avedon, the former Princess Pignatelli, was educated in Switzerland. Her husband, Burt S. Avedon, is Director of European operations for Eve of Roma, an internationally famous cosmetics firm. She has been a fashion designer and coordinator, and is currently a beauty consultant. Her first book, The Beautiful People's Beauty Book, was a best-selling title here and abroad.

Listen, As The Beautiful People Tell You How To:

Condition yourself by developing your own built-in "Fat Radar" so that the minute your weight starts to shoot up, you can shoot it down!

Take off fat while it's still "soft"...before the body has had a chance to make it part of the muscle structure. Before it marbelizes, as in a fat steak, and becomes even harder to lose!

Make the natural diuretic power of food even MORE effective, so that accumulated tissue water drains out of your body faster and you NEVER get that bloated look!

Lose tons of weight—all in the right places—and NEVER get "scrawny" looking in the face. Actually melt unwanted pounds right off your body, and still retain that "youthful" bloom in your face the Beautiful People way!

PLUS...

How to be thin as a model, and still have the energy and stamina of a truck driver!

The Beautiful People's special "Secret Elimination Diet" that disintoxicates your system...drains out internal poisons...at exactly the same time that you are painlessly losing weight!

The Beautiful People "Easy-Diet Plan", a permanent part of your life, so that you continue to lose weight for as long as you wish, and yet NEVER feel deprived!

How to prevent your body from automatically "adjusting" to your first massive weight loss, so that it actually prevents you from taking off even more pounds.

What to do if you are a "sandwich fiend" and don't want to cut them out of your diet.

Why the Beautiful People make sure that they never lose more than 18 pounds at a time.

How they painlessly "retrain their nervous system so that they don't go on eating binges during an "anxiety attack."

What the European Beautiful People do at once when their skin looks bad, they have trouble sleeping, or they are just feeling dreadful.

Why the Beautiful People feel that American men are a "disaster...overweight, over-tobaccoed, over-alcoholed, and undersexed." And, what Beautiful People Males "over 30," do to retain their very special attractiveness.

The Beautiful People "cure" for sporadic over-indulgence. In other words, how to eat your cake, and have a knock-out figure too!

Yes, The Beautiful People Have Been Looking Fabulous For Years THIS Way. Now You'll Learn How, WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY!

You are just as capable of keeping younger, prettier, slimmer and more attractive as any of the Beautiful People you'll read about in this book. And once you know their "secrets", you'll be well on your way to joining the ranks of all the Beautiful People all over the world, who realize that being beautiful also means being slender

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS:

How The Beautiful People "Smooth Away" Ugly Cellulite, The EASY Way!

Yes, while these Beautiful People are incredibly slim and supple at all ages—actually glowing with good health—they have also learned how to FREE themselves of ugly and distorting CELLULITE! (Cellulite, as you may know, is "orange peel fat"—the hard lumps of hideous fat that stick to the back of the thighs, knees, arms, buttocks and back. The same ripply fat pockets that cause desperation and unhappiness in thousands of American women who cannot walk down a beach, or up to a husband or lover, without feeling unattractive or just plain ugly!)

This is not ordinary fat, by any means. And it can't be gotten rid of by ordinary means. Instead, it's bumpy, hard lumps of toxic material—really a gel-like substance—that become trapped in bubbly, immovable pockets just beneath the skin. It's found in pencil-slim models and housewives alike. In fact, it's reputed to disfigure almost 90% of the women in the world! But not the Beautiful People! Why?

BECAUSE OF THESE TWO SIMPLE "CELLULITE CHASERS" THAT YOU CAN USE YOURSELF RIGHT IN YOUR OWN HOME, STARTING IN JUST A FEW MINUTES A DAY!

No, you don't need fancy doctors, or expensive health spas to be able to bid farewell to these unsightly globules. You can achieve spectacular results simply by following these two simple steps beginning on Page 26:

First, attack the cellulite you're carrying around right now through this special self-massage treatment designed to break it up and quickly "wash" this figure-distorting mess right out of your body!

Second, follow the unique Anti-Cellulite-Food Program that will actually help your natural circulatory system to rid your body of annoying substances BEFORE they can build up and become IMMOVABLE CHUNKS OF FAT!

Both these Cellulite Fighters are yours, as just one section of this great Beautiful People Over-All Body Beauty Plan...yours to read from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

Shouldn't We Use the Things We Like?

By Shirley Moskow

> "If we don't share our lovely possessions with our families, who are the important people we are saving them for?"

My 11-year-old son was rummaging through his room one day looking for an old book cover to protect the textbook he had recently been issued.

"There's a new cover under the blotter on your desk," I reminded him quickly.

"Yes, but I'm saving that one for something special," he responded.

His words sounded sensible, but they made me feel sad.

I remembered when I was his age. My favorite cousin, knowing that I was interested in learning to paint with watercolors, had given me an extravagant set of paints and brushes. Oh, the excitement, as I lifted the cover of the bright-red octagonal box! Inside, the whole world of color was waiting for me to give it form. Impatiently, I picked up one of the bottles – but my mother's words stopped me.

"Wait," she advised reasonably, "until you've practiced a while. Then you'll really be able to appreciate this beautiful set."

So she bought me an inexpensive set of paints from the five-and-dime store. It had few colors and their tones were dull. I played with it for a while, then lost interest. The incident was forgotten until I came across the dust-covered octagonal box in a closet several years later. This time there was no one to stop me from opening the paint. I expectantly removed the cap from one of the bottles. The contents had dried up.

I suppose I should have thrown the old box out. Instead, I've kept it as an important reminder that extravagant things should be used. Otherwise the pleasure they can give dries up.

My neighbor extravagantly uses her lovely things daily. Recently she received a handsome pottery milk pitcher as an anniversary gift. I watched her unwrap the package, rinse out the pitcher, and immediately fill it with milk from a nearby carton.

"Now I'll never have to put another ugly milk carton on my kitchen table," she said as she poured a glass of milk for her three-year-old. And she means it. She has learned the pleasure of using things she likes. She explained to me that while polishing furniture may be a chore, making a table shine–a table that one loves because of its shape or the beauty of the wood or for the family memories it revives–is a time to enjoy again the commonplace things around us that we too often take for granted in the rush of daily living.

My grandfather believed this, too. He was a poor man, and his house was meagerly furnished. Yet he extravagantly insisted that his tea be served in a thin bone-china cup with a sterling silver spoon.

"It tastes better that way," he said.

Whenever I remember Grandpa, I think of all the beautiful wedding presents and family heirlooms that are tucked away because they are "too good" to use every day. It's too bad more people have not learned to find daily pleasure in beautiful things. After all, if we don't share our lovely possessions with our families, who are the important people we are saving them for? fw

FRANK COSTELLO
The gangster and the President

Harry Truman and the late organized-crime leader Frank Costello knew each other "quite well," according to actor Anthony Quinn. Quinn relates this anecdote in his forward to a new Costello biography as Costello told it to him: "You know," said Costello, "I used to like to walk in the morning. I didn't like to walk during the day because I knew people were watching me and so forth and saying there's Frank Costello, the gangster. I don't want to bother nobody. I want to be left alone. So I'd get up at five in the morning, and I'd take my walk. That morning as I came out of the house, I see guys up in the trees. I know they are cops and FBI men keeping an eye on me, but I go about my way. Let them look all they want. So I'm walking and way down at the end I see a little figure walking towards me. He's getting closer, and suddenly I realize it's Harry Truman! He starts to say, 'Hello, Frank,' and just as he's about to say it, I say, 'Keep your mouth shut, you dumb cluck. They're watching us. Don't louse us both up.' So he smiles and keeps walking, and I smile and keep walking!" (Costello died last year.) BIPS

Lifesavers have come a long way, baby. And this is the longest way we have ever seen. Remember the good old inner tube? Then there were water wings and bubbles. Now we have wrist-strapped lifesavers that are worn like wristwatches and inflated instantly with a carbon dioxide cartridge. When you're swimming along and suddenly feel you can't make it any farther, you press a little button on the top of the case (about the same size as a cigarette pack) and the gas escapes into a folded water wing. The wing inflates—and you get enough buoyancy to keep you afloat. For best results, the manufacturers of these lifesavers suggest you place the inflated device under your chin or underarm until you are rescued. Called Aqua Aids, the wrist straps can be purchased in stores or from New Era Products, 2670 Meadow Road, Lumberton, N.C. 28358.

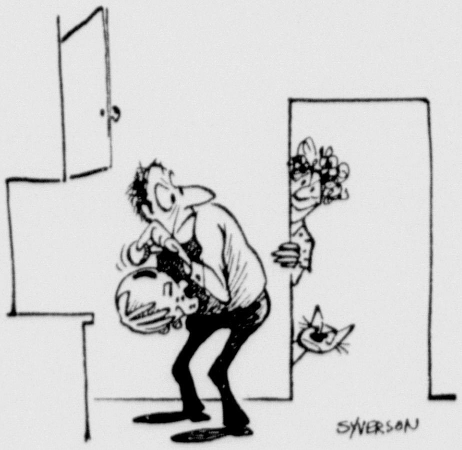
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY



By Richard Armour

VERBAL BURBLE

"To husband" means to save, be sparing,
Economize, for cash be caring.
It means to keep what you have got,
Be it a little or a lot.

That is, I guess, a husband's mission.
I rather like this definition.
It makes me, as I scrimp and save,
Think husbands all should thus behave.

But though I've searched the dictionary
And looked until my eyes are stary,
The verb "to wife" I do not meet
Except as "marry" (obsolete).

And I would never be so rash
As ask my wife, "Please wife this cash."

The teacher, instructing the youngsters on the months of the year, had come to March. "What is it," she asked, "that comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb?"

"My father," replied a boy in the front row. —Lucille J. Goodyear

A tourist, riding in a cab past the National Archives Building in Washington, read out the carved words "The Past Is Prologue" and wondered aloud what it meant. "It means," said the driver, "that you ain't seen nothin' yet."

On weekends we always have special breakfasts. With the jump in meat prices, however, one of our favorites, a creamed hamburger dish, became too expensive. One day I decided to fix it for dinner. My six-year-old son asked why I was fixing breakfast at night. My explanation, that we couldn't afford it for breakfast anymore, left him puzzled. In amazement he said, "You mean it costs more in the morning?"

If you smoke.

We're not telling you anything you don't know when we acknowledge that a controversy about smoking exists.

And since we're in the business of selling cigarettes, you obviously know where we stand.

Vantage gives you flavor like a full-flavor cigarette. Without anywhere near the 'tar' and nicotine.

That's a simple statement of truth.

We don't want you to misunderstand us. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can buy.

We just don't see the point in putting out a low 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you have to work so hard getting some taste out of, you won't smoke it.

If you agree with us, we think you'll enjoy Vantage.
